USED MAILS TO DEFRAUD.

Officers and Agents of Sterling Debenture Company Sentenced.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Seven former officers and agents of the Sterling Debenture Company today received prison sentences of from three to six years for using the United States mails to defraud investors in the stock of enterprises promoted by their corporation. In sending them to the federal prison at Atlanta, Federal Judge Anderson declared that, although the defendants maintained they were penniless, they had in fact made millions at the expense of thousands of victims throughout the country.

The heaviest sentences, six years were imposed upon George H. Middlebrook of Chicago, first vice president of the company; Frank Shumaker, a former president, and Henry H. H. Plant, a minor officer.

Benjamin Mudge, president of the Oxford linen mills of North Brookfield, Mass., received a four-year term. He was a chemist and inventor whose alleged process to make flax yarn from flax straw at an enormous saving was widely advertised by the Sterling Company in its campaign for the sale of the Oxford linen mills stock.

Three-year sentences were imposed upon Wilbur M. Stone, a patent expert; Elwyn A. Barron, a prospectus writer, and W. S. Edwards, a minor officer. The jury recommended mercy for these three.

The seven defendants were found guilty last night by a jury in the federal district court, after a long trial at which they tried to prove that Mudge's process was all they claimed for it, and that they were engaged in a bona fide stock selling campaign.

According to a statement issued by the Postoffice Department, the corporation sold approximately $35,000,000 of stock of various companies. Much of this stock was of legitimate character, but the department declared its investigations showed that the corporation retained as commissions from 50 to 85 per cent of the money derived from the sale of bogus stocks of the concerns alleged to be fraudulent. The defendants are alleged to have disposed of $1,200,000 worth of Oxford Linen Mills stock, and $900,000 of stock of subsidiary companies. Among the latter was the East Brook Company, which is said to have claimed it had a process for turning waste by-product into woolens.

HOUSE TABLES MOTION FOR RE-CONSIDERATION.

West Property Qualification Bill Now Goes to Senate.

Latter Body, in Session Two Minutes, Receives One Item.

(Special despatch to the News.)

PROVIDENCE, April 7.—Lieutenant Governor Burchard called the senate together at 12:39 this afternoon and at 12:41 o'clock Senator Smith of Warren moved to adjourn and the body adjourned. During the two-minute session Senator Anthony of Portsmouth succeeded in introducing a resolution to grant the Rhode Island Poultry Dealers' Association the use of the Providence armory for a show. There were no reports from committees, no new business was introduced other than this item, and there was no calendar.

Things were different in the House, where there were many committee reports, several new items were introduced and quite a little calendar, even though many of the items were not of general interest.

Mr. Littlefield of New Shoreham was true to his promise of Friday and moved to re-consider the vote on the West property qualification bill. Mr. West at once moved to lay the motion on the table, and this was seconded by Mr. Hughes. It was laid on the table by a roll-call vote of 56 to 32, and the West bill now goes to the Senate, where it is an open question whether it will be adopted or killed. Mr. Levy did not vote on the motion to table. Messrs. Lawton and Coggeshall voted against tabling.

The finance committee reported resolutions providing appropriations for a memorial to General William Ames on the State House grounds, compensation for the commissioners on the building of the court house in Westerly, the commissioners on the reconstruction of the Stone Bridge and the commissioners on the building of the Woonsocket Armory. The last three resolutions were returned in a bunch, each having its objectors and its friends, and it is apparent that none can be passed without a great deal of trading. The Woonsocket proposition was killed last year. All went to the calendar.

The judiciary committee reported an act on masters, apprentices and laborers and an act prohibiting newsboys, bootblacks and venders under 16 years of age plying their trade after 9 p. m. Calendar.

The same committee also reported an act providing for licensing Sunday concerts. Such legislation was defeated in the senate last year, and probably will be this year. It went to the calendar.

Mr. Green of Providence introduced an act which would take from town councils the power of appointment of constables, placing this in the governor with the approval of the attorney general. The act would also take from constables the right to act as collectors. Judiciary committee.

Mr. Lussier of Woonsocket introduced an act intended to provide the sheriff of Providence county with an automobile for the transportation of prisoners to Howard. Mr. Hambly proposed an amendment to the law on oyster fisheries and Mr. Sumner introduced two amendments to the law on civil actions and their limitations. All were referred to committees.

Mr. Sullivan of Newport moved that the committee on judiciary be discharged from further consideration of the act on the repeal of the Cumberland police commission act. The motion was lost.

Mr. Bashaw of Providence moved that the finance committee be discharged from further consideration of the resolution providing for the reimbursement of members of the Third coast artillery company who suffered through typhoid as the result of the Lake Erie trip. This motion was also lost.

Among the items of the calendar passed were the appropriations for the Rhode Island Volunteer Life Saving Corps, the State House Commission, the distribution of volumes 36 and 37, Rhode Island Reports, and for repairs to the sidewalk of the Kent County court house.

The house later took up the act which would prohibit members of the legisature from electing themselves to salaried officers and a long discussion ensued.

POLICE COMMISSIONER.

Mayor Mitchel Appoints His Secretary, Arthur H. Woods, to Office.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Mayor Mitchel today appointed Arthur H. Woods one of his secretaries, police commissioner. Mr. Woods, a Harvard graduate, former newspaper man, skilled investigator and several years ago a deputy police commissioner under Commissioner Bingham, will take office Wednesday. The new commissioner succeeds Douglas I. McKay, who was first deputy commissioner during the Gaynor administration, and who was appointed head of the department when Mitchel assumed office, with the understanding that his tenure of office should cease when the mayor had found just the man he wanted for the place.

Before taking up newspaper work Mr. Woods was a master at Groton School.

GRAND LARCENY CHARGED.

Fourteen New Indictments Returned Against Siegel and Vogel.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Fourteen new indictments against Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, heads of the bankrupt Siegel enterprises, were handed in today by the grand jury that has been investigating the failure of the Henry Siegel & Co., private bank and the methods of the department stores controlled by the two men. The indictments charge grand larceny and violations of the state banking laws.

UNDERWOOD'S VICTORY CONCEDED BY HOBSON.

Nominated from Alabama to Long Term in Senate.

Bankhead Said to Be Named to Succeed Him in House.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 7.—L. B. Musgrove, campaign manager for Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson, conceded Oscar W. Underwood's nomination to the United States Senate yesterday, in a statement made today. Mr. Hobson later left Birmingham for Washington.

Incomplete returns from practically all the 67 counties in the state apparently substantiated early predictions that Underwood had defeated Hobson.

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD.

Progress today in counting the vote was slow, especially in the larger cities. Returns showed a close race between Ray Rushton of Montgomery and Frank S. White of Birmingham for the short term nomination to the United States Senate, which will expire March 3, 1915. If none of the candidates receive a majority a second primary between the two leading candidates will be held May 11, at which time similar contests between other state officers will be settled and a United States Senator for the short term will be formally elected.

For the governorship, ex-governor B. B. Comer appears to be in the lead.

Apparently Representative Henry D. Clayton of the Third district, H. Hubert Dent of the Second, Frederick L. Hackman of the Fourth and John L. Burnett of the Seventh, were nominated for re-election. In the Sixth indications were that William B. Bankhead had been nominated to succeed Representative Hobson.

KITCHIN PROBABLE LEADER.

Hobson May Enter Race for Senatorship Against Bankhead.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Oscar W. Underwood's election to the Senate from Alabama will not change the Democratic House leadership before March 4, 1915. Meantime, Representative Kitchin of North Carolina has secured what he says are more than enough pledges to assure him the Democratic leadership in succession to Mr. Underwood and the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, if the Democrats retain control of the House of the next Congress.

The Alabama election marks the passing of Representative Hobson and the coming of William B. Bankhead in his place. Mr. Bankhead is the son of Senator Bankhead and made the speech which placed Mr. Underwood in nomination for the presidency at the Baltimore convention. It has been reported at the Capital that if Mr. Hobson were defeated in the present Senatorship contest he planned to enter the race for the Senatorship against Senator Bankhead, whose term expires in 1919.

ORDINANCE APPROVED.

Formal Franchise for New Conduit Recommended by the Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen held a special meeting Monday evening to take action on the ordinance granting to the street railway company permission to build a conduit. The board had already granted this permission but the company desired a franchise by ordinance. Mayor Boyle presided and Aldermen Kiloy, Hughes and Eddy were present with Mr. Sheffield, counsel for the road, and Superintendent Donohue.

The mayor read the draft of the ordinance proposed by Mr. Sheffield and asked how it differed from the grant already made. Alderman Hughes said it differed as to time. The grant called for the work to be done by May [illegible] the ordinance calls for the work [illegible] done by June 1 to be suspended until September [illegible]. There were also limitations as to the method of doing the work, subject to the approval of the superintendent of [illegible] and the street commissioner [illegible] as the conduit is to run under the sidewalk. If this ordinance does not affect the conditions then fixed in consultation with Mr. Gosling [illegible] had no objection. The city clerk suggested that the provision in the [illegible] ordinances that all work should [illegible] to the [illegible] action of the Board of Aldermen [illegible] the matters [illegible] by Alderman Hughes.

The provision that the ordinance [illegible] by the company in 30 days attracted the attention of the mayor, who thought that [illegible] Mr. Sheffield [illegible] it was [illegible] hoped [illegible] it could [illegible] to approve it [illegible]. In regard to the other time he said it was a question how much work [illegible] be done by June 1. It is not desired that Spring street be torn up [illegible] summer and the clause had been [illegible] that no work be permitted [illegible] the aldermen should [illegible] between June 1 and September [illegible] matter of fact [illegible] the entire work [illegible] the work asked for [illegible]. He said Mr. Gosling was [illegible] would have been present [illegible] to him [illegible] were to be complied with [illegible] it was desired to have this put in form of an ordinance.

The mayor thought [illegible] meant [illegible] franchise for this conduit [illegible] Mr. Sheffield said this in effect [illegible]. The cost is very great and [illegible] thought best to have the ordinance in addition to the permission [illegible] by the aldermen. The company is anxious to have the work done as quickly as possible [illegible] as he understood it much more [illegible] to lay a conduit for high-tension [illegible] wires [illegible] must insulate the wires [illegible].

Questioned as to when a start could be made and the desirability of fixing a time for starting, Mr. Sheffield said he did not know whether the material was all on hand and it would [illegible] to start before the material is here to push the work to completion. A start could be made at the power house but there could be no progress until the material is received. He suggested [illegible] Spring street before June [illegible] real progress could be made [illegible] Spring street [illegible] the work would then be shut down until after the [illegible].

Mayor Boyle said that [illegible] small. It is undesirable [illegible] Spring street sidewalk torn up [illegible] the summer.

[illegible] asked if [illegible] per cent [illegible] work could be [illegible] before June [illegible]. Mr. Sheffield [illegible] the matter of excavation was the simplest part and after the ducts are laid comes the longest part of the work. All the conditions made by the Aldermen were [illegible].

The ordinance as amended was then [illegible] and [illegible] commended to the Council at its meeting [illegible] the evening.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALASKA.

Sealed Vault of Great Wealth to be Opened by Building of Railroads

Government Lines to Connect Open Pacific Harbors With Navigable Waters in the Interior.

[Frederic J. Haskin in Washington Star.]

With a gold pen whose handle was an Alaskan mastodon tooth more than 9,000 years old there was signed the Alaska railroad bill which will open that sealed vault of great wealth [illegible] the world. Alaska, as a storehouse, should be unlocked, said the President in his special message to Congress, and a stern outline in the development of the American continent will be the story of the task of an ancient Alaskan mammal transformed into the twentieth century key that drew wide the doors of a treasure house far exceeding the fabulous possessions of Croesus.

The act directs the President of the United States to build not more than 1,000 miles of railroad in Alaska at a cost not to exceed $35,000,000. It is essentially the measure drawn up and introduced into the House of Representatives by James Wickershaw, delegate from Alaska, a duplicate of which was simultaneously presented to the Senate by Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon. The only important change was the elimination of the clause which provided for the issuance of a bond issue. The money will be appropriated year by year by Congress and in this way the cost of interest and other charges incident to bonds will be saved. This is the method followed in the financing of the Panama canal project, only a portion of the authorized bonds ever being offered for sale. The friends of the measure would have felt safer had the full $35,000,000 been provided for in a single authorized bond issue but they anticipate no difficulty in inducing Congress to provide funds as they are needed.

Full authority and responsibility are vested in the President, as in the Panama act. He will name the line or lines to be built, approve surveys, type of construction, quality of material, select his own assistants, fix salaries and expenditures and in short have the last word in everything pertaining to the proposed railroad. It is expected that the Secretary of the Interior will be the cabinet officer personally charged with the administration, just as the Secretary of War has been the Presidential agent in the construction of the Panama canal. Going further it is quite possible that one technical expert actually on the job will have powers equal to those exercised on the big ditch by Colonel Goethals. Who this man will be and whether he will be chief engineer or chairman of a commission or both is a matter of the future.

The use in the Alaska project of engineers of the army and navy or of any other branch of the federal government is authorized by the act and Congress directs that all available and suitable machinery and materials now in use on the Canal zone shall be transferred to Alaska as they are no longer needed at Panama. The Isthmian canal commission is authorized to take credit for everything so delivered at a percentage fixed by the President but this amount is not to be charged against the fund provided for in the act. In this way will be served the double purpose of utilizing a goodly portion of the expensive equipment and of giving almost immediate assistance to the far northern government.

The sum of $1,000,000 is made available at once by the new law and preliminary work will be begun as soon as possible. In fact tentative plans will be so located as to connect [illegible] more of the open Pacific harbors on the southern coast of Alaska with the navigable waters in the interior and with such coal fields and agricultural sections as will best develop this magnificent territory. In other words temperate Juneau the capital will shake hands with icy Fairbanks and the rich Tanana valley within the Arctic circle will no longer be a remote inland empire hidden away from the rest of the world.

[illegible] expect that between four and five years will be required [illegible] approximately [illegible] miles of railroad open for business. Construction will go on at both ends [illegible] eventually meet in [illegible] central terminal. There will [illegible] engineering difficulties [illegible] there [illegible] but it must be remembered that [illegible] part of the project must be carried on under climatic conditions that permit [illegible] but six months' work [illegible]. At the present time there are a little [illegible] miles of privately owned railroads in Alaska. Some of these may be bought [illegible] the government [illegible] if they can be purchased [illegible]. Some of [illegible] little independent railroads will [illegible] needed at all because they are [illegible] by private corporations [illegible] their own mines. The [illegible] there now are the Alaska Northern Railway Company, Copper River and Northwestern railway, the [illegible] Mines railway, the White Pass and Yukon railway and the Dawson [illegible]. An automobile company [illegible] the Tanana [illegible] the mines [illegible].

The construction and operation by the federal government of all necessary telephone and telegraph lines is authorized [illegible] the Alaska railway [illegible] may be laid down [illegible] the President may [illegible] all power [illegible] his duly designated assistants to withdraw [illegible] so much public land [illegible] rights of way terminals [illegible] the Interior [illegible] future [illegible] States [illegible] the entire line [illegible] telegraph lines.

All this [illegible] national [illegible] building [illegible] railway [illegible] small [illegible] future [illegible] wires of communication [illegible] government ownership [illegible] with which the bill [illegible] Congress [illegible] reflection of the temper of the people. However the bill [illegible] the President [illegible] any of the lines or all of them together [illegible] telephone systems [illegible]

ORDINANCE APPROVED.

Formal Franchise for New Conduit Recommended by the Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen held a special meeting Monday evening, to take action on the ordinance granting to the street railway company permission to build a conduit. The board had already granted this permission, but the company desired a franchise by ordinance. Mayor Boyle presided and Aldermen Kirby, Hughes and Laddy were present with Mr. Sheffield, counsel for the road, and Superintendent Donohue.

The mayor read the draft of the ordinance prepared by Mr. Sheffield and asked how it differed from the grant already made. Aldermen Hughes said it differed as to time. The grant called for the work to be done by May 1 the ordinance calls for any work not done by June 1 to be suspended until September 15. There were also limitations as to the method of doing work, subject to the approval of the superintendent of poles and wires and the street commissioner, the latter as the conduit is to run under the sidewalk. If this ordinance does not affect the conditions then fixed after consultation with Mr. Gosling he had no objections. The city clerk suggested that the provision in the ordinances that all work should be done to the satisfaction of the Board of Aldermen covered the matters spoken of by Alderman Hughes.

The provision that the ordinance should be accepted by the company within 30 days attracted the attention of the mayor, who thought that indicated unnecessary delay. Mr. Sheffield said it was simply to give the proper officials time to approve it; it could be changed to 15 days, and it was.

In regard to the other time, he said it was a question how much work will be done by June 1. It is not desirable to have Spring street torn up in summer, and the clause had been inserted that no work not permitted by the aldermen should be done between June 1 and September 15. As a matter of fact, it might be a year before the entire work of drawing the cables and wires through the conduit could be completed, and until that is done the work asked for is not complete. He said Mr. Gosling was sick or else he would have been present. All the conditions suggested to him by the committee were to be complied with, but it was desired to have this put in the form of an ordinance.

The mayor thought it meant a special franchise for this conduit, and Mr. Sheffield said that in effect it was. The cost is very great, and it was thought best to have the ordinance in addition to the permission given by the aldermen. The company is anxious to have the work done as quickly as possible, but it takes, as he understood it, much more time to lay a conduit for high-tension wires than for telephone wires, as the wires must insulate the wires and ducts.

Questioned as to when a start could be made and the desirability of fixing a time for starting, Mr. Sheffield said he did not know whether the material needed was all on hand and it would be only an attempt to start before the material is here to push the work to completion. A start could be made at the power house, but there could be no progress until the material for the work is received. He suggested that perhaps the work could be completed to Spring street before June 1. If no real progress could be made on Spring street the work would then better shut down until after the season.

Mayor Boyle said that seemed reasonable. It is undesirable to have the Spring Street sidewalk torn up during the summer.

Mr. Kirby asked if 50 per cent of the work could be done before June 1. Mr. Sheffield could not say. He did say the matter of excavation was the smallest part, and after the ducts are laid comes the longest part of the work. All the conditions made by the Aldermen were agreed to and were to be looked out for.

The ordinance as amended was then approved by the board and recommended to the Council at its meeting in the evening.

FURTHER NAVY ECONOMY.

Schedules to Buy Stores for Vessels and Shore Use in Large Quantities.

Further economy in the navy is to be effected by the method of purchasing the supplies of ship's stores for the vessels of the Atlantic fleet. A schedule is now being prepared in the bureau of supplies and accounts, in order to buy the usual variety of articles in sufficient quantities to meet the demands for one year not only on board the vessels of the Atlantic fleet but of the Pacific fleet as well. The schedule will include supplies needed for the commissary stores on shore at the yards. In this way it will be possible to buy certain lines of standard articles which do not deteriorate in larger quantities than when purchased for the ship's stores. The articles will be issued as needed to ships for sale in the canteens.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALASKA.

Sealed Vault of Great Wealth to be Opened by Building of Railroads.

Government Lines to Connect Open Pacific Harbors With Navigable Waters in the Interior.

With a gold pen whose handle was an Alaskan mastodon tooth more than 50,000 years old, there was signed the Alaska railroad bill which will open that sealed vault of great wealth to the world. The sum of $1,0000,000 is made available at once by the new law, and preliminary work will be begun as soon as possible. In fact, tentative plans will be so located as to connect one or more of the open Pacific harbors on the southern coast of Alaska with the navigable waters in the interior, and with such coal fields and agricultural sections as will best develop this magnificent territory. In other words, temperate Juneau, the capital, will shake hands with icy Fairbanks, and the rich Tanana valley within the Arctic circle will no longer be a remote inland empire hidden away from the rest of the world.

Secretary Lane expects that between four and five years will be required to have approximately 1,000 miles of railroad open for business. Construction will go on at both ends at the same time, eventually meeting at some central terminus. There will be no engineering difficulties to unduly delay experienced railroaders, but it must be remembered that the greater part of the project must be carried on under climatic conditions that permit of but six months' work a year. At the present time there are a little over 350 miles of privately owned railroads in Alaska. Some of these may be bought outright if the government cares to do so, or they can be paralleled, or wholly ignored. Some of these little independent railroads will not be needed at all, because they are maintained by private corporations to develop their own mines. The railroads there now are the Alaska Northern Railway Company, Cooper River and Northwestern railway, the Tanana Mines railway, the White Pass and Yukon railway and the Dawson railway. An automobile company operates in opposition to the Tanana line from Fairbanks to the mines, a distance of 45 miles.

The construction and operation by the federal government of all necessary telephone and telegraph lines are authorized by the Alaska railway bill. Later these may be leased wholly or in part, as the President may see fit. Full power is also given the chief magistrate or his duly designated assistants to withdraw, locate or otherwise dispose of as much public land, wherever found, as may be needed for rights of way, terminals, etc. The act further demands that all land patents made over to private persons or corporations in the future shall reserve to the United States 100 feet on either side of the centre line of any railway that might choose to run through the land and 25 feet on either side of the centre line of any telephone or telegraph lines.

All this takes the national government into the business of building, owning and operating railways, telephones and telegraphs. It is a small beginning, but its effect on the future control of our vast networks of transportation lines and wires of communication may be great. By the advocates of government ownership the comparative ease with which the bill passed both houses of Congress is regarded as a reflection of the temper of the people. However, the bill empowers the President to lease any of the lines or all of them, together with the telegraph or telephone systems, wholly or in part, to private ...

FOR OVER 20 YEARS
NEWPORT'S LEADERS IN READY-TO-WEAR APPAREL
FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

Things you ought to know about the New Fashions

In the new suits, tango and Labrador blue take the lead in color, with sage green, Copenhagen and tete-de negre as close seconds. Checks and navy blues are also in demand.

The styles of Suits are with Eaton effect front with long swallow back and raglan sleeves. This particular style was one of the first to be imported into this country. But do not imagine that all this season's styles are "freaky." In great abundance do we show handsome tailored garments with set in sleeves and fuller skirts.

Balmaccan and Sport Coats come in domestic wool mixtures and wool homespuns in plain colors, neat checks and handsome plaids.

Raglans with the new ripple bottom effect, collar and cuffs set off with silk moire.

Pretty Dancing Frocks for the Easter ball and dansant—never a better showing in our parlors, and one thing is positive—there are no two dresses alike. The color and design you have, had in mind are here waiting for you at a much less price than you had expected to pay for it.

A Very Stylish Glove this season is the "Slip on," made deep at wrist with gusset set in, fastens with a strap and large button.

There will be more Silk Hosiery worn this spring than ever before; bright colors predominate.

In our showing of New Waists there are many new styles, one of which comes in white and all bright colors, cut low neck, round collar, and fastens with cord and tassel.

Tango Pantalets are very much in demand for the narrow skirts. They are ankle length finished with a pleated ruffle. Crepe-de-chine and messaline for evening wear, sateen for ordinary wear.

Camesoles, of fine laces and novelty nets.

Fichus, Chemisettes, Lace Collars and "Nifty" Neckwear in an array of new creations.

OF COURSE, YOU'VE SIMPLY GOT TO HAVE SOMETHING NEW FOR EASTER.

To secure all the style, service, satisfaction and good value, to which you are entitled in your clothes, you had better come to this store, where the newest and best of everything women and girls wear can be had in qualities you like, at prices you will be pleased to pay.

FENCE AND SHANTY ELIMINATED.

Outside Notices Ruled Out of the Fatal Risso Accident Case.

Testimony as to the Facts Completed; Hearing as to Compensation Later.

Judge Barrows in the superior court barely finished hearing the testimony in the Risso workmen's compensation case Monday afternoon in time to seek quick transit to the train. Mr. Levy raised some matters which seemed to be material.

Before this was taken up, Assistant Attorney General Ham being present for the state, Messrs. Nolan and Sullivan presented the motion for new trial of the case against Jonathan Munro and Edward Sutton. The court denied the motion. He also refused to raise the bail.

In the Risso case Mr. Foster, being re-called, said the only notice posted was, for some time before the killing of Risso, in the office. He said no coats were hung over this notice.

Herbert E. Nason testified in regard to seeing the notice, as did Patrick J. Fogarty, a carpenter on the job.

It developed that the "notice" posted is not a copy of the notice filed as the law requires. The court said this is a serious point and reserved his decision upon it.

Timothy F. Leary took the stand. He was employed by the contractors, about the latter part of July, as night watchman. Was there until the day of the accident. His hours were from 5 p. m. to 7 a. m. There was a fence—three strips—in sections. There were three shanties there—office on Stone street, tool shed on Spring street and shed on the Bryer land. His work was to pick up tools, and go about the premises generally. Shown the "notice" said to have been posted by the superintendent, Mr. Leary said he never saw it there.

Marion Joe Maderios was called, James Hammett, another Portuguese, was called as interpreter. Being cross-examined by counsel for the contractors, he was found entirely disinterested and was accepted. Through Mr. Hammett witness testified that he knew Risso, worked there before, and until two weeks after Risso was killed, carrying mortar. There was a fence on Stone street; he kept his clothes in the tool shed on Spring street, going there every morning. He went to the office on Stone street, morning and afternoon. Did not see the "notice" on the fence, or on the shanty on Spring street, or a paper like it anywhere around the job. Cannot read.

Sarco Pietro, another employe, testified that he went on the job soon after the start and was there until after Risso was killed. He was "staging man" and "handy man." The "fence" was put up every night; sometimes it was taken down mornings. Went to the office frequently; never saw a paper like the "notice" on the fence, or on the shanty on the Bryer land; did see one inside the office, where not all the men were allowed to go; rainy days he would loaf in the office. Others went to the other shanty or went home. Witness knew Risso well—for seven years. His work was inside the building, not like witness's. There were no notices inside the building.

Grunotti Salvatore was called; he required an Italian interpreter, and Pietro was utilized. Witness was on this job nearly two months before Risso was killed; was water boy. He often was in front of the office, but did not go in. Does not read English. Did not see the "notice" on the fence or shanty or anywhere about the place. He is 16 years old and eight months in this country.

James Hammett then testified. He is 13 years in Newport. He was on the job two and a half weeks when Risso was killed, and worked a week after. Was a hod carrier and masons' tender. Went three times daily to the Spring Street shanty. Was sent on errands to the office quite often, but was inside only three times. There was no fence when he went to work, and no notice on Stone street; he saw none inside the office.

Constantine Marcelli testified that he went on the job before and was there until after Risso was killed. He helped the rigger on iron work, inside the building; then worked outside. Went to the shanty but two or three times, as on rainy days. He saw no "notice" on Stone street, or in the shanty. Went in the office about once a week; men were not allowed to "hang around" in there. He never saw the "notice," in the office. The only sign he saw was not to smoke on the job.

Marcus Angello was accommodated by still another interpreter of Italian. He worked on the job till a few days after it started to the close. Worked on pick and shovel. (The court ruled that the notices on the fence and Bryer shanty was out of the case, and it was so agreed.) Witness said he never went in the office before Risso was killed; the men were not allowed in there on rainy days. When the work was nearly done there was a "notice" in the office; he saw it there about the middle of January, not before Risso was killed.

In cross-examination witness said he had a talk with some man in the office, couldn't tell if it was December 5. All he could say was there were many signs around and he saw the "notice" when the job was nearly ended. He does not read English.

Karl Cornelius testified that he worked on the job six weeks, from some time in August. Was derrick man. He went into the office if he needed anything. Saw no "notice" in the office.

Martin Hord testified that he worked on the job from about August 1 to the middle of October, as foreman carpenter. Several times a day he was in the office; men were not allowed to hang around in there, they did their business through a window from the outside. "Was there any notice of that kind in that office?" "No, sir; not to my knowledge." Witness was positive the "no smoking" sign was not on the outside of the building, and that there was no "notice" posted on the inside of the office, as shown in the photograph, while he was on the job.

John Sherman, carpenter, testified that he was on the job from its start until January. We went to the office as occasion required, sometimes three or four times a day. Took no notice of what was there. There was a "notice" there. He saw it first, two weeks after his attention was called to it; that is, about three weeks after Risso was killed; never saw it there before Risso was killed.

Patrick Grady, night watchman from October 4 to about the middle of November, testified. Was in and out of the office. The notice was in the office when he went there.

Mr. Levy rested.

Mr. Foster was re-called and said Angello said the "notice" had been in the office since he was on the job. Angello did not speak English well; witness could understand him and had no reason to suppose that he did not understand what was said to him.

As to compensation, some time after April 20 evidence as to that may be introduced in Providence.

At 5 o'clock the court adjourned to meet again according to law.

MRS. WHITNEY WINS.

Art Prizes Awarded at Opening of Women's Exhibition in New York.

The judges of the twenty-third annual exhibition of the Association of Women Painters and Sculptors announced their selections for four cash prizes at the opening of the exhibition in New York Monday afternoon. The recipients are Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mary Helen Carlisle, Helen Watson Phelps and Olga Popoff Muller.

Mrs Whitney recieved the National Arts Club prize of $100, which is presented by John G. Agar for the best work in the exhibition. Her marble fountain, for which the award was made, won an honorable mention at the last salon in Paris.

The Emerson McMillan landscape prize of $100 was awarded to "High noon, California," a panel of a brilliant field of flowers by Mary Helen Carlisle. The Elizabeth Nichols Watrous figure prize of $50 was conferred upon Helen Watson Phelps for her "Copper and Gold" and the sculpture prize, also $50, was given to Olga Popoff Muller for a figure entitled "Primitive Man."

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is a member of the association, and has entered a landscape in the exhibition. In all there are 94 paintings, eight miniatures and 20 pieces in the exhibition. They will remain in the galleries of Knoedler & Co. until April 18.

SPEED SECOND TO NONE.

The Resolute, Model Cup Craft, to be Launched Soon at Herreshoff's.

The principal dimensions of the Vanderbilt syndicate cup defender Resolute, within a week or 10 days of being launched at Herreshoffs, have been disclosed, although the most rigid care was taken to keep them a secret as well as other important details of the cup craft, which is regarded now as a boat second to none for speed. They show a sloop of modern design with overhangs in keeping with the Herreshoff idea of developing the speed of the modern-built racing yacht.

The dimensions are as follows. Length over all, 104 feet; load water line length, 74 feet 10½ inches; breadth of beam, 23 feet 10 inches; natural draught without centreboard, 13 feet 10 inches; with the centreboard lowered from the keel, just under 22 feet.

The difference between the dimensions of the extreme-type sloop Reliance of 1905 and the Resolute is noticeable, though showing that the forward and after overhangs in the Resolute are conforming to a safe and sane policy in the building of racing yachts. While there was a difference in the Reliance's length over all and her water line length of 54 feet 6 inches, the difference in such dimensions on the Resolute, according to the figures obtained, is about 30 feet.

FOR NAVAL PROMOTIONS.

Difficulties in "Running Mate" Idea Settled by the Department.

It is understood in Washington that the difficulties over the adoption of the "running mate" scheme of promotion for naval staff officers in the Navy Department's personnel reform program have been settled by the substitution of a modified scheme which provides for "running mate promotion," except to the grades of captain and commander. In those grades the staff officers will never be more than 10 per cent of the total commissioned personnel in the grade of captain and 15 per cent in the grade of commander.

Military titles will be given to all officers in the staff corps. They will not be promted from captains to the next higher grade, although their pay and allowances will increase to and within the next higher grade with the running mate. It is also expected that there will be created an active reserve list for the staff corps with two per cent of the commissioned personnel to be transferred to such list every year. This will place upon the active reserve list each year five officers of the pay corps, six of the medical corps, two of the construction corps and one civil engineer.

For the line the program agreed upon provides a total commissioned personnel of about 2,000 with 700 on an active reserve list ultimately. Of the higher grades there are to be four vice admirals, 20 rear admirals, 80 captain, 140 commanders and 320 lieutenant commanders.

Only a sufficient number of graduates of the Naval Academy will be accepted each year to fill existing vacancies. The other midshipmen will receive a years' pay and be dismissed, although it will probably be arranged that they will be afforded opportunity to enter the marine corps or one of the four staff corps.

ALL KINDS OF WEATHER.

March Treated Rhode Island to Nine Clear Days and 10.3 Inches Snowfall.

The meteorological summary of the Block Island Weather Bureau Station for the month of March reveals the fact that Rhode Island was treated to nine clear days during that period, nine partly cloudy, and the remaining 13 "cloudy." During six days the presence of fog was also noted.

Another significant fact is that the wind, blowing from the east, reached and maintained for five minutes a velocity of 84 miles per hour on the first day of the month, which was also cloudy. The last day day of the month marked the highest temperature, with an official record of 60 degrees.

From this point the record of temperature varied, and March 21 reached its lowest, with a register of 21 degrees. A snowfall of 10.3 inches during the month proved one of the heaviest for years, and the total precipitation was recorded as 3.45 inches. The prevailing direction of the wind was southwest, with an average hourly velocity of 19.4 miles.

Becoming tired of his lot, he decided to try his fortune elsewhere.

FENCE AND SHANTY ELIMINATED.

Outside Notices Ruled Out of the Fatal Risso Accident Case.

Testimony as to the Facts Completed; Hearing as to Compensation Later.

Judge Barrows in the superior court barely finished hearing the testimony in the Risso workmen's compensation case Monday afternoon in time to seek quick transit to the train. Mr. Levy raised some matters which seemed to be material.

Before this was taken up, Assistant Attorney General Ham being present for the state, Messrs. Nolan and Sullivan presented the motion for new trial of the case against Jonathan Munro and Edward Sutton. The court denied the motion. He also refused to raise the bail.

In the Risso case Mr. Foster, being re-called, said the only notice posted was, for some time before the killing of Risso, in the office. He said no coats were hung over this notice.

Herbert E. Nason testified in regard to seeing the notice, as did Patrick J. Fogarty, a carpenter on the job.

It developed that the "notice" posted is not a copy of the notice filed as the law requires. The court said this is a serious point and reserved his decision upon it.

Timothy F. Leary took the stand. He was employed by the contractors, about the latter part of July, as night watchman. Was there until the day of the accident. His hours were from 5 p. m. to 7 a. m. There was a fence—three strips—in sections. There were three shanties there—office on Stone street, tool shed on Spring street and shed on the Bryer land. His work was to pick up tools, and go about the premises generally. Shown the "notice" said to have been posted by the superintendent, Mr. Leary said he never saw it there.

Marion Joe Maderios was called. James Hammett, another Portuguese, was called as interpreter. Being cross-examined by counsel for the contractors, he was found entirely disinterested and was accepted. Through Mr. Hammett witness testified that he knew Risso; worked there before, and until two weeks after Risso was killed, carrying mortar. There was a fence on Stone street; he kept his clothes in the tool shed on Spring street, going there every morning. He went to the office on Stone street, morning and afternoon. Did not see the "notice" on the fence, or on the shanty on Spring street, or a paper like it anywhere around the job. Cannot read.

Sarco Pietro, another employe, testified that he went on the job soon after the start and was there until after Risso was killed. He was "staging man" and "handy man." The "fence" was put up every night; sometimes it was taken down mornings. Went to the office frequently; never saw a paper like the "notice" on the fence, or on the shanty on the Bryer land; did see one inside the office, where not all the men were allowed to go; rainy days he would loaf in the office. Others went to the other shanty or went home. Witness knew Risso well—for seven years. His work was inside the building, not like witness's. There whre no notices inside the building.

Gianotti Salvatore was called; he required an Italian interpreter, and Pietro was utilized. Witness was on this job nearly two months before Risso was killed; was water boy. He often was in front of the office, but did not go in. Does not read English. Did not see the "notice" on the fence or shanty or anywhere about the place. He is 16 years old and eight months in this country.

James Hammett then testified. He is 13 years in Newport. He was on the job two and a half weeks when Risso was killed, and worked a week after. Was a hod carrier and masons' tender. Went three times daily to the Spring Street shanty. Was sent on errands to the office quite often, but was inside only three times. There was no fence when he went to work, and no notice on Stone street; he saw none inside the office.

Constantine Marcelli testified that he went on the job before and was there until after Risso was killed. He helped the rigger on iron work, inside the building; then worked outside. Went to the shanty but two or three times, as on rainy days. He saw no "notice" on Stone street, or in the shanty. Went in the office about once a week; men were not allowed to "hang around" in there. He never saw the "notice" in the office. The only sign he saw was not to smoke on the job.

Marcus Angello was accommodated by still another interpreter of Italian. He worked on the job till a few days after it started to the close. Worked on pick and shovel. (The court ruled that the notices on the fence and Bryer shanty was out of the case, and it was so agreed.) Witness said he never went in the office before Risso was killed; the men were not allowed in there on rainy days. When the work was nearly done there was a "notice" in the office; he saw it there about the middle of January, not before Risso was killed.

In cross-examination witness said he had a talk with some man in the office; couldn't tell if it was December 5. All he could say was there were many signs around and he saw the "notice" when the job was nearly ended. He does not read English.

Karl Cornelius testified that he worked on the job six weeks, from some time in August. Was derrick man. He went into the office if he needed anything. Saw no "notice" in the office.

Martin Hord testified that he worked on the job from about August 1 to the middle of October, as foreman carpenter. Several times a day he was in the office; men were not allowed to hang around in there; they did their business through a window from the ouside. "Was there any notice of that kind in that office?" "No, sir; not to my knowledge." Witness was positive the "no smoking" sign was not on the outside of the building, and that there was no "notice" posted on the inside of the office, as shown in the photograph, while he was on the job.

John Sherman, carpenter, testified that he was on the job from its start until January. We went to the office as occasion required, sometimes three or four times a day. Took no notice of what was there. There was a "notice" there. He saw it first, two weeks after his attention was called to it; that is, about three weeks after Risso was killed; never saw it there before Risso was killed.

Patrick Grady, night watchman from October 4 to about the Middle of November, testified. Was in and out of the office. The notice was in the office when he went there.

Mr. Levy rested.

Mr. Foster was re-called and said Angello said the "notice" had been in the office since he was on the job Angello did not speak English well; witness could understand him and had no reason to suppose that he did not understand what was said to him.

As to compensation, some time after April 20 evidence as to that may be introduced in Providence.

At 5 o'clock the court adjourned to meet again according to law.

MRS. WHITNEY WINS.

Art Prizes Awarded at Opening of Women's Exhibition in New York.

The judges of the twenty-third annual exhibition of the Association of Woman Painters and Sculptors announced their selections for four cash prizes at the opening of the exhibition in New York Monday afternoon. The recipients are Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mary Helen Carlisle, Helen Watson Phelps and Olga Popoff Muller.

Mrs Whitney recieved the National Arts Club prize of $100, which is presented by John G. Agar for the best work in the exhibition. Her marble fountain, for which the award was made, won an honorable mention at the last salon in Paris.

The Emerson McMillan landscape prize of $100 was awarded to "High noon, California," a panel of a brilliant field of flowers by Mary Helen Carlisle. The Elizabeth Nichols Watrous figure prize of $50 was conferred upon Helen Watson Phelps for her "Copper and Gold" and the sculpture prize, also $50, was given to Olga Popoff Muller for a figure entitled "Primitive Man."

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is a member of the association, and has entered a landscape in the exhibition. In all there are 94 paintings, eight miniatures and 26 pieces in the exhibition. They will remain in the galleries of Knoedler & Co. until April 18.

SPEED SECOND TO NONE.

The Resolute, Model Cup Craft, to be Launched Soon at Herreshoff's.

The principal dimensions of the Vanderbilt syndicate cup defender Resolute, within a week or 10 days of being launched at Herreshoffs, have been disclosed, although the most rigid care was taken to keep them a secret as well as other important details of the cup craft, which is regarded now as a boat second to none for speed. They show a sloop of modern design with overhangs in keeping with the Herreshoff idea of developing the speed of the modern-built racing yacht.

The dimensions are as follows: Length over all, 104 feet; load water line length, 74 feet 10½ inches; breadth of beam, 23 feet 10 inches; natural draught without centreboard, 13 feet 10 inches; with the centreboard lowered from the keel, just under 22 feet.

The difference between the dimensions of the extreme-type sloop Reliance of 1905 and the Resolute is noticeable, though showing that the forward and after overhangs in the Resolute are conforming to a safe and sane policy in the building of racing yachts. While there was a difference in the Reliance's length over all and her water line length of 54 feet 6 inches, the difference in such dimensions on the Resolute, according to the figures obtained, is about 30 feet.

FOR NAVAL PROMOTIONS.

Difficulties in "Running Mate" Idea Settled by the Department.

It is understood in Washington that the difficulties over the adoption of the "running mate" scheme of promotion for naval staff officers in the Navy Department's personnel reform program have been settled by the substitution of a modified scheme which provides for "running mate promotion," except to the grades of captain and commander. In those grades the staff officers will never be more than 10 per cent of the total commissioned personnel in the grade of captain and 15 per cent in the grade of commander.

Military titles will be given to all officers in the staff corps. They will not be promted from captains to the next higher grade, although their pay and allowances will increase to and within the next higher grade with the running mate. It is also expected that there will be created an active reserve list for the staff corps with two per cent of the commissioned personnel to be transferred to such list every year. This will place upon the active reserve list each year five officers of the pay corps, six of the medical corps, two of the construction corps and one civil engineer.

For the line the program agreed upon provides a total commissioned personnel of about 2,000 with 700 on an active reserve list ultimately. Of the higher grades there are to be four vice admirals, 20 rear admirals, 80 capain, 140 commanders and 320 lieutenant commanders.

Only a sufficient number of graduates of the Naval Academy will be accepted each year to fill existing vacancies. The other midshipmen will receive a years' pay and be dismissed, although it will probably be arranged that they will be afforded opportunity to enter the marine corps or one of the four staff corps.

ALL KINDS OF WEATHER.

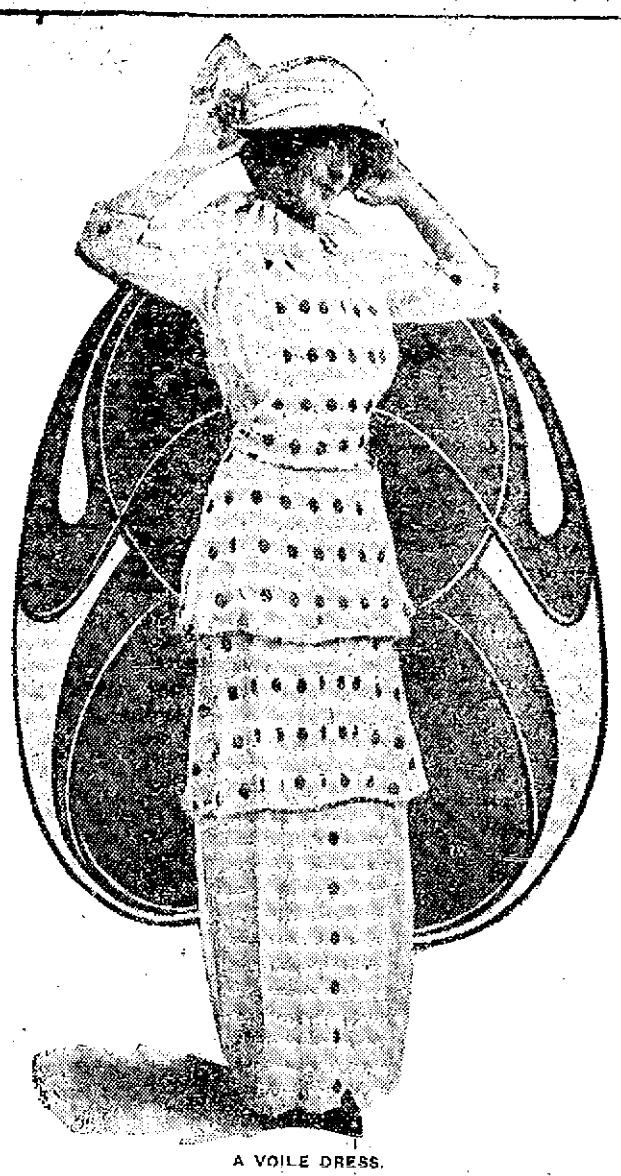

March Treated Rhode Island to Nine Clear Days and 10.3 Inches Snowfall.

The meteorlogical summary of the Block Island Weather Bureau Station for the month of March reveals the fact that Rhode Island was treated to nine clear days during that period, nine partly cloudy, and the remaining 13 "cloudy." During six days the presence of fog was also noted.

Another significant fact is that the wind, blowing from the east, reached and maintained for five minutes a velocity of 84 miles per hour on the first day of the month, which was also cloudy. The last day day of the month marked the highest temperature, with an official record of 50 degrees.

From this point the record of temperature varied, and March 21 reached its lowest, with a register of 21 degrees. A snowfall of 10.3 inches during the month proved one of the heaviest for years, and the total precipitation was recorded as 3.45 inches. The prevailing direction of the wind was southwest, with an average hourly velocity of 10.4 miles.

And you shall go whirling away so grand

With the little sleep goblins you're going to play,
Laugh and romp till it's once more day
Away in Slumber Land.

Come away, baby, to Slumber Land.
Here comes the Sand Man to close your eyes,
Soon you'll be joining that happy band
Where it's always laughs and it's never cries.
There'll be wonderful places there to view,
Roses to kiss you all dipped in dew—
Ah, baby dear, how I envy you—
Away in Slumber Land.

EXCLUSIVE ASSOCIATED PRESS SERVICE FOR NEWPORT

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE
The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station

UP TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY NOW

Even though the Representative Council has asked the legislature to grant permission for issuing four additional liquor licenses in this city it does not necessarily follow that the General Assembly will take favorable action upon the request. That remains to be seen. If the members can be shown as will be easy enough the real situation they may decide adversely. That situation is in brief First Newport has already enough licenses under the present law. Second it is not necessary to increase the number in order to provide for the summer [illegible] the whole present situation is the outcome of a deliberate [illegible] the License Commission to grant the full number of regular licenses and then ask for more on the [illegible] that otherwise the summer places would be shut out thus enabling the Commission to grant more than the legal number [illegible]. Under such circumstances it is the plain duty of the Assembly [illegible] to grant the petition

THE NEW COMMISSIONERS

[illegible] nominated to be member[s] of the Interstate Commerce Commission [illegible] that they were [illegible] of course political [illegible] opponents of the corporations. It was for this reason that Senator Martine of the President's state [illegible] as a farmer and a friend [illegible] the nomination of Mr Daniels of his own and the President's state. The other New Jersey Senator supported the nomination and it has been confirmed

Certainly the Interstate Commerce Commission ought not to be organized like a drumhead court martial to con[vict] Owners of railroads are entitled to consideration as well as shippers. Considering the importance of the railroads as employers of labor and as purchasers of materials it might well be argued that their interests are more important to the community than those of the shippers. Doubtless the interests of the shippers are diffused [illegible]

NURSING AS [illegible]

birth and it is doubtless true that if they should all leave at the same time those institutions would be badly handicapped

It is strange that comparatively few American girls take up this profession which is dignified and remunerative and affords almost unequaled opportunities for service. It would seem as though such an occupation would be attractive but it does not appear to be so. Instead of preparing for this work most girls here prefer to become clerks or stenographers though they seldom obtain anything like as good a living. It is probably to some extent true that the long course of training which nurses must take fails to appeal to young women who are looking for an occupation. That is a matter for consideration doubtless with many because of the length of time required for preparation for the profession. Yet it is not so long as is necessary for some others and the rewards after the training period is ended ought to out-weigh that phase of the situation unless it is absolutely impossible for one to engage in the preparation for lack of means of subsistence during that time. Aside from that feature of the profession it is one which should appeal to many young women as worthy their efforts and affording excellent scope for the exercise of their talents

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS

The list of centres where federal reserve banks will be established has given satisfaction to [the] cities in the United States but the distribution of the country among as many districts has probably not even pleased the 12. Yet it is extremely doubtful if a better list except as to two points or possibly three could have been made

New York desired Connecticut and northern New Jersey and probably these districts would have preferred New York to Boston in the one case and Philadelphia in the other. Yet nothing was clearer than the determination of Congress to reduce the importance of New York and this has been done. Nevertheless the commercial importance of the metropolis will oblige banks to keep some of their funds there which are not count[ed] as their reserves

It is unjust to Secretary Houston [to] attribute to his influence the naming of two reserve cities in Missouri. Any list of 12 must have included St Louis and the only question is about Kansas City. Denver had some claim to be selected on account of its position between the Missouri river and the Pacific slope but as a banking centre Kansas City is about five times as important as Denver

Baltimore is a much more important city than Richmond but Philadelphia could not be left out and Baltimore is near that city. Richmond is tolerably central for the South Atlantic. New Orleans has some ground of complaint but Atlanta has nearly as large a banking business and is more central. Dallas is not a great centre of trade but New Orleans being included in the Atlanta district Dallas is a little more central for the rest of the Southwest than Galveston

Geography as well as banking statistics were to be considered and while the list might have been bettered a little it comes about as near as any could to affording all parts of the country equal access to a federal reserve bank. The two smallest will have capitals of nearly $4 000 000 and the next two over $5 000 000. The new system will effect a large measure of banking concentration without centralization

THE LESSON OF MARKET SHOWS

Perhaps at first blush it might not be thought that a market show would have any great attraction or succeed in drawing a large crowd of spectators from among the youth of what might well be called the slums of a city. On consideration however it is easy to understand why such an exhibition in reality attracts children and they are among the most appreciative and discriminating of all who attend. The reason is simple for these children with comparatively few exceptions are the marketers of the families of which they are members. It may seem strange to some not familiar with the conditions in the homes of the poor that children so young should be trusted with the family marketing but it is necessary [illegible] in most cases which [illegible] the buying. The [illegible] older children are at work and the duty of purchasing the supplies thus falls upon shoulders which [illegible] well adapted to the responsibility

[illegible] accounts for the fact [illegible] crowding to see such a show and showing discriminating comparison with the differences between [illegible] markets and those kept [illegible] sanitary condition. In many places where exhibitions of this kind [illegible] have been con[ducted] [illegible] successful because of the [illegible] in these youthful [illegible] have not [illegible] appreciate the advantage [illegible] sanitary point of view of a [illegible] a few cases have gone forth and made a crusade [illegible] unsanitary conditions or have [illegible] transferred their patronage [illegible] which were dirty. Such [illegible] with which and encourag[ing] [illegible] under whose direction the exhibitions are held. They indicate [illegible] generation will be more [illegible] about the conditions in the places where they do their shopping [illegible] will insist on better attention [illegible] cleanliness which is the object in holding these market shows

The Senate committee on inter[oceanic] [illegible] has wisely decided [illegible] [illegible] possess [illegible]

tion of the bill to repeal the exemption for the American ships passing through the canal. How long the committee will deliberate on the issue before making a report no one is willing to predict but administration leaders let it be known that any effort to prolong the preliminary consideration will be opposed. Opponents of the repeal will insist however that there will be no effort to delay in committee

The sad news comes from Washington that the law limiting women to an eight-hour day will strike the Easter hat business a solar plexus blow. The milliners cannot obtain enough workers to turn out all the hats needed for Easter if they stick to only eight hours a day and the corporation counsel tells them that if they work their help more than that even for Easter hats they are liable to prosecution. What will the women do now poor things?

The action of the Representative Council on the proposed change in the plans for Third Street improvement was the only thing possible under the circumstances. The city was already fully committed in this matter, and its formal agreement with the United States government could not in justice or decency be broken. The later proposition was ill timed. As the situation has recently developed the boulevard plans can well afford to wait until a later date

Secretary of War Garrison will not follow Secretary Daniels's example by prohibiting liquor drinking in the army. When asked if he proposed to issue a similar order he replied "When I was a boy my father pointed out to me a man who got rich through minding his own business. I have always tried to follow his example." Is this a slap at Daniels?

The result of the primaries in Alabama for the Senatorial nomination will ensure the retention of Oscar W Underwood the present Democratic House leader in the public service. The retirement of so forceful and able a man would have been a real loss to the party and the nation

A marriage by an Englishman within three hours after he secured a divorce from his first wife is almost as notable a record as has been made in this country. It was not to be expected in Great Britain

The new Senator from Alabama will not be Hobson's choice. It proved harder to bottle up Underwood than it did the Spanish ships at Santiago

It hardly seems possible that it is five years ago that Peary reached the North Pole

AMATEURS DROWN OUT WIRELESS MESSAGES

[Christian Herald]

There are fully 50 000 amateurs [illegible] in and that makes trouble all along the coast the wireless operator explained. When there is a large group of them near by—say within a radius of 100 miles of us—they drown out the long distance or set messages [illegible] had in fact [illegible] we can't count on long distance work [illegible] until after midnight when the boys have gone to bed and left the air clear for us. Then too some of the amateurs are practical jokers and their humor may prove [d]isastrous. If a fake distress signal is sent out there is no way to prove its a fake. On the other hand a boy near Washington the other night picked up a real distress message from a ship at sea that the big stations had missed

VOICE TO GO ROUND THE WORLD.

Marconi Practically Solves the Problem of Wireless or Radio Telephony.

Stations Already Established Which Communicate from Three to Four Hundred Miles.

Engineers do not in the least doubt Marconi's 'wireless from Italy that the problem of wireless (or radio) telephony has been practically solved." They could scarcely be more entirely convinced had his wireless come via electric waves in the tones of his own voice. Even Nicola Tesla, who from experiment is possessed of certainties that certainly equip him to be an accurate forecaster in matters not long ago deemed incredible, declares "We surely are on the eve of the transmission of the voice across the world without wires—not merely signals but the spoken word. Not only that but the transmission of power and not only the transmission of power—all these things are wrapped up in the wireless transmission of 'energy'—but the wireless transmission of light to isolated places. Ten years ago I wrote in the Electrical Engineer after I had sent an impulse straight through the earth and saw its return recorded, these words

"When the great truth accidentally revealed and experimentally confirmed is fully recognized that this planet with its appalling immensity is to electric currents virtually no more than a small metal ball and that by virtue of this fact many possibilities each baffling imagination and of incalculable consequences are rendered absolutely sure of accomplishment when the first plant is inaugurated and it is shown that a telegraphic message almost as secret and non interferable as thought, can be transmitted to any terrestrial distance the sound of the human voice with all its intonations and inflections faithfully reproduced at any other point of the globe the energy of a waterfall made available for supplying light, heat or motive power anywhere—on sea or land or high in air—humanity will be like an ant heap stirred up with a stick. See the excitements coming'

You are quickly going to see those excitements. When I started people called me a visionary a poet a composer who would like to record the music of the spheres and so on. Now they are tending to credit that Tesla saw straight only farther than most people. The same incredulousness met my visions' of the transmission of power. Now they know I can take a turbine measuring one foot by two and develop from it 5 000 horse power. Always when one individual tries to enforce a new idea there is some difficulty in getting heard—in philosophy or in science. People to me seem like a crowd rushing pell mell toward some relief and when one man lifts his hand and shouts 'This is the right road' they disregard him and keep blindly on till by and by they find themselves astray and say 'Well that fellow found the right road after all.' I've felt that if I had to choose between being a pioneer pathfinder or being a celebrity of the moment and a performer of easy wonders I should prefer to be a pioneer. I claim that nobody can acquire all the knowledge. While other men live and labor additions will be made to it and something will be continually left to others. The more experimenters the sooner the realization

Wireless telephony is here—but how stupid the wire telephone and telegraph people are about it! And why all this talk of government ownership of present telephone and telegraph when the government could be promoting wireless experimentation and development?

Tesla's attention was called to Marconi's message in which he said "My new radio-telephonic apparatus has already been adopted by the Italian navy and will shortly replace entirely all other kinds of signalling. Also he was reminded that Representative Steenerson of Minnesota had suggested in the Congress of the United States that the present method of communicating by wire would become obsolete in a few years and that as it would take a billion dollars to acquire control of the existing wire lines Mr Steenerson's suggestion might lead to an inquiry by the Postmaster General to determine the scientific status of radio communication

Said Tesla "Five or six years ago Paulsen telephoned through air 300 miles. There is now established at Nauhen Germany his station which can communicate from 300 to 400 miles and it is in daily operation. In his system his arc is used as a generator of high frequency current. A group of microphones in series, all contained in one mouthpiece, controls the antenna current either direct or by shunting a few turns of the main inductance. In Italy eight or nine months ago with modifications of my apparatus, Majoranna telephoned 600 miles. In his microphone liquid is the chief agent in controlling current

"Marconi's announcement is that he made the voice carry only 45 miles, but that he signalled 300 to 1 700 miles. Don't confound 'aerophony' with radio-telephony. One is simply a succession of makes and breaks, the same as in telegraphy, and staccato sounds are transmitted, except that those sounds made musical notes. Radio-telephony must carry the voice and be recognizable as speech instead of as signals. Once Marconi told the Royal Society we wouldn't have wireless telephony for 200 years. When a man begins to see possibilities he begins to be helpful. We are about to see tremendous developments. When proper plants are up the voice will fly around the world—and that time is not distant. From my station at Wardencliffe Long Island, I'm hoping to announce that I'm the first to send the voice around the world"

IN STAGE OF EVOLUTION.

Labrador's Industries Undeveloped and Game Unprotected.

The fish flesh and fowl of Labrador writes Dr Grenfell in the Wide World have been exploited to the last degree and no scientific or practical effort has been made for the protection or rehabilitation. Our auks curlew, ducks and many other birds have become either extinct or dangerously depleted. Our deer, owing to forest fires caused by carelessness and unrestricted slaughter by Indians as well as white settlers have so far diminished as to bring semi starvation to doors where once there was always plenty. The destruction of seal herds has brought families once affluent to miserable poverty. For some reason our unrivaled herring and mackerel have left us altogether. The salmon catch is only a shadow of what it once was and even the returns of our still valuable cod fishery shows increasing uncertainty in quantity and distribution. The growing number of trappers the lack of protection or the destruction of their food supplies have made the annual winter fur hunt insufficient to maintain in comfort all who prosecute it and that in spite of the immense increase in the price of pelts. Seals and whales are rapidly approaching a similar fate

No mines are yet opened no timber properties yet developed and no use is made of our unlimited water power. Only a handful of visitors come to enjoy the wild scenery the unique natural conditions and the invigorating atmosphere though our fjords rival those of Norway and have the additional attraction of being virgin and unexplored. No charting has been done and at that time as already stated there was not one light on the coast from the straits of Belle Isle to Hudson bay to render navigation safe. It is little to be wondered at if adequate tourist steamers do not ply in our waters. In fact Labrador is in that melancholy stage of evolution that must inevitably overtake every country until attention is turned to the development of industries that man does not share with the tiger and the shark

ORDINANCE APPROVED.

Formal Franchise for New Conduit Recommended by the Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen held a special meeting Monday evening, to take action on the ordinance granting to the street railway company permission to build a conduit. The board had already granted this permission, but the company desired a franchise by ordinance. Mayor Boyle presided and Aldermen Kirby, Hughes and Leddy were present with Mr. Sheffield, counsel for the road, and Superintendent Donohue.

The mayor read the draft of the ordinance prepared by Mr. Sheffield and asked how it differed from the grant already made. Alderman Hughes said it differed as to time. The grant called for the work to be done by May 1, the ordinance calls for any work not done by June 1 to be suspended until September 15. There were also limitations as to the method of doing work, subject to the approval of the superintendent of poles and wires and the street commissioner, the latter as the conduit is to run under the sidewalk. If this ordinance does not affect the conditions then fixed after consultation with Mr. Gosling it had no objections. The city clerk suggested that the provision in the ordinances that all work should be done to the satisfaction of the Board of Aldermen covered the matters spoken of by Alderman Hughes.

The provision that the ordinance should be accepted by the company within 30 days attracted the attention of the mayor, who thought that indicated unnecessary delay. Mr. Sheffield said it was simply to give the proper officials time to approve it; it could be changed to 10 days, and it was in regard to the other time, he said it was a question how much work could be done by June 1. It is not desirable to have Spring street torn up in summer, and the clause had been inserted that no work not permitted by the aldermen should be done between June 1 and September 15. As a matter of fact, it might be a year before the entire work of drawing the cables and wires through the conduit could be completed, and until that is done the work asked for is not complete. He said Mr. Gosling was sick or he would have been present. All the conditions suggested to him by the committee were to be complied with, but it was desired to have this put in the form of an ordinance.

The mayor thought it meant a special franchise for this conduit, and Mr. Sheffield said that in effect it was. The cost is very great, and it was thought best to have the ordinance in addition to the permission given by the aldermen. The company is anxious to have the work done as quickly as possible, but it takes, as he understood it, much more time to lay a conduit for high-tension wires than for telephone wires, as the ducts must insulate the wires and cables.

Questioned as to when a start could be made and the desirability of fixing a time for starting, Mr. Sheffield said he did not know whether the material needed was all on hand and it would be only an attempt to start before the material is here to push the work to completion. A start could be made at the power house, but there could be no progress until the material for the work is received. He suggested that perhaps the work could be completed to Spring street before June 1. If no real progress could be made on Spring street the work would then better shut down until after the season.

Mayor Boyle said that seemed reasonable. It is undesirable to have the Spring Street sidewalk torn up during the summer.

Mr. Kirby asked if 50 per cent of the work could be done before June 1. Mr. Sheffield could not say. He did say the matter of excavation was the smallest part, and after the ducts are laid comes the longest part of the work. All the conditions made by the Aldermen were agreed to and were to be looked out for.

The ordinance as amended was then approved by the board and recommended to the Council at its meeting in the evening.

FURTHER NAVY ECONOMY.

Schedules to Buy Stores for Vessels and Shore Use in Large Quantities.

Further economy in the navy is to be effected by the method of purchasing the supplies of ships stores for the vessels of the Atlantic fleet. A schedule is now being prepared in the bureau of supplies and accounts, in order to buy the usual variety of articles in sufficient quantities to meet the demands for one year not only on board the vessels of the Atlantic fleet but of the Pacific fleet as well. The schedule will include supplies needed for the commissary stores on shore at the yards. In this way it will be possible to buy certain lines of standard articles which do not deteriorate in large quantities than when purchased for the ship's stores. The articles will be issued as needed to ships for sale in the canteens.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALASKA.

Sealed Vault of Great Wealth to be Opened by Building of Railroads.

Government Lines to Connect Open Pacific Harbors With Navigable Waters in the Interior.

[Frederic J. Haskin, in Washington Star.]

With a gold pen whose handle was an Alaskan mastodon tooth more than 50,000 years old, there was signed the Alaska railroad bill which will open that sealed vault of great wealth to the world. Alaska, as a storehouse, should be unlocked, said the President in his special message to Congress, and a sharp outline in the development of the American continent will be the story of the task of an ancient Alaskan mammal transformed into the twentieth century key that drew wide the doors of a treasure house far exceeding the fabulous possessions of Croesus.

The act directs the President of the United States to build not more than 1,000 miles of railroad in Alaska, at a cost not to exceed $35,000,000. It is essentially the measure drawn up and introduced into the House of Representatives by James Wickersham, delegate from Alaska, a duplicate of which was simultaneously presented to the Senate by Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon. The only important change was the elimination of the clause which provided for the issuance of a bond issue. The money will be appropriated year by year by Congress and in this way the cost of interest and other charges incident to bonding will be saved. This is the method followed in part in financing the Panama Canal project, only a portion of the authorized bonds ever being offered for sale. The friends of the measure would have felt safer had the full $35,000,000 been provided for in a single authorized bond issue, but they anticipate no difficulty in inducing Congress to provide funds as they are needed.

Full authority and responsibility are vested in the President, as in the Panama act. He will name the line or lines to be built, approve surveys, type of construction, quality of material, select his own assistants, fix salaries and expenditures, and, in short, have the last word in everything pertaining to the proposed railroad. It is expected that the Secretary of the interior will be the cabinet officer personally charged with the administration, just as the Secretary of War has been the Presidential agent in the construction of the Panama canal. Going further, it is quite possible that one technical expert actually on the job will have powers equal to those exercised on the big ditch by Colonel Goethals. Who this man will be, and whether he will be chief engineer or chairman of a commission, or both, is a matter of the future.

The use in the Alaska project of engineers of the army and navy, or of any other branch of the federal government, is authorized by the act, and Congress directs that all available and suitable machinery and materials now in use on the Canal zone shall be transferred to Alaska, as they are no longer needed at Panama. The Isthmian canal commission is authorized to take credit for everything so delivered at a percentage fixed by the President, but this amount is not to be charged against the fund provided for in the act. In this way will be served the double purpose of utilizing a goodly portion of the expensive equipment and of giving almost immediate assistance to the far northern experiment.

The sum of $1,500,000 is made available at once by the new law, and preliminary work will be begun as soon as possible. In fact, tentative plans will be so located as to connect one or more of the open Pacific harbors on the southern coast of Alaska with the navigable waters in the interior, and with such coal fields and agricultural sections as will best develop this magnificent territory. In other words, temperate Juneau, the capital, will shake hands with icy Fairbanks, and the rich Tanana valley within the Arctic circle will no longer be a remote inland empire hidden away from the rest of the world.

Secretary Lane expects that between four and five years will be required to have approximately 1,000 miles of railroad open for business. Construction will go on at both ends at the same time, eventually meeting at some central terminus. There will be no engineering difficulties to unduly delay experienced railroaders, but it must be remembered that the greater part of the project must be carried on under climatic conditions that permit of but six months' work a year. At the present time there are a little over 350 miles of privately owned railroads in Alaska. Some of these may be bought outright if the government cares to do so, or they can be paralleled, or wholly ignored. Some of these little independent railroads will not be needed at all, because they are maintained by private corporations to develop their own mines. The railroads there now are the Alaska Northern Railway Company, Cooper River and Northwestern railway, the Tanana Mines railway, the White Pass and Yukon railway and the Dawson railway. An automobile company operates in opposition to the Tanana line from Fairbanks to the mines, a distance of 45 miles.

The construction and operation by the federal government of all necessary telephone and telegraph lines are authorized by the Alaska railway bill. Later these may be leased wholly or in part, as the President may see fit. Full power is also given the chief magistrate or his duly designated assistants to withdraw, locate or otherwise dispose of as much public land, wherever found, as may be needed for rights of way, terminals, etc. The act further demands that all land patents made over to private persons or corporations in the future shall reserve to the United States 100 feet on either side of the centre line of any railway that might choose to run through the land and 25 feet on either side of the centre line of any telephone or telegraph lines.

All this takes the national government into the business of building, owning and operating railways, telegraphs and telephones. It is a small venture but its effect on the future control of our vast networks of transportation lines and wires of communication may be great. By the advocates of government ownership the cooperative ease with which the bill passed both houses of Congress is heralded as a reflection of the temper of the people. However, the bill empowers the President to lease any of the lines or all of them, together with the telegraph or telephone systems, wholly or in part, to private

NEWPORT'S LEADERS IN READY-TO-WEAR APPAREL
FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

Things you ought to Know about the New Fashions

In the new suits, taupe and Labrador blue take the lead in color, with sage green, Copenhagen and tete-de negre as close seconds. Checks and navy blues are also in demand.

The styles of Suits are with Eaton effect front with long swallow back and raglan sleeves. This particular style was one of the first to be imported into this country. But do not imagine that all this season's styles are "freaky." In great abundance do we show handsome tailored garments with set in sleeves and fuller skirts.

Balmaccan and Sport Coats come in domestic wool mixtures and wool homespuns in plain colors, neat checks and handsome plaids.

Raglans with the new ripple bottom effect, collar and cuffs set off with silk moire.

Pretty Dancing Frocks for the Easter ball and dansant—never a better showing in our parlors, and one thing is positive—there are no two dresses alike. The color and design you have had in mind are here waiting for you at a much less price than you had expected to pay for it.

A Very Stylish Glove this season is the "Slip on," made deep at wrist with gusset set in, fastens with a strap and large button.

There will be more Silk Hosiery worn this spring than ever before; bright colors predominate.

In our showing of New Waists there are many new styles, one of which comes in white and all bright colors, cut low neck, round collar, and fastens with cord and tassel.

Tango Pantalets are very much in demand for the narrow skirts. They are ankle length finished with a pleated ruffle. Crepe-de-chine and messaline for evening wear, sateen for ordinary wear.

Camesoles, of fine laces and novelty nets.

Fichus, Chemisettes, Lace Collars and "Nifty" Neckwear in an array of new creations.

OF COURSE, YOU'VE SIMPLY GOT TO HAVE SOMETHING NEW FOR EASTER.

To secure all the style, service, satisfaction and good value, to which you are entitled in your clothes, you had better come to this store, where the newest and best of everything women and girls wear can be had in qualities you like, at prices you will be pleased to pay.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL THE LAST MINUTE TO GET YOUR EASTER CLOTHES.

BOTH POWERFUL WORKS.

"Song of Destiny" and "Song of Victory" Very Different in Character.

The Oratorio Society is on the eve of the last concert of the season, and with a larger orchestra and now instrumentation hopes to give the best in the series.

Two works will be given by the chorus—"Song of Destiny," by Johannes Brahms, and "A Song of Victory," op. 151, by Ferdinand Hiller. As the names indicate, the works are in strong contrast, as were the composers. Both were Germans, living in the nineteenth century; both were learned and successful, and the works of both are somewhat unfamiliar. Brahms, however, was virile, and attained vastness in all he did, while Hiller lacked strong individualism, though he produced works finished in form and pleasing. Brahms also was a master of form, but did not hesitate to deviate from conventional lines when it suited his artistic purpose.

Hiller has not before appeared on the Newport Oratorio Society's programs, but Brahms's name has been seen twice, his "Wher'er I Go" having been given December 7, 1911, at the first concert after its organization, and his "Rhapsodie," from Goethe's "Hartreise im Winter," op. 53 (called "a heavenly work"), having been sung by the male voices at the second concert, March 6, 1912, with Mrs. Sarah Bailey King as soloist.

The "Song of Destiny" is a short work—only 20 pages—but the dramatic scene shifts quickly with Brahms, and in it he brings out forcibly the contrast between the blessed abode of the divine spirits and the fate of the restless, grief-laden mortals who blindly wander from one sad hour to another. Hiller's "Song of Victory" is just that from start to finish—from the statement at the opening bar, "The Lord great wonders for us hath wrought," to the paean of praise and the "Hallelujah" at the close. While the compositions differ thus widely in character, each is a powerful work, and both will be heard with interest.

Make-Up of Teams for Bayside Club's Fifth Whist Tournament.

(Regular correspondence of the News.)

The members of the Bayside Club had a salad supper at their quarters on Knowles court Monday evening. Afterward partners were drawn and the first round in the fifth series of whist tournaments was played. The make-up of the teams was:

No. 1, Peter Blackwell and Alton Head, L. W Anthony and W. A. Clarke; W. S. Littlefield substitute.

No. 2, J. C. Tefft and G. D. Anthony, G. L. Chandler and Frederic Anthony; I. H. Clarke substitute.

No. 3, J. H. Tefft and A. A. Brown, Jacob Schleith and Alonzo Tefft; W. H. Brooks, substitute.

The score for the round: No. 1, 59; No. 2, 52; No. 3, 46.

Postmaster Caswell has received an order from the department officials that no steps be taken for establishing a trial free delivery of mail within the village, which was to have gone into effect May 1. That matter has been dropped and instead, commencing June 1, a rural free delivery route will be established on the island.

Dr. A. M. Mendenhall has returned from a short trip to New York.

The work of overhauling steamer Conanicut to put her in readiness for the summer commenced this morning.

Captain C. L. Champlin, who is at the Newport Hospital, has so far recovered as to be able to sit up a few minutes daily.

LEASED FOR TEA HOUSE.

Fifth Avenue Home of the Late Commodore William H. Vanderbilt.

The home of the late Commodore William H. Vanderbilt, at 379 Fifth avenue, New York, has been leased by Mrs. Marie Torrence Hadden to Miss Ida L. Frese, who will use the building after it is altered for a tea room. The house, which was occupied by Commodore Vanderbilt up to the time of his death, was purchased by him in 1875 for $70,000. It is one of the few remaining private dwelling houses on Fifth avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second streets. The lease is for a term of years from June 1 for an aggregate rental of about $500,000.

Mrs. Hadden, the present owner, is a granddaughter of the commodore. It was inherited by her from her mother. In the past few years many tempting offers for the sale or the lease of the property have been refused by Mrs. Hadden.

OSCAR F. SAGER DEAD.

Former Teacher and Organizer of Sloyd Classes in This City.

Mr. Oscar F. Sager, formerly teacher of sloyd in the Industrial School of this city, died at the Goddard Hospital at Brockton Monday, following an operation. He was a teacher of wide experience. Coming to Newport in November, 1893, he started the sloyd classes for the Industrial school in the old Farewell Street building, going later to the new building. He resigned June 10, 1895.

From Newport he went to the Brockton High School, to take charge of the manual training department, where he remained 11 years, retiring in 1907 to enter the architect business in Brockton. He was for several years a member of the school committee of that city. While a teacher in the Brockton high school Mr. Sager coached the football and base ball teams, and during that period Brockton High was represented by the best teams in its history. He developed such base ball stars as "Barney" Reilly, former Yale, Haverhill and Chicago American infielder, and Walter H. Snell of Brown, last year with the Boston Red Sox, and such football stars as Arthur E. Prides of Yale, Tom Barry, Ross Scudder "Spike" Dennie and Arthur Staff of Brown.

Mr. Sager was a member of Cornet Council Royal Arcanum, of this city, having joined the organization June 22, 1894, and retained his membership after leaving the city.

THE CAT NOT SATISFIED.

Contractor Harris this morning began the demolition of the old building on the police station site. It can be added tht Mr. Stevens's cat is down in his new office, but not at all satisfied. Some may be sceptical about the cat being in the new place, but there is a reason. The door is locked, and the best she can do is to look out of the window. She knows where the old shop is, and her heart seems to be there still.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Engineer steamer Cora has returned from Fall River.

—Captain William Champion is confined to his home by illness.

—On account of the storm, steamer Islander did not go to Block Island today.

—Mr. Charles C. Gardner who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Newport Hospital, is doing well.

—The auction sale of the Holm place on Howard street, set for today, has been postponed to Saturday.

—Steamer Senkaty, of the Martha's Vineyard-Nantucket line, has arrived at the repair shops for an overhauling.

—Captain O'Neill of tug Solicitor found a stray torpedo off Fort Adams Saturday and returned it to the Torpedo Station.

—Ferryboat Bristol will be launched at the shipyard this afternoon, and fishing sloops Dart and Rob Roy will be hauled out.

—Dr. and Mrs. A. F. Perkins of St. John's, Newfoundland, are guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. C. H. Kavanagh, on Farewell street.

—A report was received by the police yesterday that a boy had been using dynamite in the garden of Aquidneck park. No one was hurt, however.

—Steamer Squantum is now running on the Providence line in connection with the City of Newport, coming down mornings and leaving in the afternoon, for the spring freight trade.

—There is a little more of that April shower business in the weather arrangements for today and the weather man even has the nerve to suggest snow. The last trace of snow has disappeared from in front of the jail.

—Senator R. Livingston Beeckman will make an address on "Rural Credit and Agriculture in Rhode Island" at the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of Providence County Pomona Grange at Crescent Park Wednesday evening.

—At the Moose Club Monday evening the Fort Adams pair, Jones and Corteau, defeated the Moose team, O'Connell and Fitzgerald, a second time, the score being 100 to 75. The match was interesting throughout, although not so close as the first.

—In the district court this morning Judge Baker handed down a decision denying the motion for a non-suit in the case of E. Papa and the case was set for trial April 17. At the police station a man pleaded guilty to a charge of profane swearing and paid $5 and costs.

—This being Holy Week, there are three fish days—Wednesday, Friday and Saturday—and unlike some others in Lent these are real fish days. There is an abundance of fish. It is the first week with southern bluefish and shad down to what can be called reasonable figures.

—DeBlois & Eldridge have leased the Drexel place on Ruggles avenue and the Cliffs, known as "Fairholm," to Mrs. George D. Widener of Philadelphia, who is building one of the finest houses in Newport on Bellevue avenue and the Cliffs, which cannot be completed for this year's occupancy.

—Captain Henry Monsen came in Monday with 7,000 pounds of cod and haddock. It was his last codding trip and the Alice will now fit out for mackerel. The Alice has had a good season, and they say the men have stocked $700 each, which is pretty good for the winter season. Twenty barrels of fish came from Block Island this morning.

—The Sterling Debenture Company, whose officers have been convicted in a big mail stock sale fraud, sent much of its literature to Newport and it is assumed that a little harvest was reaped here, though no one has come forward yet to admit that he was "stung." The printed matter which the letter carriers distributed was well prepared.

—The members of Engine Company No. 1 have been ordered to report at their station at 6:15 Wednesday evening for practice, and if all goes well 15 or 20 minutes later the steamer will be at City wharf to undergo her first spring trial. This year, in addition to interested citizens, there will be present Council Committee on fire department, who will watch the performance.

—Regarding the Sunday trip of the License Commission about the city, Chairman Mahan states that all the members of the board participated and that it was made for the purpose of inspecting the liquor saloons, having no relation whatever to the matter of granting additional licenses, which was to come before the Representative Council.

—Steam yacht Aloha was coaled Monday by the Newport Coal Company and Wednesday will go out for compass tests and to adjust compasses. She will be ready to sail, perhaps Sunday, for New York, it is presumed, though that will depend on orders. Captain Rezanson and his crew have worked well and have the yacht looking ship-shape and spic and span.

—The funeral of Mrs. Emily Carry took place this afternoon from her late residence on Bath road, where a large number gathered to pay a last token of respect to one whom they held in high esteem. The service of the Protestant Episcopal Church was read by Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity Church. The interment was in the Island cemetery. There were no bearers.

—In the spring practice by the Providence League base ball team in the South, Ralph O'Connell of this city played at third base in four games, accepted six chances without an error, and was at the bat 13 times, making four safe hits with a batting percentage of .308. Wright, who is also trying for third base, played in five games, accepted two chances without error, was at bat six times and made one safe, with a batting percentage of .167.

—Brigadier General Montgomery M. Macomb, U. S. A., and Mrs. Macomb arrived Monday evening to be guests of Mrs. Macomb's parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Stephen B. Luce, on Francis street. General Macomb has been on duty in Hawaii, in command of the First Hawaiian brigade of the United States army, with headquarters at Oahu, and was relieved the latter part of February by Brigadier General Clarence R. Edwards. He has been ordered to Washington as president of the Army War College.

MELODY AND EMOTION.

Mr. Geer's Lecture Proves Both Interesting and Important.

"The Emotional Element in Music" was the theme considered by Mr. Geer in his lecture Monday evening, and it proved both interesting and important. He said art must combine three features—the sensuous, the intellectual, the emotional. Technique without soul is dead. There are no laws governing the emotional element; the soul is above law. No amount of juggling can atone for poverty of ideas; therefore Beethoven revised his work with patience.

A sure test of the worth of a theme is to try it in various tempos. Thus tested, a theme from the Dvorak "New World Symphony" is deficient. Yet artistic taste requires culture. The small boy is pleased with a drum, the cultured Greeks used the flute and lyre. If one would have good taste he should see and hear as little as possible of what is cheap. A real work of art requires years of study to fathom, and this should be given to the masterpieces of such composers as Bach and Beethoven.

Another test is familiarity. A great work grows on us as we know it better; familiarity breeds contempt for cheap works.

A true melody must have emotion, and yet must claim our respect. Some of the alleged hymn tunes are altogether unworthy, others are noble or lovely. As a specimen of the merely sentimental the speaker referred to music in the "Tales from Hoffman." Then, too, there is the sentimental "critic," who reads into the works of a composer all sorts of fairies, fays and fantastic fancies of which the composer never dreamed.

Music is the language of the emotions, but a study for 40 weeks of one great, beautiful composition has been recommended by one authority. An example of expression is found in the march of the third Symphony, and there is the inimitable "Invitation to the Dance" of Weber, or the Valkyrie music. For solemnity, the great "Pilgrim Chorus" in Tannhauser is a model; its low chords add much to the effect and the rich tone color. Of the playful mood there is the "Rondo Capriccioso," for humor a good Beethoven scherzo, for gloom the Chopin funeral march.

Hearers must be willing to enter the mood of the music or they can not understand or enjoy it. The music of the Catholic church, which had departed from the ancient dignity of Palestrina, has received a recall to its former churchly character.

A dissonance is something to be resolved. It may aid emotional effect, and concord following it is more effective. It accents, or colors, or gives desired expression. Intellect sometimes runs away from the idea of beauty. In Wilder's "Gothic Symphony" are ugly sounds, but they enhance the beauty which follows. The old composers were careful to follow form; the modern ones obscure it. Bach and Beethoven are great models.

Next week the subject will be Representative Music; and the Beethoven "Pastoral Symphony" and "Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" will be used as examples.

THE WATER WORKS INQUIRY

Company Not Likely to Increase Plant Until Decision is Reached.

While not much is heard about the status of Newport's water situation before the Public Utilities Commission, the matter is progressing. Last Thursday City Solicitor Sullivan and Judge Burke were in Providence, holding a conference on the matter. This week it is expected that they will go up again, with the city engineer, and go over certain details relative to public fountains and the city supply. As soon as the expert who has been working on the matter of valuing the company's property can complete his report it will be submitted to the commission and further progress it is expected will be made.

In the meantime the proposed reservoir at Lawton's valley remains "in the air." The company has secured the land, but no start on construction work has been begun, as it was reported would be the case as soon as it ended the condemnation proceedings. It is now understood that the company will not increase its plant until it learns what the Public Utilities Commission is to decide upon the various questions before it. If the commission demands the sale of water by meter it is thought possible that an additional reservoir will be a long time in coming, since it is claimed that meters cut down the unnecessary use and waste of water, and so lessen the necessity for a big supply.

FENCE AND SHANTY ELIMINATED.

Outside Notices Ruled Out of the Fatal Risso Accident Case.

Testimony as to the Facts Completed; Hearing as to Compensation Later.

Judge Barrows in the superior court barely finished hearing the testimony in the Risso workmen's compensation case Monday afternoon in time to seek quick transit to the train. Mr. Levy raised some matters which seemed to be material.

Before this was taken up, Assistant Attorney General Ham being present for the state, Messrs. Nolan and Sullivan presented the motion for new trial of the case against Jonathan Munro and Edward Sutton. The court denied the motion. He also refused to raise the bail.

In the Risso case Mr. Foster, being re-called, said the only notice posted was, for some time before the killing of Risso, in the office. He said no coats were hung over this notice.

Herbert E. Nason testified in regard to seeing the notice, as did Patrick J. Fogarty, a carpenter on the job.

It developed that the "notice" posted is not a copy of the notice filed as the law requires. The court said this is a serious point and reserved his decision upon it.

Timothy F. Leary took the stand. He was employed by the contractors, about the latter part of July, as night watchman. Was there until the day of the accident. His hours were from 5 p. m. to 7 a. m. There was a fence—three strips—in sections. There were three shanties there—office on Stone street, tool shed on Spring street and shed on the Bryer land. His work was to pick up tools, and go about the premises generally. Shown the "notice" said to have been posted by the superintendent, Mr. Leary said he never saw it there.

Marion Joe Maderios was called. James Hammett, another Portuguese, was called as interpreter. Being cross-examined by counsel for the contractors, he was found entirely disinterested and was accepted. Through Mr. Hammett witness testified that he knew Risso; worked there before, and until two weeks after Risso was killed, carrying mortar. There was a fence on Stone street; he kept his clothes in the tool shed on Spring street, going there every morning. He went to the office on Stone street, morning and afternoon. Did not see the "notice" on the fence, or on the shanty on Spring street, or a paper like it anywhere around the job. Cannot read.

Sarco Pietro, another employe, testified that he went on the job soon after the start and was there until after Risso was killed. He was "staging man" and "handy man." The "fence" was put up every night; sometimes it was taken down mornings. Went to the office frequently; never saw a paper like the "notice" on the fence, or on the shanty on the Bryer land; did see one inside the office, where not all the men were allowed to go; rainy days he would loaf in the office. Others went to the other shanty or went home. Witness knew Risso well—for seven years. His work was inside the building, not like witness's. There were no notices inside the building.

Gunnotti Salvatore was called; he required an Italian interpreter, and Pietro was utilized. Witness was on this job nearly two months before Risso was killed; was water boy. He often was in front of the office, but did not go in. Does not read English. Did not see the "notice" on the fence or shanty or anywhere about the place. He is 16 years old and eight months in this country.

James Hammett then testified. He is 13 years in Newport. He was on the job two and a half weeks when Risso was killed, and worked a week after. Was a hod carrier and masons' tender. Went three times daily to the Spring Street shanty. Was sent on errands to the office quite often, but was inside only three times. There was no fence when he went to work, and no notice on Stone street; he saw none inside the office.

Constantine Marcelli testified that he went on the job before and was there until after Risso was killed. He helped the rigger on iron work, inside the building; then worked outside. Went to the shanty but two or three times, as on rainy days. He saw no "notice" on Stone street, or in the shanty. Went in the office about once a week; men were not allowed to "hang around" in there. He never saw the "notice," in the office. The only sign he saw was not to smoke on the job.

Marcus Angello was accommodated by still another interpreter of Italian. He worked on the job till a few days after it started to the close. Worked on pick and shovel. (The court ruled that the notices on the fence and Bryer shanty was out of the case, and it was so agreed.) Witness said he never went in the office before Risso was killed; the men were not allowed in there on rainy days. When the work was nearly done there was a "notice" in the office; he saw it there about the middle of January, not before Risso was killed.

In cross-examination witness said he had a talk with some man in the office; couldn't tell if it was December 8. All he could say was there were many signs around and he saw the "notice" when the job was nearly ended. He does not read English.

Karl Cornelius testified that he worked on the job six weeks, from some time in August. Was derrick man. He went into the office if he needed anything. Saw no "notice" in the office.

Martin Hord testified that he worked on the job from about August 1 to the middle of October, as foreman carpenter. Several times a day he was in the office; men were not allowed to hang around in there; they did their business through a window from the outside. "Was there any notice of that kind in that office?" "No, sir; not to my knowledge." Witness was positive the "no smoking" sign was not on the outside of the building, and that there was no "notice" posted on the inside of the office, as shown in the photograph, while he was on the job.

John Sherman, carpenter, testified that he was on the job from its start until January. We went to the office as occasion required, sometimes three or four times a day. Took no notice of what was there. There was a "notice" there. He saw it first, two weeks after his attention was called to it; that is, about three weeks after Risso was killed; never saw it there before Risso was killed.

Patrick Grady, night watchman from October 4 to about the middle of November, testified. Was in and out of the office. The notice was in the office when he went there.

Mr. Levy rested.

Mr. Foster was re-called and said Angello said the "notice" had been in the office since he was on the job Angello did not speak English well; witness could understand him and had no reason to suppose that he did not understand what was said to him.

As to compensation, some time after April 20 evidence as to that may be introduced in Providence.

At 5 o'clock the court adjourned to meet again according to law.

MRS. WHITNEY WINS.

Art Prizes Awarded at Opening of Women's Exhibition in New York.

The judges of the twenty-third annual exhibition of the Association of Women Painters and Sculptors announced their selections for four cash prizes at the opening of the exhibition in New York Monday afternoon. The recipients are Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mary Helen Carlisle, Helen Watson Phelps and Olga Popoff Muller.

Mrs Whitney recieved the National Arts Club prize of $100, which is presented by John G. Agar for the best work in the exhibition. Her marble fountain, for which the award was made, won an honorable mention at the last salon in Paris.

The Emerson McMillan landscape prize of $100 was awarded to "High noon, California," a panel of a brilliant field of flowers by Mary Helen Carlisle. The Elizabeth Nichols Watrous figure prize of $50 was conferred upon Helen Watson Phelps for her "Copper and Gold" and the sculpture prize, also $50, was given to Olga Popoff Muller for a figure entitled "Primitive Man."

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is a member of the association, and has entered a landscape in the exhibition. In all there are 94 paintings, eight miniatures and 20 pieces in the exhibition. They will remain in the galleries of Knoedler & Co. until April 18.

SPEED SECOND TO NONE.

The Resolute, Model Cup Craft, to be Launched Soon at Herreshoff's.

The principal dimensions of the Vanderbilt syndicate cup defender Resolute, within a week or 10 days of being launched at Herreshoff's, have been disclosed, although the most rigid care was taken to keep them a secret as well as other important details of the cup craft, which is regarded now as a boat second to none for speed. They show a sloop of modern design with overhangs in keeping with the Herreshoff idea of developing the speed of the modern-built racing yacht.

The dimensions are as follows: Length over all, 104 feet; load water line length, 74 feet 10½ inches; breadth of beam, 23 feet 10 inches; natural draught without centreboard, 13 feet 10 inches; with the centreboard lowered from the keel, just under 22 feet.

The difference between the dimensions of the extreme-type sloop Reliance of 1905 and the Resolute is noticeable, though showing that the forward and after overhangs in the Resolute are conforming to a safe and sane policy in the building of racing yachts. While there was a difference in the Reliance's length over all and her water line length of 54 feet 6 inches, the difference in such dimensions on the Resolute, according to the figures obtained, is about 30 feet.

FOR NAVAL PROMOTIONS.

Difficulties in "Running Mate" Idea Settled by the Department.

It is understood in Washington that the difficulties over the adoption of the "running mate" scheme of promotion for naval staff officers in the Navy Department's personnel reform program have been settled by the substitution of a modified scheme which provides for "running mate promotion," except to the grades of captain and commander. In those grades the staff officers will never be more than 10 per cent of the total commissioned personnel in the grade of captain and 15 per cent in the grade of commander.

Military titles will be given to all officers in the staff corps. They will not be promted from captains to the next higher grade, although their pay and allowances will increase to and within the next higher grade with the running mate. It is also expected that there will be created an active reserve list for the staff corps with two per cent of the commissioned personnel to be transferred to such list every year. This will place upon the active reserve list each year five officers of the pay corps, six of the medical corps, two of the construction corps and one civil engineer.

For the line the program agreed upon provides a total commissioned personnel of about 2,000 with 700 on an active reserve list ultimately. Of the higher grades there are to be four vice admirals, 20 rear admirals, 80 capain, 140 commanders and 320 lieutenant commanders.

Only a sufficient number of graduates of the Naval Academy will be accepted each year to fill existing vacancies. The other midshipmen will receive a years' pay and be dismissed, although it will probably be arranged that they will be afforded opportunity to enter the marine corps or one of the four staff corps.

ALL KINDS OF WEATHER.

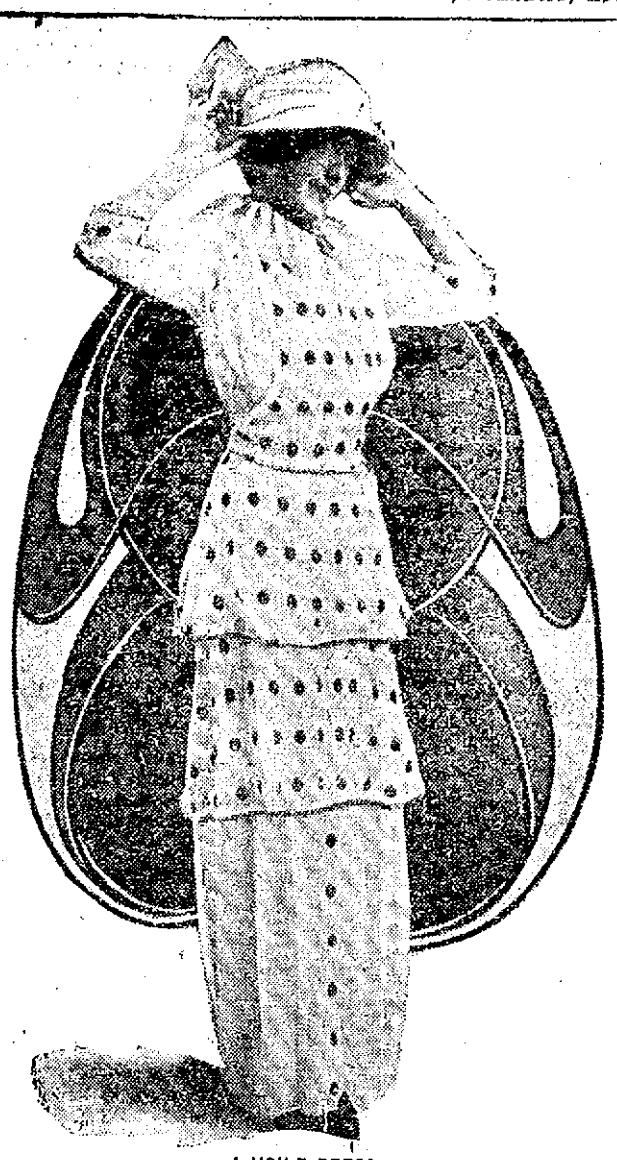

March Treated Rhode Island to Nine Clear Days and 10.3 Inches Snowfall.

The meteorological summary of the Block Island Weather Bureau Station for the month of March reveals the fact that Rhode Island was treated to nine clear days during that period, nine partly cloudy, and the remaining 13 "cloudy." During six days the presence of fog was also noted.

Another significant fact is that the wind, blowing from the east, reached and maintained for five minutes a velocity of 84 miles per hour on the first day of the month, which was also cloudy. The last day day of the month marked the highest temperature, with an official record of 50 degrees.

From this point the record of temperature varied, and March 21 reached its lowest, with a register of 21 degrees. A snowfall of 10.3 inches during the month proved one of the heaviest for years, and the total precipitation was recorded as 3.45 inches. The prevailing direction of the wind was southwest, with an average hourly velocity of 19.4 miles.

Roses to kiss you all dipped in dew—
Ah, baby dear, how I envy you—

GUILLOTINE IN MEXICO.

Desire for Revenge Responsible for New Form of Execution.

JUAREZ Mexico April 7—The guillotine has made its appearance in Mexico and a new form of execution confronts the enemies of the Constitutionalists in San Luis Potosi, it was learned today. At Concepcion Del Oro a home-made guillotine has been erected. It was built by rebel mechanics in the corps commanded by General Eulalio Gutierrez who is now in this city conferring with Carranza. Already the new instrument has been tested and as the general says "It works splendidly." The test was made with a lamb as the victim.

Desire for revenge is responsible for the appearance of the guillotine in Mexico. General Gutierrez's brother-in-law Jose Morales was killed some time ago in battle against the Federals near Saltillo. The family of Morales including an infant daughter and Gutierrez's sister were living in Saltillo. The Federal commander arrested the relatives of Gutierrez placed them on board a troop train and sent them to San Luis Potosi. The baby died of exposure on the way and nothing is known of the fate of other members of the family. From stories told by rebels this is only one of the many instances where the women and children of rebels have been taken from Saltillo by the Federals and sent to other cities and to supposedly horrible fates. It is said that in some instances the women have been given to the [illegible] and sold [illegible].

General Gutierrez says he will leave Juarez in two or three days to resume his campaign against San Luis Potosi. "My outposts are within [illegible] kilometers of the capital of [illegible] state and I expect to capture [illegible] place this time. Fourteen thousand men are under arms in the state and I can send them all against the [illegible] and when I have it I hope to find my sister and her family if they [illegible] been mistreated the soul [illegible] ready for action."

ALWAYS A SCARE.

Latest Predictions About Money Conditions Not Troubling the People.

The Way of the Senate—Gardner and His Father in Law—Congressional Record Fat.

[Washington correspondence of the News]

WASHINGTON April 6—If it is not one scare it is another. One day it is Japan another it is Germany then Mexico and then all South America. But Senator James Hamilton Lewis [illegible] all into one and threw England and France in to make good measure and in one short speech snatched from us the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska, the Panama canal and control of Mexico—such as it is—and abolished the Monroe doctrine. Afterward a newspaper man came out of the gallery and remarked "What a wonderful imagination that man has!"

Then came the scare about the money conditions in the Treasury Department. The income tax is not going to raise enough money and there will be a shortage because the tariff has been reduced on imported articles. This scare is not extensive for the people in general believe that in some way or other money will be forthcoming to pay the expenses of the government. In spite of all they are saying about our troubles old Uncle Sam will still has good credit.

[illegible]

The spoke Senator Chamberlain of Oregon who was in charge of two of the army appropriation bills and wanted to have them passed. He referred to the trend of the discussion which was then over certain parliamentary procedure and rules. Isn't it strange that as long as the Senate has been running it is constantly in a turmoil over its method of procedure and what its rules mean. However the Senate is not much different from the House in this regard for much time is consumed in the House over points of order and parliamentary procedure.

Several years ago Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts jocularly remarked that he was trying to live down his father in law. It was at a dinner that he told what a burden it is to have a distinguished father in law. During the debate on the canal tolls he had that burden thrust upon him again. Gardner was favoring the repeal and different members of the House who took the opposite side kept quoting Senator Lodge [illegible] the meaning of the treaty which was to the effect that the United States had the right to regulate charges on its coastwise trade and Gardner was kept quite busy in defense of his father in law. It reminded one of Frederick Marryat's novel "Japhet in Search of a Father."

The Congressional Record has been bulging these days with ideas of Congressmen on canal tolls. Members of Congress were granted leave to print and they have taken advantage of it as they seem to think that their position must be explained at some length. As a result the Record has been bigger for the last 10 days than any time [illegible]. Somebody has been doing [illegible] up about the canal [illegible] international law and such things for a vast amount of information has been printed.

Everybody could understand that [illegible] Roosevelt enjoyed a fight for [illegible] and we are beginning to believe that the same is true in regard to President Wilson. When the battle over the canal raged the [illegible] and there were thunders of eloquence [illegible] both the Senate and the [illegible] Woodrow Wilson was [illegible] enjoying himself as if nothing unusual was happening. He laughed and talked and joked with the newspaper boys [illegible] stories and really seemed to think that the situation contained elements of amusement. Taking that view of things he will get through his administration without much trouble.

One day there burst forth upon the House when the galleries were crowded [illegible] a slender figure with a [illegible] and with a voice that could be heard in remote corners of the [illegible] the [illegible] and the question was passed around "Who is it?"

"I have seen him before" remarked one man. "You cannot forget a man like that [illegible] Hamlet, he is. I have seen him on the stage in several countries [illegible]. The member of the House who [illegible] this comment was [illegible] Gray of Indiana [illegible] has many strong [illegible] strong way of expressing them.

Temporary Building for Offices and Class Rooms Erected at Wellesley.

WELLESLEY, Mass, April 7—A temporary wooden building for the college offices and class rooms was ready for use when the students of Wellesley College returned to resume their studies interrupted by the fire which destroyed College Hall March 17. The building which was erected within 10 days is a long one-story structure containing 66 rooms. The young women who roomed in College Hall will be accommodated in the other dormitories.

The trustees estimate that $1 800 000 will be needed for the construction and equipment of a new building to replace College Hall. They have sent an appeal to the alumnae for this sum.

Explorers' Club Discusses Plan, to Purchase the Roosevelt

NEW YORK April 7—Members of the Explorers Club which gave Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary a banquet and a gold medal last night as a celebration of the fifth anniversary of his discovery of the North Pole discussed a plan to purchase the Roosevelt the ship in which Peary made his journey to the Arctic. The Roosevelt now lies in the East river just under the Brooklyn bridge. After Peary's return it was sold to a wrecking company.

The plan which was received enthusiastically last night was to purchase the Roosevelt use it for exploring purposes for some years and to retire it in its old age to an honorable station as a relic of a great feat.

DERBYSHIRE'S PURCHASE

Whole of Lord Howard de Walden's Regents Park Estate Acquired

LONDON April 7—Another great London land deal has been concluded by which S. P. Derbyshire acquired the whole of Lord Howard de Walden's Regent Park estate for more than $2 500 000. In point of size this is said to be the largest transfer of London property that has ever taken place for the total extent of the estate is 62½ acres. It contains 750 houses divided among some 20 streets. A police station St. Stephen's Church four large schools and eight public houses are within the area.

Mr. Derbyshire is a director of several companies and senior partner of a firm of chartered accountants but in this purchase he is acting for himself alone. Apparently his intention is to demolish the old fashioned buildings and convert this part of London into a new Mayfair.

Whittemore Harold Weber and Frazer Hale have decided to go. Charles Evans Jr. has made no definite announcement but it is believed in golfing circles that he will go in a couple of weeks.

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

UP TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY NOW.

Even though the Representative Council has asked the legislature to grant permission for issuing four additional liquor licenses in this city, it does not necessarily follow that the General Assembly will take favorable action upon the request. That remains to be seen. If the members can be shown, as will be easy enough, the real situation, they may decide adversely. That situation is, in brief: First, Newport has already enough licenses under the present law; second, it is not necessary to increase the number in order to provide for the summer hotels; third, the whole present situation is the outcome of a deliberate scheme by the License Commission to grant the full number of regular licenses, and then ask for more on the plea that otherwise the summer places would be shut out, thus enabling the Commission to grant in all more than the legal number allowed the city. Under such circumstances it is the plain duty of the Assembly not to grant the petition.

THE NEW COMMISSIONERS.

Objection was made immediately to both the men lately nominated to be members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, on the ground that they were conservatives—not of course politically, but that they were not active and noisy opponents of the corporations. It was for this reason that Senator Martine of the President's state, who poses as a farmer and a friend of the "people," attacked the nomination of Mr. Daniels, of his own and the President's state. The other New Jersey Senator supported the nomination and it has been confirmed.

Certainly the Interstate Commerce Commission ought not to be organized like a drumhead court-martial, to convict. Owners of railroads are entitled to consideration as well as shippers. Considering the importance of the railroads, as employers of labor and as purchasers of materials, it might well be argued that their interests are more important to the community than those of the shippers. Doubtless the interests of the shippers are diffused through the whole community, but that is not less true of the railroads. The power of the government over the roads has now gone so far that it is particularly important that it should be used with great caution, and the strictest regard to the interests of the owners of stocks as well as those of other people.

The commission was created to do justice to all parties, and it ought not to be packed against the railroads. It has seemed a little as though the commissioners regarded themselves as agents of the shippers, and persons who are not fanatical in their animosity toward big corporations will feel that its usefulness will be enhanced by strengthening the prudent and conservative element in the board. Of all the evils charged to railroad management the smallest is the general average cost of transportation. Discriminations should be prevented, but the average rates are low, and the roads ought not to be kept on starvation diet.

NURSING IS A PROFESSION.

The Toronto Globe says that if the United States were suddenly to be deprived of the services of the Canadian graduate nurses in the hospitals of this country the result would be startling and many of them would be forced to close their doors temporarily. Enough like an exaggerated statement, it is probable that it is nearly, if not absolutely, correct. The fact is that most proprietors of the large wards who employ to become nurses in the hospitals and [illegible] of the United States have been driven across the Canadian border. It is said that they make about the best nurses to be found anywhere. As a result it is not [illegible] that many hospitals of this country [illegible] birth and it is doubtless true that if they should all leave at the same time those institutions would be badly handicapped.

It is strange that comparatively few American girls take up this profession, which is dignified and remunerative and affords almost unequaled opportunities for service. It would seem as though such an occupation would be attractive, but it does not appear to be so. Instead of preparing for this work, most girls here prefer to become clerks or stenographers, though they seldom obtain anything like as good a living. It is probably to some extent true that the long course of training which nurses must take fails to appeal to young women who are looking for an occupation. That is a matter for consideration doubtless with many, because of the length of time required for preparation for the profession. Yet it is not so long as is necessary for some others and the rewards after the training period is ended ought to out-weigh that phase of the situation unless it is absolutely impossible for one to engage in the preparation for lack of means of subsistence during that time. Aside from that feature of the profession, it is one which should appeal to many young women as worthy their efforts and affording excellent scope for the exercise of their talents.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS.

The list of centres where federal reserve banks will be established has given satisfaction to 12 cities in the United States, but the distribution of the country among as many districts has probably not even pleased the 12. Yet it is extremely doubtful if a better list, except as to two points, or possibly three, could have been made.

New York desired Connecticut and northern New Jersey, and probably these districts would have preferred New York to Boston in the one case and Philadelphia in the other. Yet nothing was clearer than the determination of Congress to reduce the importance of New York, and this has been done. Nevertheless, the commercial importance of the metropolis will oblige banks to keep some of their funds there which are not counted as their reserves.

It is unjust to Secretary Houston to attribute to his influence the naming of two reserve cities in Missouri. Any list of 12 must have included St. Louis, and the only question is about Kansas City. Denver had some claim to be selected, on account of its position between the Missouri river and the Pacific slope, but as a banking centre Kansas City is about five times as important as Denver.

Baltimore is a much more important city than Richmond, but Philadelphia could not be left out and Baltimore is near that city. Richmond is tolerably central for the South Atlantic. New Orleans has some ground of complaint, but Atlanta has nearly as large a banking business and is more central. Dallas is not a great centre of trade, but New Orleans being included in the Atlanta district, Dallas is a little more central for the rest of the Southwest than Galveston.

Geography as well as banking statistics were to be considered, and while the list might have been bettered a little it comes about as near as any could to affording all parts of the country equal access to a federal reserve bank. The two smallest will have capitals of nearly $5,000,000 and the next two over $5,000,000. The new system will effect a large measure of banking concentration without centralization.

THE LESSON OF MARKET SHOWS.

Perhaps at first blush it might not be thought that a market show would have any great attraction or succeed in drawing a large crowd of spectators from among the youth of what might well be called the slums of a city. On consideration, however, it is easy to understand why such an exhibition in reality attracts children and they are among the most appreciative and discriminating of all who attend. The reason is simple, for these children with comparatively few exceptions are the marketers of the families of which they are members. It may seem strange to some not familiar with the conditions in the homes of the poor that children so young should be trusted with the family marketing, but it is necessity rather than choice in most cases which sends little ones to do the buying. The adults and older children are at work and the duty of purchasing the supplies thus falls upon shoulders which hardly seem well adapted to the responsibility.

This, however, accounts for the fact of children crowding to see such a show and showing discriminating familiarity with the differences between clean markets and those kept in an unhealthful condition. In many places where exhibitions of this kind have been held they have been considered most successful because of the beneficial effect upon these youthful marketers. The citizens have not failed to appreciate the advantage from a sanitary point of view of a clean market, and in not a few cases have gone forth and made a crusade against insanitary conditions or have quietly transferred their patronage from shops which were dirty. Such results are worth while, and encouraging to those under whose direction the exhibitions are held. They indicate that the next generation will be more particular about the conditions in the places where they do their shopping and will insist on better attention to cleanliness, which is the object in holding these market shows.

The Senate committee on interoceanic canals has wisely decided to [illegible]

tion of the bill to repeal the exemption for the American ships passing through the canal. How long the committee will deliberate on the issue before making a report no one is willing to predict, but administration leaders let it be known that any effort to prolong the preliminary consideration will be opposed. Opponents of the repeal will insist, however, that there will be no effort to delay in committee.

The sad news comes from Washington that the law limiting women to an eight-hour day will strike the Easter hat business a solar plexus blow. The milliners cannot obtain enough workers to turn out all the hats needed for Easter if they stick to only eight hours a day, and the corporation counsel tells them that if they work their help more than that even for Easter hats they are liable to prosecution. What will the women do now, poor things?

The action of the Representative Council on the proposed change in the plans for Third Street improvement was the only thing possible under the circumstances. The city was already fully committed in this matter, and its formal agreement with the United States government could not in justice or decency be broken. The later proposition was ill timed. As the situation has recently developed the boulevard plans can well afford to wait until a later date.

Secretary of War Garrison will not follow Secretary Daniels's example by prohibiting liquor drinking in the army. When asked if he proposed to issue a similar order he replied: "When I was a boy my father pointed out to me a man who got rich through minding his own business. I have always tried to follow his example." Is this a slap at Daniels?

The result of the primaries in Alabama for the Senatorial nomination will ensure the retention of Oscar W. Underwood, the present Democratic House leader, in the public service. The retirement of so forceful and able a man would have been a real loss to the party and the nation.

A marriage by an Englishman within three hours after he secured a divorce from his first wife is almost as notable a record as has been made in this country. It was not to be expected in Great Britain.

The new Senator from Alabama will not be Hobson's choice. It proved harder to bottle up Underwood than it did the Spanish ships at Santiago.

It hardly seems possible that it is five years ago that Peary reached the North Pole.

Mr. Ray Tallman of Springfield, Mass., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Isabella Tallman.

Mr. A. Fremont Grinnell is having a garage built, 18 by 18 feet.

Gravel is being carted to Glen street, to fill the low places caused by the making of deep ruts by the heavy carting in the mud. The roads are drying up but some of the cross roads are still deep in mud.

The pupils present every day of the spring term, just closed, at the Vaucluse school were Everett Gray, Jack Gibson, John Paquin, Margaret Paquin, Mary Paquin, Frank Silvia, Tom Sylvia, Louise and Mary Sylvia.

A pet dog belonging to Mr. Oscar C. Manchester was run over Sunday by a motorcyclist. His leg was broken near to the body, but efforts are being made to set it.

AMATEURS DROWN OUT WIRELESS MESSAGES.

[Christian Herald.]

There are fully 50,000 amateurs butting in, and that makes trouble all along the coast," the wireless operator explained. "When there is a large group of them near by—say, within a radius of 100 miles of us—they drown out the long distance ocean messages. Its so bad, in fact, that we can't count on long distance work at sea until after midnight, when the boys have gone to bed and left the air clear for us. Then, too, some of the amateurs are practical jokers, and their humor may prove dangerous. If a fake distress signal is sent out there is no way to prove its a fake. On the other hand, a boy near Washington the other night picked up a real distress message from a ship at sea that the big stations had missed."

VOICE TO GO ROUND THE WORLD.

Marconi Practically Solves the Problem of Wireless or Radio Telephony.

Stations Already Established Which Communicate from Three to Four Hundred Miles.

Engineers do not in the least doubt Marconi's "wireless" from Italy that "the problem of wireless (or radio) telephony has been practically solved." They could scarcely be more entirely convinced had his wireless come via electric waves in the tones of his own voice. Even Nicola Tesla, who from experiment is possessed of certainties that certainly equip him to be an accurate forecaster in matters not long ago deemed incredible, declares: "We surely are on the eve of the transmission of the voice across the world without wires—not merely signals, but the spoken word. Not only that but the transmission of power; and not only the transmission of power—all these things are wrapped up in the wireless transmission of 'energy'—but the wireless transmission of light to isolated places. Ten years ago I wrote in the Electrical Engineer, after I had sent an impulse straight through the earth and saw its return recorded, these words:

When the great truth, accidentally revealed and experimentally confirmed, is fully recognized that this planet, with its appalling immensity, is to electric currents virtually no more than a small metal ball, and that by virtue of this fact many possibilities, each baffling imagination and of incalculable consequences, are rendered absolutely sure of accomplishment; when the first plant is inaugurated and it is shown that a telegraphic message, almost as secret and non-interferable as thought, can be transmitted to any terrestrial distance, the sound of the human voice, with all its intonations and inflections faithfully reproduced at any other point of the globe, the energy of a waterfall made available for supplying light, heat or motive power, anywhere—on sea or land, or high in air—humanity will be like an ant heap stirred up with a stick. See the excitements coming!

"You are quickly going to see those excitements. When I started people called me a visionary, a poet, a composer who would like to record the music of the spheres, and so on. Now they are tending to credit that Tesla saw straight, only farther than most people. The same incredulousness met my "visions" of the transmission of power. Now they know I can take a turbine measuring one foot by two and develop from it 5,000 horse power. Always when one individual tries to enforce a new idea there is some difficulty in getting heard—in philosophy or in science. People to me seem like a crowd rushing pell mell toward some relief, and when one man lifts his hand and shouts 'This is the right road,' they disregard him and keep blindly on till by and by I hey find themselves astray and say, 'Well, that fellow found the right road, after all.' I've felt that if I had to choose between being a pioneer pathfinder, or being a celebrity of the moment and a performer of easy wonders, I should prefer to be a pioneer. I claim that nobody can acquire all the knowledge. While other men live and labor additions will be made to it and something will be continually left to others. The more experimenters the sooner the realization.

"Wireless telephony is here—but how stupid the wire telephone and telegraph people are about it! And why all this talk of government ownership of present telephone and telegraph when the government could be promoting wireless experimentation and development?"

Tesla's attention was called to Marconi's message in which he said: "My new radio-telephonic apparatus has already been adopted by the Italian navy and will shortly replace entirely all other kinds of signalling." Also he was reminded that Representative Sidenerson of Minnesota had suggested in the Congress of the United States that the present method of communicating by wire would become obsolete in a few years and that as it would take a billion dollars to acquire control of the existing wire lines, Mr. Steenerson's suggestion might lead to an inquiry by the Postmaster General to determine the scientific status of radio communication.

Said Tesla, "Five or six years ago Paulsen telephoned through air 300 miles. There is now established at Nauhen, Germany, his station which can communicate from 300 to 400 miles, and it is in daily operation. In his system his arc is used as a generator of high frequency current. A group of microphones in series, all contained in one mouthpiece, controls the antenna current either direct or by shunting a few turns of the main inductance. In Italy eight or nine months ago, with modifications of my apparatus, Majoranna telephoned 600 miles. In his microphone liquid is the chief agent in controlling current.

"Marconi's announcement is that he made the voice carry only 45 miles; but that he signalled 300 to 1,700 miles. Don't confound 'aerophony' with radio-telephony. One is simply a succession of makes and breaks, the same as in telegraphy, and staccato sounds are transmitted, except that those sounds made musical notes. Radio-telephony must carry the voice and be recognizable as speech instead of as signals. Once Marconi told the Royal Society we wouldn't have wireless telephony for 500 years. When a man begins to see possibilities he begins to be helpful. We are about to see tremendous developments. When proper plants are up the voice will fly around the world—and that time is not distant. From my station at Wardencliffe, Long Island, I'm hoping to announce that I'm the first to send the voice around the world."

IN STAGE OF EVOLUTION.

Labrador's Industries Undeveloped and Game Unprotected.

The fish, flesh and fowl of Labrador writes Dr. Grenfell in the Wide World, have been exploited to the last degree, and no scientific or practical effort has been made for the protection or rehabilitation. Our auks, curlew, ducks, and many other birds have become either extinct or dangerously depleted. Our deer, owing to forest fires caused by carelessness and unrestricted slaughter by Indians, as well as white settlers, have so far diminished as to bring semi-starvation to doors where once there was always plenty. The destruction of seal herds has brought families once affluent to miserable poverty. For some reason our unrivaled herring and mackerel have left us altogether. The salmon catch is only a shadow of what it once was, and even the returns of our still valuable cod fishery shows increasing uncertainty in quantity and distribution. The growing number of trappers, the lack of protection or the destruction of their food supplies have made the annual winter fur hunt insufficient to maintain in comfort all who prosecute it, and that in spite of the immense increase in the price of pelts. Seals and whales are rapidly approaching a similar fate.

No mines are yet opened; no timber properties yet developed; and no use is made of our unlimited water power. Only a handful of visitors come to enjoy the wild scenery, the unique natural conditions and the invigorating atmosphere, though our fjords rival those of Norway and have the additional attraction of being virgin and unexplored. No charting has been done, and at that time, as already stated, there was not one light on the coast from the straits of Belle Isle to Hudson bay to render navigation safe. It is little to be wondered at if adequate tourist steamers do not ply in our waters. In fact, Labrador is in that melancholy stage of evolution that must inevitably overtake every country until attention is turned to the development of industries that man does not share with the tiger and the shark.

EVIL INFLUENCES LEAD TO CRIME AND MURDER.

Rev. W. A. Beecher of Sennet, N. J., father of the young woman brutally murdered a week or so ago, says of the murderer:

"The boy is no different and no worse than boys right here in Sennet, and boys in every village and city in the country whose physical health is weakened by cigarette smoking and other vices and whose imaginations are inflamed by motion pictures of crime and by cheap novels. As I looked at the boy, I saw behind him these influences, which I have always fought, and am still fighting, and I hold them, not him, chiefly responsible."

Boundaries of Highway Districts Changed and Town Officers Appointed.

Special Meeting Necessary to Start Work of Restoring Roads to a Smooth Condition.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Contrary to the usual custom, a special meeting of the town council for organization and for appointing certain town officers was held at the town hall Monday afternoon. In former years organization has been deferred until the third Monday in the month, the regular meeting day. This year it was deemed necessary to have a special meeting, in order to appoint surveyors of highways and start them in the work of restoring the roads to a smooth condition, and repair breaches caused by frost and rain.

At 2 o'clock Lewis R. Manchester, Joseph E. Kline, David A. Brown, James R. Chase, 2d., and Robert W. Smith, the five men elected to the town council, appeared at the town hall and were sworn into office by Town Clerk Albert L. Chase. Lewis R Manchester was chosen president.

The highways were divided into four districts and some changes were made in the boundaries. All of the West Main road and Forest avenue was assigned to No. 1, and all of the East Main road and the north part of Mitchell's Lane to No. 2. The sum of $300 was apportioned to each district for ordinary repairs and $500 for the repair of stone roads. The rates of compensation were fixed as follows: $2 per day to each able-bodied man, $3 per day for a double team and $1.50 per day for each single wagon, nine hours to make a day.

The following were appointed an advisory committee: For district No. 1, James R. Chase, 2d.; No. 2, David A. Brown; No. 3, Robert W. Smith; No 4, Joseph E. Kline.

David A. Brown was appointed a committee to have charge of the buildings and property on the town house lot and attend to the leasing of the town hall

David A. Brown was appointed a committee to have the care of the spring of water in Green End avenue, near its junction with Paradise avenue, and Joseph E. Kline a committee to attend to the keeping of the spring in Third Beach road.

On petition of the Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company, it was granted permission to locate two poles on the southerly side of the Boulevard, near Fenner avenue, under the direction of David A. Brown.

On the petition of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, it was authorized to trim such trees on the West Main road as interfere with the operation of its telephone and telegraph lines, the trimming to be done under the superintendence of William H. Sisson.

The town clerk was directed to give bond to the town treasurer in the sum of $500 and the town treasurer to give bond to the town in the sum of $30,000.

Joseph E. Kline and David A. Brown were appointed a committee to obtain proposals for furnishing crushed stone.

Lewis R. Manchester was appointed a committee to attend to the purchase and application of road oil.

Joseph E. Kline and Robert W. Smith were appointed a committee to confer with Isaac S. Hazard in regard to extending North Aquidneck avenue across his land to the East Main road and the land damages sustained by him thereby.

The two following accounts were allowed and ordered paid from the town treasury: Clifton B. Ward, for services as town treasurer for the year ending April 1, 1914, $250; Peckham Brothers' Company, for crushed stone furnished and for use of steam roller on Second and First Beach avenue near the bridge, in November, 1913, $111.04.

WARREN, April 6.—The mule spinners and offers at the mill of the Warren Manufacturing Company struck today when their employers failed to respond to their demands to cease supplying yarn to the Knight mills in the Pawtuxet valley, where the mule spinners have been on strike for several weeks. The strikers at the Warren mill number about 100, but if they do not return to work in a few days the entire mill will have to close, throwing about 1,500 operatives out of work. SUMMER LICENSES APPROVED.

other widening in accordance with the agreement. The agreement must be carried out as a whole or fail, and he hoped no action would be taken which would seem to cast doubt on the carrying out of the plans.

J. A. Barker said he hoped the plan already adopted would be carried out. He suggested that Captain Welles, of the Training Station, was in the hall and asked that he be heard.

Captain Welles said that when Mr. Barker asked him if he was to be at the Council meeting he had said he was not, for he did not wish to appear to be trying to force the Council to do something it did not care to do. He recalled that 30 years ago, when a midshipman on the Tennessee, he came here with Admiral Luce, who later was succeeded by Admiral Jewett. He remembered Admiral Luce going to the old poorhouse and saying this would be the Naval War College. The road to Coasters' Harbor island was the same then as it is now.

He thought Mr. Williams had explained the situation. If the city does not carry out the whole agreement of course the government will not. The Secretary and the solicitor general were very particular in regard to this matter and had to be satisfied that the city was doing just what was proposed before granting the permit which all saw in the papers had been granted. If this agreemnt is not carrid of it will mean beginning again to try to obtain something. He would not say that the Navy Department would not agree to widening under some other plan, but it would not agree to the widening of the hospital land and the sewer proposition if the city did not carry out its part of the agreement. If the city should change he promised to do what he could to induce the Navy Department to come into the plan adopted, but it would mean much loss of time.

The speaker called attention to some defects in the plan suggested for the Dyre Street extension. It would mean that the sewer would empty in the basin right between the locations of the Reina Mercedes and the Constellation. In his opinion this would be objected to, not only by the officers at the station but also by the engineer officer in charge, as endangering the Station He showed the great difference between the sewer outlet from the hospital perhaps 800 feet to the south and clear of the cove, where it would not be a menace. He said all would like to see a boulevard and hope to see one, but what is needed now is an improved way to the Training Station. Captain Welles was given generous applause when he ceased talking.

Chairman Harvey read a written request that on the boulevard question H. B. Wood and J. G. Parmenter desired to speak. He called on Mr. Wood. Admiral Chadwick protested against allowing him to speak, saying they had listened to him for an hour already and he had said all he had to say. The Chair ruled that Mr. Wood as a taxpayer had the right to ask to speak and the right to speak. Dr. Squire suggested that Mr. Wood be limited to 10 minutes. Chairman Harvey said he hoped the members would display courtesy. The rules limit a speaker to 10 minutes.

Mr. Wood had the floor for seven minutes. He paid his respects to Admiral Chadwick, and said he knew he had been tiresome, but he had the right to speak. He showed a large plat of the proposed changes to make part of the boulevard and explained what the resolution proposed to spend the money in making a part of the Boulevard, which every one desired, instead of widening outer Third street, where no one cares to go. They had been fighting for this boulevard and had many setbacks, but hoped something could be done now. If nothing is done of course the fight must be kept up, but to him it seemed that this was a great chance and he did not see that his plan could not be carried out under the agreement with the government.

Some thought this working for the boulevard was just simply himself, but such is not the case. There are petitions from many of the best citizens of Newport and there is a general desire to have this boulevard built. Even if it cannot go over the hospital land it should be built. He indicated that the naval hospital land covers but a small portion of the territory which the Boulevard is to cover, and the fact that it seems that the boulevard cannot go over the hospital land should not stop working for the boulevard, which is something the city ought to have. He had no objections to referring the matter to the Board of Aldermen, but hoped something would be done.

T. J. Williams asked if he thought the government would give the 19 feet if the city did not carry out its agreement and Mr. Wood said he thought it would. Mr. Williams asked why Dyre street was not continued in a straight line to the westward and Mr. Wood said that was for Mr. Huntington. It will give him a number of house lots 60 feet deep, adjoining the hospital land.

J. P. Cozzens said he was a member of the commitee on streets and improvements, but it seemed to him just as well to dispose of this matter now. He moved to lay the resolution on the table. It was the right move, for the Council so voted.

The ordinance for the assessment of a tax was amended by changing the date for the assessment from April 3 to April 17. There was no opposition.

Introduced by Mr. Dyer was a resolution directing the Board of Aldermen to report a plan and the possible cost of widening Touro street on the south side, from Mary street to Bellevue avenue; Bellevue avenue on the west side, from Touro street to Church street, and Church street on the north side for 300 feet west from Bellevue avenue, so as to make its north line a continuation of the north line of Catherine street, or to make such other plan for widening as may seem most advantageous to the board.

John J. Peckham said it seemed to him there were a great many of these widening propositions. He moved that it be laid on the table. This was again the popular move, and it was laid on the table without discussion.

Despite the recommendation of the street commissioner and of the Board of Aldermen, an extra appropriation of $500 was not added to the sewer appropriation to put in the sewer near the Van Zandt avenue bridge. At first it seemed that no one would speak. This was in the First ward, but not a Pohiter spoke. Some one moved to lay the resolution on the table. This was lost. Mr. Murphy moved its passage. Dr. Squire moved reference to the Committee of Twenty-Five for next year, and this motion prevailed.

The Board of Aldermen recommended that $3,940 be appropriated and added to the appropriation for streets for necessary repairs to Briggs wharf and this the Council voted without opposition.

From the Board of Firewards came a number of nominations—Willis H. Nelson from hoseman to assistant foreman of Hose 8, to replace M. W. Wetherell, elected a member of the Board of Firewards; Assistant Hoseman J. H Romayne to be hoseman, in place of Nelson; George N. Buckhout, from assistant foreman to foreman of Steamer 5, to replace George C. Shaw, resigned; Harry G. Andrews, from hoseman to assistant foreman, and sub-hoseman W. J. Mohr, to be hoseman of the Hives; Assistant Hoseman George C. Williams to be hoseman of Steamer 4, vice C. E. Thurston, deceased. They were all elected.

Then Mr. Dyer called from the table the resolution giving the Board of Aldermen power to fill vacancies in the fire department when the Council is not in session, and it was passed.

The ordinance approved by the Board of Aldermen in the afternoon was then passed without opposition Mr. Williams suggested that some care should be taken that the granolithic walk should have the same color, but the chairman said the Board of Aldermen would look after that The ordinance is as follows

An ordinance authorizing the Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company to construct and maintain underground conduits for electric wires.

Section 1—The Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company, its successors and assigns, are hereby authorized and empowered under the franchise heretofore granted to them to construct and maintain underground conduits, ducts, pipes or subways, with the necessary manholes, laterals and outlets, and to install wires and cables therein, and to erect and maintain distributing poles, wires and fixtures necessary to complete said distribution, in, under and along the following streets, lanes and other public places in the city of Newport: From power station of the said company in and along Pope street to Spring street, and thence from Pope street in and along Spring street to Pelham street, and on Pelham street from Spring street to the existing overhead line of the said company, substantially as shown on plan now on file in the city clerk's office; provided, however, that the particular location of said conduits, ducts, pipes and subways in any street shall be subject to the direction of the Board of Aldermen; and provided, further, that no street, highway or any part thereof shall be opened for the laying and construction of the said conduit or subway between the first day of June and the fifteenth day of September without the consent of the Board of Aldermen; and provided, further, that the said Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company shall accept the provisions of this ordinance within 10 days after the passage hereof.

This ordinance shall take effect on its passage.

H. C. Bacheller asked unanimous consent to introduce a petition and two resolutions, and no one objected. The petition was from Mrs. A. L. Green and others, asking for a sewer to connect three houses on Training Station road with the new sewer. The accompanying resolution made a special appropriation of $1,000. Mr. Dyer objected to the extra appropriation. That killed it. The second resolution made an appropriation of $100 for the committee on streets and improvement and this was passed.

Thomas J. Grimes was elected a weigher of coal and other merchandise and the Council adjourned.

BANKING INDIVIDUALISM.

Unfortunate and Dangerous Condition the Cause of Three Panics.

[Edward Sherwood Mead, in Lippincott's.]

In ordinary times the banks are close and friendly, anxious and able to help one another. If a bank wishes $100,000 from its New York correspondent, the money is sent the same day. If a loan is required, the banker is accommodated. Everything is smooth, agreeable and prosperous. But let the spirit of panic rise in the land, and these bonds of friendly cooperation are quickly broken. The average bank looks to itself and to its own depositors and borrowers. It holds to its cash, calls its loans, clamors for its own deposits and, under the pressure of stern necessity, follows the rule of every man for himself, and the devil of bankruptcy take the hindmost.

We must not overdraw this picture of selfishness. Even in periods of the greatest trial, many banks, and those the strongest members of the "Money trust," do not lose their courage. They pay their depositors; they take clearing-house certificates from the weaker brethren; they do not call a loan when the calling of it means bankruptcy; they even make new loans when it is necessary that new credit should be extended; they recognize to the fullest extent their responsibilities to their borrowers and depositors; but as for the rank and file, the thousands upon thousands of timid, cautous, routine bankers who in the aggregate control the finances of the United States, each one retreats, so far as he can, into his shell, piles up his cash, no matter how much business men may need the money and, with no idea of what he is doing, does his individual best to increase the general ruin and distress.

The statement of the case shows the remedy for this unfortunate and dangerous condition of banking individualism, a condition which has within 40 years resulted in three panics of the first class, followed by 11 years of industrial depression which have seriously retarded the industrial development of the country, inflicted upon the working classes, town, city, and country, an incalculable amount of physical suffering and financial loss, and made our banking system the laughing stock of the world. The remedy is to be found in banking centralization, in the organization of the banks of the United States into one system which shall be controlled by the strongest and wisest bankers in the country which will centralize the reserves so that they can be used like the reserves of an army, whenever there is need of assistance; which will put it out of the power of the little men, the small bankers, to pull down the American financal structure about once in each 15 years; and which shall finally be so administered as not merely to check panic conditions when they arise, but to administer and control the national finances in such a manner as that the practices of inflation, over-expansion, unwise extension of credit, wild speculation, which give rise to panics, and which have been fostered and stimulated by ignorant bankers, crooked bankers, bankers greedy of gain and reckless of consequences, shall, in time, be abolished.

TRAVELING IN THE AIR.

Trip Across the Atlantic in Fifteen Hours a Possibility of the Near Future.

The Aeroplane Industry to Develop Quicker Than Railways, According to Grahame-White.

[Claude Grahame White in London Graphic.]

A few months ago I was dining with a friend who, while interested in aviation, thought that the limits of the practical uses of the heavier-than-air machine had been almost reached. "You will never," he declared, "no matter what engine power you have, get a greater speed out of an aeroplane than 100 miles an hour. The resistance of the air is too great."

We disagreed. "I firmly believe," I told him, "that in under a quarter of a century there will be no part of the globe inaccessible to the aeroplane, and that no journey, whatever the distance, will occupy more than eight or nine days." He laughed at me. That, he declared, was the dream of an enthusiastic aviator, which by no conceivable stretch of scientific imagination could ever come true.

That evening is recalled to my mind now because Mr. Rudyard Kipling has told us that "The time is near when men will receive their normal impressions of a new country suddenly and in plan, not slowly and in perspective; when the most extreme distances will be brought within the compass of one week's 168 hours'—travel; when the word inaccessible,' as applied to any given spot on the surface of the globe will cease to have any meaning."

I am entirely with Mr. Kipling My friend who argued so vehemently a short few months ago is already confounded. An aeroplane has done 140 mile in the hour—more than two miles a minute. So it requires no gift of prophecy to say that within 20 years we shall be able to cross the Atlantic in 15 hours. In 1934, that is to say, it will be possible to leave London Friday afternoon in a luxurious aerial Pullman, where one can eat and sleep in comfort, and reach New York the following morning. One would leave America on Sunday afternoon and be in town on Monday morning, with no more inconvenience than going to Paris or Scotland for the week-end now.

In 20 years' time the man or woman who has not traveled by air will be in exactly the same position as one who has never been in a train today. The aeroplane industry will, I think, take longer and quicker strides than the railway. With an engine of 160 horse power today a speed of 140 miles an hour has been done. The highest powered aeroplane engine today is only about 200 horse power. When we get, as we must very soon, engines similar to those in marine use, of thousands of horse power, the possibilities are almost beyond one's imagination.

There is no doubt that we shall have aerial vessels of the heavier-than-air type of the size of the Mauretania, carrying 3,000 and 4,000 passengers They will cross the Atlantic in a day with the safety and certainty of an express train. I hope to cross to New York in this way myself one day. It will come far sooner than the majority of people think. There is, indeed, nothing to stand in the way of the vast development of the aeroplans from every point of view. Its advance, moreover, must of necessity bring about enormous changes in conditions of life all over the world. The senseless criticism against the construction of a channel tunnel, which the Daily Graphic so warmly advocated, that it will remove England's isolation and her great security, applies ten thousand-fold to the aeroplane.

Even as things are today France could bring 1,000 men an hour into England by air if it were necessary. Twenty years hence France will be able to transport an army of 100,000 men and guns across the channel with 25 airships in an hour. Germany will be in practically the same position, though I believe she will be forced to discard the lighter-than-air type. Every first-class power will possess her fleet of great aerial battleships comparable to the dreadnoughts of today, and while navies must be maintained to a certain extent, the first arm both of offense and defense will undoubtedly be in the air * * * * The first principle has been established. It is as safe in the air as on the ground today. The rest is merely a matter of natural evolution. It is absurb, naturally, to say there are no more problems to be solved There are they are not so difficult as was the initial one of actual flight.

One of these problems concerns itself with wing area. With greater weight you require a greater plane surface for raising and starting a machine from the ground. But once in the air, and flying at high speed, the necessity for so much wing area disappears. A bullet travels through the air by its own momentum It becomes the same with an aeroplane at very high speed. At 200 miles an hour there is little plane surface required. Thus it may be necessary in the future to have wings or planes which, fully extended at the start of a flight may be telescoped in the air.

BADLY DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

Face a Mass. Ashamed to Show Himself. Scratched Them Raw. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Less Than a Week.

131 Mystic St., Arlington, Mass.—"There were pimples on my face the size of bird shot. They were dark red with a white head in the center. My face was such a mass of pimples I was ashamed to show myself in society. The pimples itched so much that I scratched them raw. For two months they had caused me much pain and many sleepless nights. My face was very badly disfigured. I used ——, ——, ——, and other remedies too numerous to mention, but without success. I had about given up when by chance I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I immediately sent for a sample. I bathed my face with hot water and washed it thoroughly with Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. After the first application I felt relief, so I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in less than a week I was completely cured." (Signed) Wm. N. Gamester, Dec. 11, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skin, itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

BOTH POWERFUL WORKS.

"Song of Destiny" and "Song of Victory" Very Different in Character.

The Oratorio Society is on the eve of the last concert of the season, and with a larger orchestra and new instrumentation hopes to give the best in the series.

Two works will be given by the chorus—"Song of Destiny," by Johannes Brahms, and "A Song of Victory," op. 151, by Ferdinand Hiller. As the names indicate, the works are in strong contrast, as were the composers. Both were Germans, living in the nineteenth century; both were learned and successful, and the works of both are somewhat unfamiliar. Brahms, however, was virile, and attained vastness in all he did, while Hiller lacked strong individualism, though he produced works finished in form and pleasing. Brahms also was a master of form, but did not hesitate to deviate from conventional lines when it suited his artistic purpose.

Hiller has not before appeared on the Newport Oratorio Society's programs, but Brahms's name has been seen twice, his "Wher'er I Go" having been given December 7, 1911, at the first concert after its organization, and his "Rhapsodie," from Goethe's "Hartreise im Winter," op. 53 (called "a heavenly work"), having been sung by the male voices at the second concert, March 6, 1912, with Mrs. Sarah Bailey King as soloist.

The "Song of Destiny" is a short work—only 20 pages—but the dramatic scene shifts quickly with Brahms, and in it he brings out forcibly the contrast between the blessed abode of the divine spirits and the fate of the restless, grief-laden mortals who blindly wander from one sad hour to another. Hiller's "Song of Victory" is just that from start to finish—from the statement at the opening bar, "The Lord great wonders for us hath wrought," to the paean of praise and the "Hallelujah" at the close. While the compositions differ thus widely in character, each is a powerful work, and both will be heard with interest.

Make-Up of Teams for Bayside Club's Fifth Whist Tournament.

(Regular correspondence of the News.)

The members of the Bayside Club had a salad supper at their quarters on Knowles court Monday evening. Afterward partners were drawn and the first round in the fifth series of whist tournaments was played. The make-up of the teams was:

No. 1, Peter Blackwell and Alton Head, L. W. Anthony and W. A. Clarke; W. S. Littlefield substitute.

No. 2, J. C. Tefft and G. D. Anthony, G. L. Chandler and Frederic Anthony; I. H. Clarke substitute.

No. 3, J. H. Tefft and A. A. Brown, Jacob Sebleith and Alonzo Tefft; W. H. Brooks, substitute.

The score for the round: No. 1, 59; No. 2, 52; No. 3, 46.

Postmaster Caswell has received an order from the department officials that no steps be taken for establishing a trial free delivery of mail within the village, which was to have gone into effect May 1. That matter has been dropped and, instead, commencing June 1, a rural free delivery route will be established on the island.

Dr. A. M. Mendenhall has returned from a short trip to New York.

The work of overhauling steamer Conanicut to put her in readiness for the summer commenced this morning.

Captain C. L. Champlin, who is at the Newport Hospital, has so far recovered as to be able to sit up a few minutes daily.

LEASED FOR TEA HOUSE.

Fifth Avenue Home of the Late Commodore William H. Vanderbilt.

The home of the late Commodore William H. Vanderbilt, at 379 Fifth avenue, New York, has been leased by Mrs. Marie Torrence Hadden to Miss Ida L. Frese, who will use the building after it is altered for a tea room. The house, which was occupied by Commodore Vanderbilt up to the time of his death, was purchased by him in 1878 for $70,000. It is one of the few remaining private dwelling houses on Fifth avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second streets. The lease is for a term of years from June 1 for an aggregate rental of about $500,000.

Mrs. Hadden, the present owner, is a granddaughter of the commodore. It was inherited by her from her mother. In the past few years many tempting offers for the sale or the lease of the property have been refused by Mrs. Hadden.

OSCAR F. SAGER DEAD.

Former Teacher and Organizer of Sloyd Classes in This City.

Mr. Oscar F. Sager, formerly teacher of sloyd in the Industrial School of this city, died at the Goddard Hospital at Brockton Monday, following an operation. He was a teacher of wide experience. Coming to Newport in November, 1893, he started the sloyd classes for the Industrial school in the old Farewell Street building, going later to the new building. He resigned June 10, 1895.

From Newport he went to the Brockton High School, to take charge of the manual training department, where he remained 11 years, retiring in 1907 to enter the architect business in Brockton. He was for several years a member of the school committee of that city. While a teacher in the Brockton high school Mr. Sager coached the football and base ball teams, and during that period Brockton High was represented by the best teams in its history. He developed such base ball stars as "Barney" Reilly, former Yale, Haverhill and Chicago American infielder, and Walter H. Snell of Brown, last year with the Boston Red Sox; and such football stars as Arthur E. Brides of Yale, Tom Barry, Ross Scudder "Spike" Dennie and Arthur Staff of Brown.

Mr. Sager was a member of Cornet Council Royal Arcanum of this city, having joined the organization June 22, 1894, and retained his membership after leaving the city.

THE CAT NOT SATISFIED.

Contractor Harris this morning began the demolition of the old police station on the police station site. It can be added that Mr. Stevens's cat is down in his new office, but not at all satisfied. Some may be sceptical about the cat being in the new place, but there is a reason. The door is locked, and the best she can do is to look out of the window. She knows where the old shop is, and her heart seems to be there still.

—The Sterling Debenture Company, whose officers have been convicted in a big mail stock sale fraud, sent much of its literature to Newport and it is assumed that a little harvest was reaped here, though no one has come forward yet to admit that he was "stung." —The members of Engine Company No. 1 have been ordered to report at their station at 6:15 Wednesday evening for practice, and if all goes well 15 or 20 minutes later the steamer will be at City wharf to undergo her first spring trial. This year, in addition to interested citizens, there will be present Council Committee on fire department, who will watch the performance.

Wright, who is also trying for third base, played in five games, accepted two chances without error, was at bat six times and made one safe, with a batting percentage of .167.

—Brigadier General Montgomery M. Macomb, U. S. A., and Mrs. Macomb arrived Monday evening to be guests of Mrs. Macomb's parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Stephen B. Luce, on Francis street. General Macomb has been on duty in Hawaii, in command of the First Hawaiian brigade of the United States army, with headquarters at Oahu, and was relieved the latter part of February by Brigadier General Clarence R. Edwards. He has been ordered to Washington as president of the Army War College.

MELODY AND EMOTION.

Mr. Geer's Lecture Proves Both Interesting and Important.

"The Emotional Element in Music" was the theme considered by Mr. Geer in his lecture Monday evening, and it proved both interesting and important. He said art must combine three features—the sensuous, the intellectual, the emotional. Technique without soul is dead. There are no laws governing the emotional element; the soul is above law. No amount of juggling can atone for poverty of ideas; therefore Beethoven revised his work with patience.

A sure test of the worth of a theme is to try it in various tempos. Thus tested, a theme from the Dvorak "New World Symphony" is deficient. Yet artistic taste requires culture. The small boy is pleased with a drum, the cultured Greeks used the flute and lyre. If one would have good taste he should see and hear as little as possible of what is cheap. A real work of art requires years of study to fathom, and this should be given to the masterpieces of such composers as Bach and Beethoven.

Another test is familiarity. A great work grows on us as we know it better; familiarity breeds contempt for cheap works.

A true melody must have emotion, and yet must claim our respect. Some of the alleged hymn tunes are altogether unworthy, others are noble or lovely. As a specimen of the merely sentimental the speaker referred to music in the "Tales from Hoffman." Then, too, there is the sentimental "critic," who reads into the works of a composer all sorts of fairies, fays and fantastic fancies of which the composer never dreamed.

Music is the language of the emotions, but a study for 40 weeks of one great, beautiful composition has been recommended by one authority. An example of expression is found in the march of the third Symphony, and there is the inimitable "Invitation to the Dance" of Weber, or the Valkyrie music. For solemnity, the great "Pilgrim Chorus" in Tannhauser is a model; its low chords add much to the effect and the rich tone color. Of the playful mood there is the "Rondo Capriccioso," for humor a good Beethoven scherzo, for gloom the Chopin funeral march.

Hearers must be willing to enter the mood of the music or they can not understand or enjoy it. The music of the Catholic church, which had departed from the ancient dignity of Palestrina, has received a recall to its former churchly character.

A dissonance is something to be resolved. It may aid emotional effect, and concord following it is more effective. It accents, or colors, or gives desired expression. Intellect sometimes runs away from the idea of beauty. In Widor's "Gothic Symphony" are ugly sounds, but they enhance the beauty which follows. The old composers were careful to follow form; the modern ones obscure it. Bach and Beethoven are great models.

Next week the subject will be Representative Music; and the Beethoven "Pastoral Symphony" and "Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" will be used as examples.

THE WATER WORKS INQUIRY

Company Not Likely to Increase Plant Until Decision is Reached.

While not much is heard about the status of Newport's water situation before the Public Utilities Commission, the matter is progressing. Last Thursday City Solicitor Sullivan and Judge Burke were in Providence, holding a conference on the matter. This week it is expected that they will go up again, with the city engineer, and go over certain details relative to public fountains and the city supply. As soon as the expert who has been working on the matter of valuing the company's property can complete his report it will be submitted to the commission and further progress it is expected will be made.

In the meantime the proposed reservoir at Lawton's valley remains "in the air." The company has secured the land, but no start on construction work has been begun, as it was reported would be the case as soon as it ended the condemnation proceedings. It is now understood that the company will not increase its plant until it learns what the Public Utilities Commission is to decide upon the various questions before it. If the commission demands the sale of water by meter it is thought possible that an additional reservoir will be a long time in coming, since it is claimed that meters cut down the unnecessary use and waste of water, and so lessen the necessity for a big supply.

NOT AN ORGANIZATION.

The "I. W. W." a Secret Horde Lurking in Every Industrial Community.

[New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.]

One of the incidents of the late snow storm in this city has a peculiar significance which ought to serve as a warning to many warm-hearted and soft-hearted people.

The pestilent leaders of that mythical organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World did not miss the opportunity for which they are always watchfully waiting, to create a tumult of the lawless element which is ever ready to demand a living without earning it. The I. W. W. is not an organization. It is a kind of secret horde lurking in every industrial community which may be called into activity spasmodically or spread calls when excitement is caused by a labor strike or by any occasion of distress and a leader can be found to raise a mob. Then crowds which are not of its real material may be drawn into the current of agitation and used as a means of intimidation or of violence in the name of labor and the relief of the oppressed. [illegible] material that may be rallied to [illegible] and made inflammable for this purpose has been accumulating in various centres of industries to be set on fire on such occasions as the strikes at Lawrence and Passaic and in the copper mines of Michigan and [illegible] mines of Colorado. All that has [illegible] organized in this I. W. W. is leadership which assumes the command of the lawless whenever the opportunity arises.

[illegible] it appeared on the scene [illegible] healthy unemployed in this [illegible] summoned to the well paid [illegible] the streets of snow [illegible] who refused to earn it when [illegible] Its purpose was [illegible] under the effort [illegible] between those who could work and those who [illegible] deserv[illegible] for the homeless [illegible] in distress [illegible] means of immediate relief [illegible] are proper objects of [illegible] a different matter from finding [illegible] for this [illegible] seeking [illegible] was lost sight of when [illegible] invaded churches and demanded their right to be sheltered and fed [illegible] threatened [illegible] refused to [illegible] helping themselves from [illegible] The mobs which indulged in that exhibition were made up of the industrious who could not get work or of the deserving [illegible] who needed relief but mainly of the lawless and worthless and those who are taught by the I. W. W. spirit that society owes them a living which they are entitled to whether they earn it or not.

There has been too much pandering to this spirit not by direct concession but by promiscuous sheltering and feeding in churches or public buildings in emergency but by spreading the doctrine that the community as an organized body is bound to provide for its members according to their needs or their wants. It springs from the assumption that the great mass of workers are the creators of all wealth and are entitled to divide the fruits of labor, that capitalists and employers are unnecessary to production and distribution and either do not contribute to its increase or get from it far more than their share to the deprivation of those who do the work. This springs from the theory propounded and disseminated by Socialism which rests upon fallacies that reason and experience continually deny. Much of the teaching of those who are earnestly working for the uplifting of humanity has given countenance to the restless spirit that leads to lawlessness and violence. The churches have not been altogether free from this incubation of mischief and some of the brood is instinctively coming home to roost.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALASKA.

parties. He may agree to terms on his own initiative but no lease shall be for more than 20 years. All private railroads that may be confiscated will be paid for at the physical valuation only. Whenever, if ever, any government railroad or telegraph or telephone line should be leased to private parties it will at once be under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

To authorize such an ambitious proposition as the Alaska government railways without providing a means to release the immense coal deposits the lines will tap would be the height of folly. Consequently, there is every likelihood of the early passage of an Alaskan coal land leasing law in some form. That introduced by Representative Ferris provides in effect for the leasing of the coal lands of the territory to individuals or corporations in areas not to exceed 2,560 acres in each case and payment to the government of two cents for every ton of coal mined by them. Coal companies claim that 2,560 acres is too small an area upon which to operate a coal mine with profit in the United States proper. This is because they must dig down several hundred feet to find a small strata of coal but in Alaska the deposits are compact almost to the surface of the land. Under such circumstances 2,560 acres in Alaska are equivalent to 10,000 acres in the coal fields of Illinois, Indiana or Kentucky, it is believed.

Alaska was bought from Russia for $7,200,000 in 1867. To date nearly $100,000,000 has been taken out of it. Fully one third has not even been explored and barely the surface of the rest has been touched. The gold returns run from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 per annum. The fisheries come next with an average of $10,000,000. There are over 12,000 square miles of coal land and no human being can estimate the billions of tons that lie buried there. The need of tapping these coal deposits at once is great for the citizens of the territory now pay out nearly $[illegible]00,000 annually for coal shipped up from the United States or Canada. Professor Alfred H. Brooks, a geologist who knows more about Alaska than any living man, is reported to have estimated that the government loses an equal amount every year by not being able to have a naval coal base on Resurrection bay and then use Alaskan coal.

In area Alaska possesses 590,884 square miles which is 13,000 square miles greater than Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland combined. Norway, Sweden and Finland, with an area of 441,567 square miles, support a population of 10,684,839 on agriculture and fisheries alone for they have no coal, copper or gold. The population of Alaska is 31,000, about one half being natives. A wonderful and long neglected empire lies before us.

A SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE.

Naval Survey Men Fortunate in Finding an Abundance of Game.

[R. J. Fraser, in Wide World Magazine.]

It was during the latter part of June, 1911, when, deeply laden with provisions and coal—an 18 months supply—lumber and furnishings for a winter camp and all the paraphernalia that goes to make up a naval survey outfit our little schooner left the hills of Halifax behind, and commenced the long voyage to the Northland. Up past the rugged barren Labrador cliffs we sailed, butted and struggled our way through the ice barriers of the Hudson straits and penetrated the floes and fields of the great northern bay. After a month of strenuous and exciting navigation we dropped anchor off the mouth of the Nelson river. Two days were spent in preliminary examination then under the pilotage of a native Cree with a three-knot tide behind her the schooner crossed the bar, nosed her way up the narrow tortuous channel and finally came to rest in the sheltered waters of the river—the first vessel to enter Port Nelson.

It was early in August when we moved ashore and pitched our tents on the bank of the Nelson, that mighty stream that flows through the breadth of Keewatin, draining the [illegible] country in Canada before [illegible] its mud laden waters into Hudson bay. The ducks, black and mallard, saw bills and the numerous other varieties that haunt our northern lakes were already lighting on the marshes or on the placid waters of the tidal creeks, their temporary resting places on the long journey south. Accompanying them were the gray geese and their pretty cousins the white wavies, the former daily passing by in wedges awakening the stillness with their "Honk, honk." Over the gravel beaches and the shining mud flats skipped plover and [illegible] yellow legged snipe.

These were but the forerunners, the herald of the same tribe that throughout the long weary winter months passed before our door. [illegible] and more [illegible] polar bear, white [illegible] Arctic and colored [illegible] fox [illegible] beaver and ermine [illegible] and white swan [illegible] spruce partridge [illegible] ptarmigan, plover and snipe [illegible] whitefish and rainbow trout—all these we shot, trapped [illegible] and netted in variable numbers and all within a one mile radius of our camp. Truly we had dropped into a sportsman's paradise.

Our first caribou, a magnificent buck, came as a gift from the gods. He was shot less than 200 yards from the doors of our shack. It was really [illegible] use of [illegible] getting money from home without asking for it, for the poor animal had not one chance in a hundred of escaping. It was in the latter part of September and the last venison steak had been eaten the day before. An expedition for the purpose of replenishing the meat safe was being contemplated. George had gone outside the shack and happening to take a glance along the river saw what appeared to be a tree drifting up stream on the rising tide. Looking more closely he noticed that it was turning round and round. Knowing there were no eddies in the current there the idea that it might be a deer occurred to me and I hurried into the camp after my glasses. One look confirmed the suspicion and I sang out to the boys: "Get the dory launched and drive that deer ashore."

GUILLOTINE IN MEXICO.

Desire for Revenge Responsible for New Form of Execution.

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 7.—The guillotine has made its appearance in Mexico and a new form of execution confronts the enemies of the Constitutionalists in San Luis Potosi, it was learned today. At Conception Del Oro, a home-made guillotine has been erected. It was built by rebel mechanics in the corps commanded by General Eulalio Gutierrez, who is now in this city conferring with Carranza. Already the new instrument has been tested and, as the general says: "It works spendidly." The test was made with a lamb as the victim.

Desire for revenge is responsible for the appearance of the guillotine in Mexico. General Gutierrez's brother-in-law, Jose Morales, was killed some time ago in battle against the Federals near Saltillo. The family of Morales, including an infant daughter and Gutierrez's sister, were living in Saltillo. The Federal commander arrested the relatives of Gutierrez, placed them on board a troop train, and sent them to San Luis Potosi. The baby died of exposure on the way, and nothing is known of the fate of other members of the family. From stories told by rebels, this is only one of the many instances where the women and children of rebels have been taken from Saltillo by the Federals and sent to other cities and to supposedly horrible fates. It is said that in some instances the women have been given to the Federal soldiers.

General Gutierrez says he will leave Juarez in two or three days to resume his campaign against San Luis Potosi. "My outposts are within eight kilometers of the capital of that state, and I expect to capture the place this time. Fourteen thousand men are under arms in the state and I can send them all against the city, and when I have it I hope to find my sister and her family. If they have been mistreated the guillotine is ready for action."

BEARDS COME AND GO.

A Clean Shaven Face Seems to Have Become Essentially American.

[New York Tribune.]

From the small matter of feminine [illegible] the debate has [illegible] whole matter of beards, using the term in the broadest sense. Shall we shave or shall we not? Is the French topiary art preferable to our American planing and polishing?

Just why our nation has looked askance at elaborate beards it would be an interesting task for the historians to figure out. Perhaps merely because we are conservative, and when our nation took its birth from England clean shaving was the order of the day. Prior to that beards had been "in" and "out" time and again among our ancestors. But with the reign of Queen Anne every vestige of beard, mustache and whisker vanished, and throughout the days of the colonies, when Americans were fixing their [illegible] and dress and habits, hair was not.

[illegible] began to cultivate moustaches in England again around the days of Waterloo, and the "piccadilly weepers" marked the climax of returning hair in the sixties. But America never followed this lead with much enthusiasm. Beards of a modest sort were not infrequent in the eighties and nineties, but taking their record throughout Americans have well earned their reputations for being clean shaven.

Perhaps we might be more decorative if we were bearded like Abraham, Agamemnon and King Arthur. But what is the use of going behind a national resolve. There is something essentially American about a clean shaven face. Frankness, keenness, good nature, efficiency—who knows how many of our best characteristics might disappear if we abandoned our national habits in search of art!

RHODE ISLAND'S SPANISH WAR CLAIMS.

The House committee on war claims has reported favorably the bill of Congressman O'Shaunessy, referring to the court of claims for adjudication the claim of the state of Rhode Island for re-imbursement of money expended in fitting out troops in the Spanish-American war, and in caring for sick soldiers of other states. General Treasurer Read's books show that $52,010.01 is still unpaid.

ALWAYS A SCARE.

Latest Predictions About Money Conditions Not Troubling the People.

The Way of the Senate—Gardner and His Father-in-Law—Congressional Record Fat.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—If it is not one scare it is another. One day it is Japan, another it is Germany, then Mexico, and then all South America. But Senator James Hamilton Lewis rolled all into one and threw England and France in to make good measure and in one short speech snatched from us the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska, the Panama canal and control of Mexico—such as it is—and abolished the Monroe doctrine. Afterward a newspaper man came out of the gallery and remarked, "What a wonderful imagination that man has!"

Then came the scare about the money conditions in the Treasury Department. The income tax is not going to raise enough money, and there will be a shortage because the tariff has been reduced on imported articles. That scare was not extensive, for the people in general believe that in some way or other money will be forthcoming to pay the expenses of the government. In spite of all they are saying about our troubles old Uncle Sam will still have good credit.

"If this is going to open up one of our usual parliamentary discussions here I shall decline to yield further. I want to be accommodating, but I can see a broad field opening up for discussion."

Thus spoke Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, who was in charge of two of the army appropriation bills and wanted to have them passed. He referred to the trend of the discussion, which was then over certain parliamentary procedure and rules. Isn't it strange that as long as the Senate has been running it is constantly in a turmoil over its method of procedure and what its rules mean? However, the Senate is not much different from the House in this regard, for much time is consumed in the House over points of order and parliamentary procedure.

Several years ago Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts jocularly remarked that he was "trying to live down his father-in-law." It was at a dinner that he told what a burden it was to have a distinguished father-in-law. During the debate on the canal tolls he had that burden thrust upon him again. Gardner was favoring the repeal, and different members of the House who took the opposite side kept quoting Senator Lodge on the meaning of the treaty, which was to the effect that the United States had the right to regulate charges on its coastwise trade, and Gardner was kept quite busy in defense of his father-in-law. It reminded one of Frederick Marryat's novel "Japhet in Search of a Father."

The Congressional Record has been bulging these days with ideas of Congressmen on canal tolls. Members of Congress were granted "leave to print," and they have taken advantage of it as they seem to think that their positions must be explained at some length. As a result the Record has been larger for the last 10 days than any time this season. Somebody has been doing a lot of reading up about the canal, treaties, international law and such things, for a vast amount of information has been printed.

Everybody could understand that Theodore Roosevelt enjoyed a fight for the sake of a row, and we are beginning to believe that the same is true in regard to President Wilson. When the battle over the canal raged the highest and there were thunders of eloquence being poured forth in both the Senate and House Woodrow Wilson was apparently enjoying himself as if nothing unusual was happening. He laughed and talked and joked with the newspaper boys, told stories and really seemed to think that the situation contained elements of amusement. Taking that view of things he will get through his administration without much trouble.

One day there burst forth upon the House, when the galleries were crowded and everybody looking on, a slender figure with a shock of dark hair and with a voice that could be heard in remote corners of the Capitol. The man could talk, and he could act, and the question was passed around, "Who is it?"

"I have seen him before," remarked one man. "You cannot fool me on that fellow. He's Hamlet, he is. I have seen him on the stage in several country towns." The member of the House who was causing all this comment was none other than Congressman Gray of Indiana, and he has many strong convictions, and also a strong way of expressing them.

OXFORD MEN TO VISIT BROWN.

Jackson to Enter Relay Race in Philadelphia Carnival.

NEW YORK, April 7.—According to despatches from London today, Arnold N. S. Jackson, president of the Oxford University Athletic Club, will sail on the Olympic Wednesday, to take part in the four-mile relay race in the inter-collegiate carnival in Philadelphia April 25. Accompanying Jackson will be G. M. Sproat and D. N. Geisser who, with Norman S. Taber, who is now in America, comprise Oxford's team. The team will spend four days as the guest of Brown University, then they will go to Philadelphia to finish training.

MUST UNDERGO OPERATION.

Suffragette Who Damaged the "Rokeby Venus" Ill.

LONDON, April 7.—May Richardson, the militant suffragette who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment March 12 for damaging Velasquez's painting in the National Gallery, known as the "Rokeby Venus" was removed from Holloway jail today to undergo an operation for appendicitis. The operation had been recommended by her own doctor last autumn.

The authorities have granted her six weeks in which to recover from the operation, but will extend the period if the patient's condition should render it necessary. Miss Richardson, who has served less than a month of her sentence, has undertaken to remain in a hospital or a home until the expiration of her temporary discharge.

APPEAL SENT TO ALUMNAE.

Temporary Building for Offices and Class Rooms Erected at Wellesley.

WELLESLEY, Mass., April 7.—A temporary wooden building for the college offices and class rooms was ready for use when the students of Wellesley College returned to resume their studies, interrupted by the fire which destroyed College Hall March 17. The building, which was erected within 10 days, is a long, one-story structure, containing 66 rooms. The young women who roomed in College Hall will be accommodated in the other dormitories.

The trustees estimate that $1,800,000 will be needed for the construction and equipment of a new building to replace College Hall. They have sent an appeal to the alumnae for this sum.

FOR EXPLORING PURPOSES.

Explorers' Club Discusses Plan, to Purchase the Roosevelt.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Members of the Explorers' Club, which gave Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary a banquet and a gold medal last night as a celebration of the fifth anniversary of his discovery of the North Pole, discussed a plan to purchase the Roosevelt, the ship in which Peary made his journey to the Arctic. The Roosevelt now lies in the East river just under the Brooklyn bridge. After Peary's return it was sold to a wrecking company.

The plan, which was received enthusiastically last night, was to purchase the Roosevelt, use it for exploring purposes for some years and to retire it, in its old age, to an honorable station as a relic of a great feat.

DERBYSHIRE'S PURCHASE.

Whole of Lord Howard de Walden's Regents Park Estate Acquired.

LONDON, April 7.—Another great London land deal has been concluded, by which S. P. Derbyshire acquired the whole of Lord Howard de Walden's Regent Park estate for more than $2,500,000. In point of size this is said to be the largest transfer of London property that has ever taken place, for the total extent of the estate is 62½ acres. It contains 750 houses, divided among some 20 streets. A police station, St. Stephen's Church, four large schools and eight public houses are within the area.

Mr. Derbyshire is a director of several companies and senior partner of a firm of chartered accountants, but in this purchase he is acting for himself alone. Apparently his intention is to demolish the old-fashioned buildings and convert this part of London into a new Mayfair.

ON ACCOUNT OF BUSINESS.

Schmidt Not to Enter Golf Championship at Sandwich.

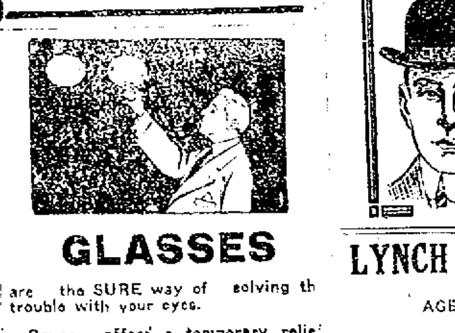

NEW YORK, April 7.—W. Heinrich Schmidt, former Massachusetts golf champion who did so well at St. Andrews last year, writing from California to a friend in this city, stated that it will be impossible for him to compete in the British amateur championship at Sandwich, on account of business. The American entrants in the British championship are Travers, Herreshoff, Ouimet and Lockwood, who already are in England. Henry J. Topping is on his way, while Parker W. Whittemore, Harold Weber and Frazer Hale have decided to go. Charles Evans, Jr., has made no definite announcement, but it is believed in golfing circles that he will go in a couple of weeks.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD NOT CHOSEN.

Wilson Understood to be Selecting Country's Big Men.

Political Considerations Not to Weigh in His Choice.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—By the time final steps toward the organization of the 12 federal reserve banks have been taken, which is expected to be within another month, President Wilson will send to the Senate the names of five men who, with the Secretary of the Treasury and comptroller of the currency will compose the federal reserve board and put into operation the nation's new currency system.

The President, to date, has not determined on a single name. He has made no offers and really has not begun individual consideration to any extent. He has before him data concerning a long list of men who have been recommended to him as worthy of places on the board. Information about their qualifications and personality has been carefully prepared for the President, so that he can begin the sifting process practically without need of urther inquiry.

Few people, perhaps less than a half dozen, know just what names are before the President, but it is understood that some of the biggest men in the country are on the list. One of the reasons for extreme secrecy is the uncertainty whether those who eventually will be offered places on the board will accept. Some of the men being considered receive salaries of $25,000 and $30,000 a year in their present positions in the financial and business world, and would have to make sacrifices to take the salary of $12,000 allowed members of the board.

One thing is certain and this is that the men who are on the President's eligible list are not prominent in politics. Mr. Wilson has determined that political considerations shall not weigh in his selections.

Already, it is said, a man of big business and banking experience who would have been fitted for the board has been eliminated from consideration, because of a brief period of active participation in Democratic politics.

FIFTEEN DAYS OF HEARINGS.

Senate Canals Committee Allows Time on the Sims Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Fifteen days of public hearings, beginning April 9, on the Sims bill, to repeal the Panama tolls exemption, were decided upon today by the Senate canals committee.

Administration supporters, pressing for a minimum of delay in getting the Sims bill out of committee, protessed to be satisfied with the plan for 15 days of hearings, provided added time was not reserved for consideration of the bill after the hearings are over. The hearings will give opportunity for threshing out various amendments, principal among them one to re-affirm the sovereignty of the United States over the canal zone, and its right under the treaty to grant an exemption to coastwise ships if it desired to do so.

The controversy continued to eclipse interest in all other business in the Senate chamber. Senator Works, Republican, of California, made a lengthy speech analyzing the treaty obligations of the United States. "The granting of this exemption is a purely domestic matter," said he. "There could be no discrimination against Great Britain because no nation can enter into the coastwise trade. Some of our own representatives have out Britished the British in their claims for that nation."

Senator Brandegee, Republican, cast the only vote against the hearings, saying he did so because he believed the committee's action would have no weight. He urged that the repeal bill be returned to the Senate without any report and the fight be transferred to the floor.

The committee adjourned until Thursday with the understanding that the authors of various bills and resolutions on the subject will then be heard pending the arrival of witnesses from New Orleans and the Pacific coast.

By a vote of 35 to 27, the first taken in the Senate on the Panama tolls exemption controversy, Senator Poindexter's resolution asking President Wilson for an explanation of the language of his repeal message was referred to the foreign relations committee.

Urging passage of the Poindexter resolution Senator Lippitt, Republican, of Rhode Island, declared that he was undecided how he would vote on the repeal bill and believed it the duty of the Senate to find out what apprehensions the President has to the country's foreign relations which had prompted the language of his message. "I have not found any man anywhere who understands what in the world that language means," he said.

Then the Senate adopted Senator Brandegee's resolution calling on the State Department for "all information correspondence and records bearing on the negotiations for the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the interpretation of that treaty."

POLITICAL GROUPS ON STRIKE.

Kiyoura Unable to Form a Cabinet to Replace the Old.

TOKIO, April 7.—The Japanese empire has been thrown into a condition of utter political confusion by the inability of Viscount Keigo Kiyoura to form a cabinet to replace that under the premiership of Count Yamammoto. The viscount today informed the emperor that he was compelled to give up the task entrusted to him.

All the political groups, as well as the navy, have virtually gone on strike. The various Progressive factions declare that the constitution is not being properly observed, while the navy demands immediate advances of money for warship construction and the appointment of a sailor as minister of marine. The elder statesmen were again summoned to the imperial palace to confer with the emperor today.

EXCEPTIONS MAY BE MADE.

Daniels Sure Order Barring Liquor from Navy Will be Favored.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Secretary Daniels's order barring alcoholic liquors from American warships and naval stations continued today to be a topic of animated discussion at the Army and Navy Club and wherever navy officers gathered. Mr. Daniels said he had not yet considered in what circumstances he will make exceptions to the rule, but reminded inquirers that Surgeon General Braisted, who recommended the banishment of alcohol, had suggested that exceptions could be made wherever international courtesy required. The Secretary has not made up his mind what course he will pursue when the international fleet mobilizes at Hampton Roads next year, to go through the Panama Canal at its formal opening.

"I am sure the order will meet with the approval of nearly all officers and I expect full compliance," said Mr. Daniels.

The order created no little interest among army officers, but none of the officials at the War Department would comment for publication. When the subject was mentioned to Secretary Garrison he said: "When I was a young man my father pointed out to me a man who had made a fortune minding his own business."

OPERATION NECESSARY.

Only Means for Relieving Illness of King Gustave of Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, April 7.—An operation is the only means for dealing with the internal complaint from which King Gustave of Sweden is suffering, according to the opinion of Professor Wilhelm Filner, the specialist who was called here from Heidelberg, and the other physicians in attendance. His Majesty today expressed the wish that the operation should be performed at the earliest possible moment. The king has been suffering intermittent attacks of his illness since October last.

NEW YORK, April 7, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper 77, Anaconda 35⅞, Baltimore & Ohio 90, Central Leather 35½, Chicago & Northwestern 134⅛, Erie 29⅞, General Electric 146½, Great Northern Preferred 127⅛, Missouri Pacific 25¾, New York Central 89½, Northern Pacific 111¾, Reading 165⅝, Rock Island Pfd 6¼, Southern Pacific 94¾, Union Pacific 150¾, United States Steel 64½, United States Steel pfd 110½, Wabash pfd 5½, Western Union 62⅝.

10:45—Market conditions today paralleled those of yesterday. Stocks at the opening were firmly held, trading was abnormally dull, and fluctuations were so small as to be meaningless. The only exceptions to the rule were the cases of a few specialties. Great Northern Ore's loss of yesterday was extended and General Electric fell nearly a point.

Noon—Trading during the morning was the slowest of any day of the year, and price changes were significant. Only 11,200 shares were dealt in during the forenoon session. Holders of stocks were not affected by the prevailing depression of speculative sentiment, but the uncertainty of the outlook effectually prevented extensive buying. The trading element abandoned efforts to put up prices owing to revival of liquidation in stock of companies undergoing reorganization or facing other difficulties. Standard shares barely moved, although firmness was shown in the grain carriers, owing to the expectation of an exceptionally strong showing in the government crop report later in the day. Bonds were steady. Money on call, steady, at 1¾ per cent. Mercantile paper, 2½ @ 3 per cent. Exchanges, $319,890,705; balances, $17,835,190.

MIDDLETOWN.

Boundaries of Highway Districts Changed and Town Officers Appointed.

Special Meeting Necessary to Start Work of Restoring Roads to a Smooth Condition.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Contrary to the usual custom, a special meeting of the town council for organization and for appointing certain town officers was held at the town hall Monday afternoon. In former years organization has been deferred until the third Monday in the month, the regular meeting day. This year it was deemed necessary to have a special meeting, in order to appoint surveyors of highways and start them in the work of restoring the roads to a smooth condition, and repair breaches caused by frost and rain.

At 2 o'clock Lewis R. Manchester, Joseph E. Kline, David A. Brown, James R. Chase, 2d., and Robert W. Smith, the five men elected to the town council, appeared at the town hall and were sworn into office by Town Clerk Albert L. Chase. Lewis R. Manchester was chosen president.

The highways were divided into four districts and some changes were made in the boundaries. All of the West Main road and Forest avenue was assigned to No. 1, and all of the East Main road and the north part of Mitchell's Lane to No. 2. The sum of $300 was apportioned to each district for ordinary repairs and $500 for the repair of stone roads. The rates of compensation were fixed as follows: $2 per day to each able-bodied man, $3 per day for a double team and $1.50 per day for each single wagon, nine hours to make a day.

The following were appointed an advisory committee: For district No. 1, James R. Chase, 2d.; No. 2, David A. Brown; No. 3, Robert W. Smith; No 4, Joseph E. Kline.

David A. Brown was appointed a committee to have charge of the buildings and property on the town house lot and attend to the leasing of the town hall.

David A. Brown was appointed a committee to have the care of the spring of water in Green End avenue, near its junction with Paradise avenue, and Joseph E. Kline a committee to attend to the keeping of the spring in Third Beach road.

On petition of the Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company, it was granted permission to locate two poles on the southerly side of the Boulevard, near Fenner avenue, under the direction of David A. Brown.

On the petition of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, it was authorized to trim such trees on the West Main road as interfere with the operation of its telephone and telegraph lines, the trimming to be done under the superintendence of William H. Sisson.

The town clerk was directed to give bond to the town treasurer in the sum of $500 and the town treasurer to give bond to the town in the sum of $30,000.

Joseph E. Kline and David A. Brown were appointed a committee to obtain proposals for furnishing crushed stone.

Lewis R. Manchester was appointed a committee to attend to the purchase and application of road oil.

Joseph E. Kline and Robert W. Smith were appointed a committee to confer with Isaac S. Hazard in regard to extending North Aquidneck avenue across his land to the East Main road and the land damages sustained by him thereby.

The two following accounts were allowed and ordered paid from the town treasury: Clifton B. Ward, for services as town treasurer for the year ending April 1, 1914, $250; Peckham Brothers' Company, for crushed stone furnished and for use of steam roller on Second and First Beach avenue near the bridge, in November, 1913, $111.04.

The following town officers were appointed:

RE-INSTATEMENT FAVORED.

Captain Potts May be Restored to Active List as a Rear Admiral.

Through the efforts of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts in obtaining reconsideration of the case of Captain Temolin M. Potts, his restoration to the active list of the navy as a real admiral will be recommended to the Senate. The poll of the Senate naval affairs committee, which the clerk was authorized at the last meeting to make, shows seven to five for Captain Potts, with three doubtful, one of whom is reported favorable. Those for re-instatement are Senators Tillman, Poindexter, Smith (Arizona), Swanson, Lodge, Smith (Maryland) and Clapp. Those against are Senators Bryan, Thornton, O'Gorman, Pave and Perkins. Of those absent Senator Johnson is reported favorable and Senators Penrose and Lewis are said to be doubtful.

CORNWALLIS WEST MARRIES.

Divorced Wife to be Known as Lady Randolph Churchill.

LONDON, April 6.—The decree of divorce granted to Mrs. George Cornwallis West, formerly Lady Randolph Churchill and a daughter of the late Leonard Jerome of New York, was made absolute by the divorce court here today, the requisite period having elapsed since the first decree. The grounds were statutory desertion and misconduct. Mrs. Cornwallis West will in future be known as Lady Randolph Churchill.

A few hours after the divorce had been pronounced George Cornwallis West married Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the English actress, who has often performed in the United States.

WILSON'S OPINION.

Thinks Press Reports Reveal Support for Repeal of Panama Tolls.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—President Wilson told visitors today that he considered that editorial expressions in the press and correspondence from disinterested observers all over the country revealed support of the administration's stand for the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption. The President said he did not expect the question to be a campaign issue and expressed confidence for an administrative victory in the Senate.

DEMANDS REFUSED.

Warren Manufacturing Company's Spinners and Doffers Strike.

WARREN, April 6.—The mule spinners and doffers at the mill of the Warren Manufacturing Company struck today when their employers failed to respond to their demands to cease supplying yarn to the Knight mills in the Pawtuxet valley, where the mule spinners have been on strike for several weeks. The strikers at the Warren mill number about 100, but if they do not return to work in a few days the entire mill will have to close, throwing about 1,500 operatives out of work. The strikers caused no disorder. This afternoon they had a base ball game between two teams picked from their number.

SUMMER LICENSES APPROVED.

other widening in accordance with the agreement. The agreement must be carried out as a whole or fail, and he hoped no action would be taken which would seem to cast doubt on the carrying out of the plans.

J. A. Barker said he hoped the plan already adopted would be carried out. He suggested that Captain Welles, of the Training station, was in the hall and asked that he be heard.

Captain Welles said that when Mr. Barker asked him if he was to be at the Council meeting he had said he was not, for he did not wish to appear to be trying to force the Council to do something it did not care to do. He recalled that 30 years ago, when a midshipman on the Tennessee, he came here with Admiral Luce. Who later was succeeded by Admiral Jewett. He remembered Admiral Luce going to the old poorhouse and saying this would be the Naval War College. The road to Coasters' Harbor island was the same then as it is now.

He thought Mr. Williams had explained the situation. If the city does not carry out the whole agreement of course the government will not. The Secretary and the solicitor general were very particular in regard to this matter and had to be satisfied that the city was doing just what was proposed before granting the permit, which all saw in the papers had been granted. If this agreement is not carried of it will mean beginning again to try to obtain something. He would not say that the Navy Department would not agree to widening under some other plan, but it would not agree to the widening of the hospital land and the sewer proposition if the city did not carry out its part of the agreement. If the city should change he promised to do what he could to induce the Navy Department to come into the plan adopted, but it would mean much loss of time.

The speaker called attention to some defects in the plan suggested for the Dyre Street extension. It would mean that the sewer would empty in the basin right between the locations of the Reina Mercedes and the Conatellation. In his opinion this would be objected to, not only by the officers at the station but also by the engineer officer in charge, as endangering the Station. He showed the great difference between the sewer outlet from the hospital perhaps 800 feet to the south and clear of the cove, where it would not be a menace. He said all would like to see a boulevard and hope to see one, but what is needed now is an improved way to the Training Station. Captain Welles was given generous applause when he ceased talking.

Chairman Harvey read a written request that on the boulevard question H. B. Wood and J. G. Parmenter desired to speak. He called on Mr. Wood. Admiral Chadwick protested against allowing him to speak, saying they had listened to him for an hour already and he had said all he had to say. The Chair ruled that Mr. Wood as a taxpayer had the right to ask to speak and the right to speak. Dr. Squire suggested that Mr. Wood be limited to 10 minutes. Chairman Harvey said he hoped the members would display courtesy. The rules limit a speaker to 10 minutes.

Mr. Wood had the floor for seven minutes. He paid his respects to Admiral Chadwick, and said he knew he had been tiresome, but he had the right to speak. He showed a large plat of the proposed changes to make part of the boulevard and explained what the resolution proposed to spend the money in making a part of the boulevard, which every one desired, instead of widening outer Third street, where no one cares to go. They had been fighting for this boulevard and had many setbacks, but hoped something could be done now. If nothing is done of course the light must be kept up, but to him it seemed that this was a great chance and he did not see that his plan could not be carried out under the agreement with the government.

Some thought this working for the boulevard was just simply himself, but such is not the case. There are petitions from many of the best citizens of Newport and there is a general desire to have this boulevard built. Even if it cannot go over the hospital land it should be built. He indicated that the naval hospital land covers but a small portion of the territory which the Boulevard is to cover, and the fact that it seems that the boulevard cannot go over the hospital land should not stop working for the boulevard, which is something the city ought to have. He had no objections to referring the matter to the Board of Aldermen, but hoped something would be done.

T. J. Williams asked if he thought the government would give the 19 feet if the city did not carry out its agreement and Mr. Wood said he thought it would. Mr. Williams asked why Dyre street was not continued in a straight line to the westward and Mr. Wood said that was for Mr. Huntington. It will give him a number of house lots 60 feet deep, adjoining the hospital land.

J. P. Cezzens said he was a member of the commitee on streets and improvements, but it seemed to him just as well to dispose of this matter now. He moved to lay the resolution on the table. It was the right move, for the Council so voted.

The ordinance for the assessment of a tax was amended by changing the date for the assessment from April 3 to April 17. There was no opposition.

Introduced by Mr. Dyer was a resolution directing the Board of Aldermen to report a plan and the possible cost of widening Touro street on the south side, from Mary street to Bellevue avenue; Bellevue avenue on the west side, from Touro street to Church street, and Church street on the north side for 300 feet west from Bellevue avenue, so as to make its north line a continuation of the north line of Catherine street, or to make such other plan for widening as may seem most advantageous to the board.

John J. Peckham said it seemed to him there were a great many of these widening propositions. He moved that it be laid on the table. This was again the popular move, and it was laid on the table without discussion.

Despite the recommendation of the street commissioner and of the Board of Aldermen, an extra appropriation of $300 was not added to the sewer appropriation to put in the sewer near the Van Zandt avenue bridge. At first it seemed that no one would speak. This was in the First ward. But not a Pollner spoke. Some one moved to lay the resolution on the table. This was lost. Mr. Murphy moved its passage. Dr. Squire moved reference to the Committee of Twenty-Five for next year, and this motion prevailed.

The Board of Aldermen recommended that $3,940 be appropriated and added to the appropriation for streets for necessary repairs to Briggs wharf and this the Council voted without opposition.

From the Board of Firewards came a number of nominations—Willis H. Nelson from hoseman to assistant foreman of Hose 8, to replace M. W. Wetherell, elected a member of the Board of Firewards; Assistant Hoseman J. H. Ronayne to be hoseman, in place of Nelson; George N. Buckhout, from assistant foreman to foreman of Steamer 5, to replace George C. Shaw, resigned; Harry G. Andrews, from hoseman to assistant foreman, and sub-hoseman W. J. Mohr, to be hoseman of the Fives; Assistant Hoseman George C. Williams to be hoseman of Steamer 4, vice C. E. Thurston, deceased. They were all elected.

Then Mr. Dyer called from the table the resolution giving the Board of Aldermen power to fill vacancies in the fire department when the Council is not in session, and it was passed.

The ordinance approved by the Board of Aldermen in the afternoon was then passed without opposition. Mr. Williams suggested that some care should be taken that the granolithic walk should have the same color, but the chairman said the Board of Aldermen would look after that. The ordinance is as follows:

An ordinance authorizing the Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company to construct and maintain underground conduits for electric wires.

Section 1—The Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company, its successors and assigns, are hereby authorized and empowered under the franchise heretofore granted to them to construct and maintain underground conduits, ducts, pipes or subways, with the necessary manholes, laterals and outlets, and to install wires and cables therein, and to erect and maintain distributing poles, wires and fixtures necessary to complete said distribution, in, under and along the following streets, lanes and other public places in the city of Newport: From power station of the said company in and along Pope street to Spring street, and thence from Pope street in and along Spring street to Pelham street, and on Pelham street from Spring street to the existing overhead line of the said company, substantially as shown on plan now on file in the city clerk's office; provided, however, that the particular location of said conduits, ducts, pipes and subways in any street shall be subject to the direction of the Board of Aldermen; and provided, further, that no street, highway or any part thereof shall be opened for the laying and construction of the said conduit or subway between the first day of June and the fifteenth day of September without the consent of the Board of Aldermen; and provided, further, that the said Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company shall accept the provisions of this ordinance within 10 days after the passage hereof.

This ordinance shall take effect on its passage.

H. C. Bachelier asked unanimous consent to introduce a petition and two resolutions, and no one objected. The petition was from Mrs. A. L. Green and others, asking for a sewer to connect three houses on Training Station road with the new sewer. The accompanying resolution made a special appropriation of $1,000. Mr. Dyer objected to the extra appropriation. That killed it. The second resolution made an appropriation of $100 for the committee on streets and improvement and this was passed.

Thomas J. Grimes was elected a weigher of coal and other merchandise and the Council adjourned.

BANKING INDIVIDUALISM.

Unfortunate and Dangerous Condition the Cause of Three Panics.

[Edward Sherwood Mead, in Lippincott's.]

In ordinary times the banks are close and friendly, anxious and able to help one another. If a bank wishes $100,000 from its New York correspondent, the money is sent the same day. If a loan is required, the banker is accommodated. Everything is smooth, agreeable and prosperous. But let the spirit of panic rise in the land, and these bonds of friendly cooperation are quickly broken. The average bank looks to itself and to its own depositors and borrowers. It holds to its cash, calls its loans, clamors for its own deposits and, under the pressure of stern necessity, follows the rule of every man for himself, and the devil of bankruptcy take the hindmost.

We must not overdraw this picture of selfishness. Even in periods of the greatest trial, many banks, and those the strongest members of the "Money trust," do not lose their courage. They pay their depositors; they take clearing-house certificates from the weaker brethren; they do not call a loan when the calling of it means bankruptcy; they even make new loans when it is necessary that new credit should be extended; they recognize to the fullest extent their responsibilities to their borrowers and depositors; but as for the rank and file, the thousands upon thousands of timid, cautous, routine bankers who in the aggregate control the finances of the United States, each one retreats, so far as he can, into his shell, piles up his cash, no matter how much business men may need the money and, with no idea of what he is doing, does his individual best to increase the general ruin and distress.

The statement of the case shows the remedy for this unfortunate and dangerous condition of banking individualism, a condition which has within 40 years resulted in three panics of the first class, followed by 11 years of industrial depression which have seriously retarded the industrial development of the country, inflicted upon the working classes, town, city, and country, an incalculable amount of physical suffering and financial loss, and made our banking system the laughing stock of the world. The remedy is to be found in banking centralization, in the organization of the banks of the United States into one system which shall be controlled by the strongest and wisest bankers in the country which will centralize the reserves so that they can be used, like the reserves of an army, whenever there is need of assistance; which will put it out of the power of the little men, the small bankers, to pull down the American financial structure about once in each 15 years; and which shall finally be so administered as not merely to check panic conditions when they arise, but to administer and control the national finances in such a manner as that the practices of inflation, over-expansion, unwise extension of credit, wild speculation, which give rise to panics, and which have been fostered and stimulated by ignorant bankers, crooked bankers, bankers greedy of gain and reckless of consequences, shall, in time, be abolished.

TRAVELING IN THE AIR.

Trip Across the Atlantic in Fifteen Hours a Possibility of the Near Future.

The Aeroplane Industry to Develop Quicker Than Railways, According to Grahame-White.

[Claude Graham White in London Graphic.]

A few months ago I was dining with a friend who, while interested in aviation, thought that the limits of the practical uses of the heavier-than-air machine had been almost reached. "You will never," he declared, "no matter what engine power you have, get a greater speed out of an aeroplane than 100 miles an hour. The resistance of the air is too great."

We disagreed. "I firmly believe," I told him, "that in under a quarter of a century there will be no part of the globe inaccessible to the aeroplane, and that no journey, whatever the distance, will occupy more than eight or nine days." He laughed at me. That, he declared, was the dream of an enthusiastic aviator, which by no conceivable stretch of scientific imagination could ever come true.

That evening is recalled to my mind now because Mr. Rudyard Kipling has told us that "The time is near when men will receive their normal impressions of a new country suddenly and in plan, not slowly and in perspective; when the most extreme distances will be brought within the compass of one week's—168 hours'—travel; when the word 'inaccessible,' as applied to any given spot on the surface of the globe will cease to have any meaning."

I am entirely with Mr. Kipling. My friend who argued so vehemently a short few months ago is already confounded. An aeroplane has done 110 mile in the hour—more than two miles a minute. So it requires no gift of prophecy to say that within 20 years we shall be able to cross the Atlantic in 15 hours. In 1924, that is to say, it will be possible to leave London Friday afternoon in a luxurious aerial Pullman, where one can eat and sleep in comfort, and reach New York the following morning. One would leave America on Sunday afternoon and be in town on Monday morning, with no more inconvenience than going to Paris or Scotland for the week-end now.

In 20 years' time the man or woman who has not traveled by air will be in exactly the same position as one who has never been in a train today. The aeroplane industry will, I think, take longer and quicker strides than the railway. With an engine of 160 horse power today a speed of 140 miles an hour has been done. The highest powered aeroplane engine today is only about 200 horse power. When we get, as we must very soon, engines similar to those in marine use, of thousands of horse power, the possibilities are almost beyond one's imagination.

There is no doubt that we shall have aerial vessels of the heavier-than-air type of the size of the Mauretania, carrying 3,000 and 4,000 passengers. They will cross the Atlantic in a day with the safety and certainty of an express train. I hope to cross to New York in this way myself one day. It will come far sooner than the majority of people think. There is, indeed, nothing to stand in the way of the vast development of the aeroplans from every point of view. Its advance, moreover, must of necessity bring about enormous changes in conditions of life all over the world. The senseless criticism against the construction of a channel tunnel, which the Daily Graphic so warmly advocated, that it will remove England's isolation and her great security, applies ten thousand-fold to the aeroplane.

Even as things are today France could bring 1,000 men an hour into England by air if it were necessary. Twenty years hence France will be able to transport an army of 100,000 men and guns across the channel with 25 airships in an hour. Germany will be in practically the same position, though I believe she will be forced to discard the lighter-than-air type. Every first-class power will possess her fleet of great aerial battleships comparable to the dreadnoughts of today, and while navies must be maintained to a certain extent, the first arm both of offense and defense will undoubtedly be in the air * * * * The first principle has been established. It is as safe in the air as on the ground today. The rest is merely a matter of natural evolution. It is absurb, naturally, to say there are no more problems to be solved. There are they are not so difficult as was the initial one of actual flight.

One of these problems concerns itself with wing area. With greater weight you require a greater plane surface for raising and starting a machine from the ground. But once in the air, and flying at high speed, the necessity for so much wing area disappears. A bullet travels through the air by its own momentum. It becomes the same with an aeroplane at very high speed. At 200 miles an hour there is little plane surface required. Thus it may be necessary in the future to have wings or planes which, fully extended at the start of a flight may be telescoped in the air.

BADLY DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

131 Mystic St., Arlington, Mass.—"There were pimples on my face the size of bird shot. They were dark red with a white head in the center. My face was such a mass of pimples I was ashamed to show myself in society. The pimples itched so much that I scratched them raw. For two months they had caused me much pain and many sleepless nights. My face was very badly disfigured. I used ——, ——, ——, and other remedies too numerous to mention, but without success. I had about given up when by chance I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I immediately sent for a sample. I bathed my face with hot water and washed it thoroughly with Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. After the first application I felt relief, so I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in less than a week I was completely cured." (Signed) Wm. N. Gaunster, Dec. 11, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. SUMMER LICENSES APPROVED.

Representative Council Reduces the Number from Eight to Four.

Proposition to Change the Plan for Improvement of Third Street Laid on the Table

The Representative Council met transacted all the business which came before it and adjourned Monday evening within an hour and a half Yet at no time did it appear to be in a hurry

The Council voted to approve the plan for additional summer licenses, though the number was reduced to four It voted to let the Third Street improvement project stand where it stood though Mr Wood again spoke well for the boulevard had a map with him and smaller diagrams in the chairs of the members It was evident that many were with him in the desire for the boulevard but not at this time The Council voted the money for the repair of Briggs wharf but not for the sewer at the Van Zandt Avenue bridge It also voted $100 for the committee on streets though the committee had not asked for it It did not vote for Mr Dyer s Bellevue Avenue widening and Mr Dyer shut off the proposition to add $1 000 to the Third Street sewering project The new firemen were elected and the Council finally passed the resolution to allow the aldermen to elect these firemen

When the roll was called 117 responded and enough others came in later to make the total attendance 150 It was a harmonious and pleasant meeting and all felt well on leaving

After the roll call came the reading of the records to which no one seemed to pay any attention This took 16 minutes and then the Council was ready for business

Chairman Harvey read the call for the meeting signed by more than 25 members the reason being the summer license proposition which had been laid on the table at the previous meeting He then asked if the Council would take that project from the table J J Peckham moved to lay it on the table and the chairman said it was already on the table Mr Murray voted to take it from the table There was a question on the vote and a standing vote showed that 157 favored considering the matter and 35 did not

The matter was then taken up and the recommendation of the License Commission for eight additional summer licenses to be granted only to what are known as hotels and to run from June 1 to December 1, was read It was an amendment to section 2 of chapter 123 and in line with the law passed for Narragansett Pier

I W Lawton moved its passage Mr Levy moved to amend by changing the total number of such licenses from 8 to 4 Mr Doyle thought they should be for a year and not six months but he was not in order Mr Levy s motion was adopted

Dr Brackett moved to amend by making this a temporary law for this year only by striking out the word annually and having the law terminate the first of next January His proposition received applause from the gallery Dr Brackett said it was evident that some of the places deemed most desirable to have licenses had not received them, and the city is in a dilemma on that account To relieve the trouble he was in favor of having a law passed only for this season so that the hotels which to many seem the most desirable places to have licenses might have them He did not understand how the license commissioners had overlooked these places It might have been oversight it might have been by intent He would like to hear from the commissioners as to how they brought the city into the condition it is in on account of the granting of licenses to other than the summer hotels The law allows one license to each 500 inhabitants Taking out the women and children and the men who do not drink at all or who do not drink in barrooms would make the rate about one license to each 100 who drink in bar rooms which seems to be an ample sufficiency The doctor s remarks were received with applause

In answer to his inquiry if any member of the License Commission was present Mr Tobin appeared He said he expected the chairman John Mahan to be present but he was not He would not say anything for the resolution but explained that having some licenses reserved for summer places made things very unpleasant for the License Commission for there was a steady demand to have these granted to all-the-year places and threats of vengeance if they were not It would be better to have some licenses set apart for summer places to be used only for them even if the number of other licenses were reduced Then it seemed desirable to have all take them out for the same time and not have them taken for different periods and all the places doing summer business should be compelled to take out licenses Three had licenses last year one using the license only 20 days There are others who should have licenses This year the Aquidneck will ask for one and Mr Coles should have one as well as the others He thought six summer licenses called for

Dr Brackett said he had not explained how the board put the city into the present predicament, and he did not In reply to a question, Mr Tobin said he could not tell whether the summer places have bars or simply serve at meals

Mr Peckham asked why the licenses were not held for the summer places as in former years Chairman Mahan was not present to answer this and Mr Tobin did not try to answer it

Mr Frame said it did not appear to be the fault of the License Commission that the summer places have no licenses, it was the fault of the owners of those places for not applying

There was a question on Dr Brackett s amendment, and a standing vote showed that it was lost, 60 ayes to 72 nays

The resolution was now up for direct vote and Ernst Voigt spoke briefly in favor of taking action which would give the New Cliffs Grenther, and Berger licenses It would be different if it was a proposition to increase the number of regular licenses but these places are necessary in the summer and should have the right to supply their guests with what they desire without being in fear that some one might make a complaint against them and the police would shut them up

Mr Levy took the same ground He spoke of the tennis tournament and the efforts made to take it away and suggested that if people attending could not secure drinks that would be an additional reason for taking it from Newport Then there are the Horse Show and the season is a whole These places are frequented by people who are in the habit of having something to drink with their meals and Newport should do what it can to help them do this He had suggested reducing the number to make it easier of passage in the Assembly To him it was a matter of importance to the welfare of the city as a summer resort to have the summer places licensed so that they can cater to their trade and make Newport a place to visit Of course no one could tell what the legislature would do but it seemed to him that the Council should show by its vote that it appreciates the need of having these summer hotels licensed

The motion on the resolution favoring the passage of the proposed law was then put and carried about four voices being heard in the negative

A petition was received from Dr H R Storer and others asking the Council not to permit the expenditure of the people s money for any extensive improvement of Third street, or for any work upon or sewer under lands of the United States naval hospital but instead to direct the expenditure of the proposed $30 000 or more first for the reopening and extension of Dyre street from Third street to the bay the construction to be similar to that of Cypress street second for the continuation of a sewer in said Dyre street from Third street to the bay, third for the expense of building a section of the long proposed boulevard said section to extend along the shore from the westerly end of said prolongation of Dyre street to Training Station road

Then came the resolution to divert the appropriation for the widening of Third street to the boulevard, as follows

Resolved That so much of the ordinance appropriating the revenue of the city as appropriates $30 000 for condemnation of land widening, curbing grading and macadamizing Third street from Cypress street to Training Station road be amended to read

Widening curbing grading and macadamizing Third street from Cypress street to a point 60 feet north of the north boundary of the United States naval hospital land acquire land for a new road extending 40 feet in width from said point westerly parallel with the said north line of said hospital land to the shore of the bay and for acquiring land for a section of the Washington Street Boulevard so called extending from the north boundary of the said hospital land northerly along the shore to or beyond the Training Station road to be 50 feet in width and for curbing grading macadamizing said new road and boulevard from Third street to Training Station road and for an 8-foot granolithic sidewalk on one side from Cypress street to the Training Station Road $30 000

And be it further Resolved That the Board of Aldermen be authorized and directed to change the reading of the $30 000 bonds heretofore authorized sold for the improvement of Third street so that the proceeds may be used to defray the expense of all improvements mentioned in the foregoing resolution and that the city solicitor be directed to take proper steps to procure the authority of the General Assembly for such bonds

W Williams moved to refer this to the committee of ten on streets and their improvement T J Williams said he had no objection provided it is understood that this action will in no way affect the carrying out of the approved plan for widening Third street The arrangement to make the Third Street improvements as agreed upon by the Council has come back from Washington and Admiral Knight has sent it to the Board of Aldermen, as the members could see in reading the newspapers This should be carried out The agreement is made and it has required considerable work to secure it and nothing should be done to stop it The sewer proposition goes with the other plan and the government undoubtedly will not give the land at the hospital if there is no

CHAMPIONSHIP AT STAKE.

Fast Basket Ball Expected From Naval Reserves and High School Team.

What is expected to be one of the fastest and probably the last basket ball game of the season will be played in the armory Wednesday evening, when the Naval Reserves, champions of the city, will be called upon to defend their title for the first time by the members of the Rogers High School team, which set up a brilliant record this season The game is to be a benefit for the Naval Reserves players and considering the ability of the two teams and the championship at stake one of the largest crowds is expected to turn out

The relative merits of these teams have caused considerable discussion since the Naval Reserves won the championship from the Father Mathews The Rogers quintet is one of the fastest the school as ever had and has won more honors than any other Newport amateur five The Reserves are composed of clever players who demonstrated their ability in the series against the Tabs and considering the fact that they are playing on their own surface their chances of victory appear good

The Rogers boys will be weakened by the absence of their captain and star centre Marshall, who is still confined to bed with blood poisoning The team which will start will be the same which defeated Holliston and Stuyvesant High, with Arnold and Cottrell as forwards Connolly at centre and Lee and Diggles in the back field This quintet should cause considerable trouble for the Reserves, who will line up with Carr and Williams as forwards Kirby at centre, and Dawley and Murphy as guards

That the Rogers boys can play good ball on a large playing surface was proved when Rogers won the New England championship from Wellesley at the Boston Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium, which is much larger than the armory Both teams have started practise for the contest

GOOD OPERA HOUSE BILL.

Electrical Venus, Pianologue Sketch and a Clever Talking Act.

The bill at the Opera House for the first half of the week is a good one. The top-liner in the vaudeville is the Electrical Venus, an act sure to create interest, especially among those acquainted with electricity The woman takes a powerful current through her body and her attendant is able to light a gas jet from the current as it comes from the tips of her fingers, the sole of her foot, the tip of her tongue and other parts of the body The gas jet is also lighted through a piece of ice a lemon and a banana held by the woman Her last feat is lighting a powerful arc electric lamp under water, one pole of the current passing through her body being held in her mouth, while the other insulated, is held in her hand. The comedy element introduced with the committee on the stage is good.

Marion and Moore have a pianologue sketch with music and comedy Mr Marion the pianist is an expert at that instrument and Miss Moore sings and dances well Miss Jean Baldwin has a good dancing turn with comedy and singing, and her dresses are quite the style Hartley and Recan had a clever talking act which was well done, and their dancing made a decided hit

The feature picture is a four-part film, Life s Temptations,' in 150 scenes which tell an interesting story There are other good shorter films which complete a bill nearly three hours in length.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Athletic Badge Test Drills Started—A Tennis Team Proposed.

Physical Director Chase held the first of the athletic badge test drills in the Rogers High School gymnasium Monday afternoon when candidates were allowed to qualify in the pull ups A large number of youngsters especially from the Junior class were on hand for the try-outs Later the high jump and running tests will take place The badge test is the standard used in all the gymnasiums and schools in the country but the badges which are to be awarded have a special Rogers design

A large number of base ball candidates reported to Manager Lawton Monday afternoon for the regular practice and although the wind was blowing at a lively clip two teams were picked and a short game played As neither of the regular twirlers essayed to pitch Alfred Clark, a candidate for catcher went into the box for the first team with Denniston catching, while O Sullivan and Martland were the battery for the second nine Study qualifications are expected to make more or less inroads on the large number of candidates

Mr Frank M Greenlaw, head of the science department at Rogers had various members of his classes looking at the sun spots through a telescope Monday

The last game in the Rogers class basket ball league, between the Junior Middles and the Seniors, may be held Wednesday afternoon In the event that the Junior Middles do not have enough men eligible, as in the Senior Middle contest, the game will be awarded by forfeit to the Seniors thereby giving the fourth year team second place in the final standing

The subject of a tennis team may come before the next meeting of the Athletic Association and a manager for this branch of athletics may be selected The tournament which decides who shall represent Rogers with the racquet will be held this year as usual

Since basket ball is over at the high school the members of the Rogers first team will play against the Naval Reserves under the name of the Newport Five for the city championship Wednesday evening at the armory The Rogers boys who will participate are Arnold Cottrell, Connolly Lee and Diggles

NOT AN ORGANIZATION.

The "I. W. W." a Secret Horde Lurking in Every Industrial Community.

[New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.]

One of the incidents of the late snowstorm in this city has a peculiar significance which ought to serve as a warning to many warm-hearted and soft-hearted people.

The pestilent leaders of that mythical organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World did not miss the opportunity, for which they are always watchfully waiting, to create a tumult of the lawless element which is ever ready to demand a living without earning it. The "I. W. W." is not an organization. It is a kind of secret horde, lurking in every industrial community, which may be called into activity spasmodically or sporadically when excitement is caused by a labor strike or by any occasion of distress and a leader can be found to raise a mob. Then crowds which are not of its real material may be drawn into the current of agitation and used as a means of intimidation or of violence in the name of labor and the relief of the oppressed. The material that may be rallied together and made inflammable for this purpose has been accumulating in various centres of industries, to be set on fire on such occasions as the strikes at Lawrence and Passaic and in the copper mines of Michigan and coal mines of Colorado. All that has been organized in this "I. W. W." is its leadership, which assumes the command of the lawless wherever the opportunity arises.

It is this that appeared on the scene when the healthy unemployed in this city were summoned to the well-paid work of clearing the streets of snow, and stirred up the spirit of discontent and the demand for food and shelter whether it was earned or not, and for those who refused to earn it when they had a chance. Its purpose was not to help but to hinder the effort to distinguish between those who could and would work and those who did not, who did not need and deserve charitable relief. Caring for the homeless and the hungry, who are in distress, and no means of immediate relief, and who are proper objects of charity is a different matter from finding employment for those who are seeking it, but this was lost sight of when these invaded churches and demanded as their right to be sheltered and fed there and threatened, if refused, to set about helping themselves from what belonged to others. The mobs which indulged in that exhibition were not made up of the industrious who could not get work or of the "deserving poor," who needed relief, but mainly of the lawless and worthless and those who are taught by the "I. W. W." spirit that society owes them a living which they are entitled to take whether they earn it or not.

There has been too much pandering to this spirit, not by direct concession or the promiscuous sheltering and feeding in churches or public buildings in an emergency, but by spreading the doctrine that the community as an organized body is bound to provide for its members according to their needs or their wants. It springs from the assumption that the great mass of workers are the creators of all wealth and are entitled to divide the fruits of labor; that capitalists and employers are unnecessary to production and distribution and either do not contribute to its increase or get from it far more than their share, to the deprivation of those who do the work. This springs from the theory propounded and disseminated by Socialism, which rests upon fallacies that reason and experience continually deny. Much of the teaching of those who are earnestly working for the uplifting of humanity has given countenance to the restless spirit that leads to lawlessness and violence. The churches have not been altogether free from this incubation of mischief and some of the brood is instinctively coming home to roost.

SUFFRAGE MISTAKES.

Proposed Amendment May Never be Incorporated in the Constitution.

[North American Review.]

There are conclusive reasons for saying that no suffrage amendment of any kind will ever again be incorporated in the constitution of the United States. Never in the history of the times has there been a more vivid example of misdirected energy or greater unfamiliarity with the structure and history of the American government than in the efforts of the suffragists for a woman-suffrage amendment to the constitution. It requires only a rudimentary knowledge of the government and political history of the United States to see the practical impossibility of three fourths of the states adopting a suffrage amendment.

The right of a state to create and control its own electorate is the cornerstone of its autonomy, and where there is a race problem involved it is the rock upon which its civilization rests. The proposition made by the suffragists is that the states shall voluntarily give up to the federal government this great fundamental right of creating and controlling their own electorates, a right upon which their systems are based, and this for the sake of woman suffrage, which any state may acquire at any time without giving up any right of any sort.

Another embarrassment provided for the federal government by the proposed suffrage amendment is that the federal government would be obliged to define all the qualifications of all women voters in all the states, and these qualifications would, of course, have to be identical. This would inevitably produce conflicts with state laws, as the qualifications of voters are by no means the same in all the states. It would also lead to conflict between the states concerning the fourth article, second section of the constitution, prohibiting a state from granting to the citizens of one state privileges not common to the citizens of the several states. It would be necessary for every state which adopted the amendment— unless all the states adopt it— to revise its constitution.

MEMORIAL TO DUTCH SETTLERS PLANNED.

A bronze memorial of heroic size to the Dutch settlers of New York is being planned for Riverside Drive by the Holland Dames, the Daughters of the Ancient and Honorable ... of New York, an organization of 45 women. The memorial was first discussed a year ago. A design has been prepared by Miss ... S. Church, who is at work on a memorial to Mayor Gaynor. The design includes four figures, one a woman representing the "Spirit of the Dutch."

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALASKA.

parties. He may agree to terms on his own initiative, but no lease shall be for more than 20 years. All private railroads that may be confiscated will be paid for at the physical valuation only. Whenever, if ever, any government railroad or telegraph or telephone line should be leased to private parties it will at once be under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

To authorize such an ambitious proposition as the Alaska government railways without providing a means to release the immense coal deposits the lines will tap would be the height of folly. Consequently, there is every likelihood of the early passage of an Alaskan coal land leasing law in some form. That introduced by Representative Ferris provides, in effect, for the leasing of the coal lands of the territory to individuals or corporations in areas not to exceed 2,560 acres in each case, and payment to the government of two cents for every ton of coal mined by them. Coal companies claim that 2,560 acres is too small an area upon which to operate a coal mine with profit in the United States proper. This is because they must dig down several hundred feet to find a small strata of coal, but in Alaska the deposits are compact almost to the surface of the land. Under such circumstances 2,560 acres in Alaska are equivalent to 10,000 acres in the coal fields of Illinois, Indiana or Kentucky, it is believed.

Alaska was bought from Russia for $7,200,000, in 1867. To date, nearly $400,000,000 has been taken out of it. Fully one third has not even been explored, and barely the surface of the rest has been touched. The gold returns run from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 per annum. The fisheries come next with an average of $10,000,000. There are over 12,000 square miles of coal lands, and no human being can estimate the billions of tons that lie buried there. The need of tapping these great deposits at once is great, for the citizens of the territory now pay out nearly $500,000 annually for coal shipped up from the United States or Canada. Professor Alfred H. Brooks, a geologist who knows more about Alaska coal than any living man, is reported to have estimated that the government loses an equal amount every year by not being able to have a naval coal base on Resurrection bay and then use Alaskan coal.

In area Alaska possesses 590,884 square miles, which is 12,000 square miles greater than Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland combined. Norway, Sweden and Finland, with an area of 441,567 square miles, support a population of 10,884,839 on agriculture and fisheries alone, for they have no coal, copper or gold. The population of Alaska is 36,000, about one half being natives. A wonderful and long-neglected empire lies before us.

A SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE.

Naval Survey Men Fortunate in Finding an Abundance of Game.

[R. J. Fraser, in Wide World Magazine.]

It was during the latter part of June, 1911, when, deeply laden with provisions and coal—an 18 months' supply-lumber and furnishings for a winter camp, and all the paraphernalia that goes to make up a naval survey outfit, our little schooner left the hills of Halifax behind, and commenced the long voyage to the Northland. Up past the rugged barren Labrador cliffs we sailed, butted and struggled our way through the ice barriers of the Hudson straits, and penetrated the floes and fields of the great northern bay. After a month of strenuous and exciting navigation we dropped anchor off the mouth of the Nelson river. Two days were spent in preliminary examination; then, under the pilotage of a native Cree, with a three-knot tide behind her, the schooner crossed the bar, nosed her way up the narrow, tortuous channel, and finally came to rest in the sheltered waters of the river—the first vessel to enter Port Nelson.

It was early in August when we moved ashore and pitched our tents on the bank of the Nelson, that mighty stream that flows through the breadth of Keewatin, draining the finest game country in Canada, before emptying its mud-laden waters into Hudson bay. The ducks, black and mallard, saw bills, and the numerous other varieties that haunt our northern lakes, were already lighting on the marshes, or on the placid waters of the tidal creeks, their temporary resting places on the long journey south. Accompanying them were the gray geese and their pretty cousins, the white swans, the former daily passing by in wedges, awakening the stillness with their "Honk, honk," over the gravel beaches and the shining mud-flats skipped plover and yellow-legged snipe.

These were but the forerunners, the heralds of the game tribe, that throughout the long weary winter months passed before our door. Caribou and moose, polar bear, white whale and seal, Arctic and colored fox, marten, mink, beaver and ermine, rabbit, gray goose and white swan, black and mallard duck, spruce partridge, ptarmigan, plover and snipe, silvery-scaled white fish and rainbow trout—all these we shot, trapped, snared and netted in variable numbers, and all within a one-mile radius of our camp. Truly we had dropped into a sportsman's paradise.

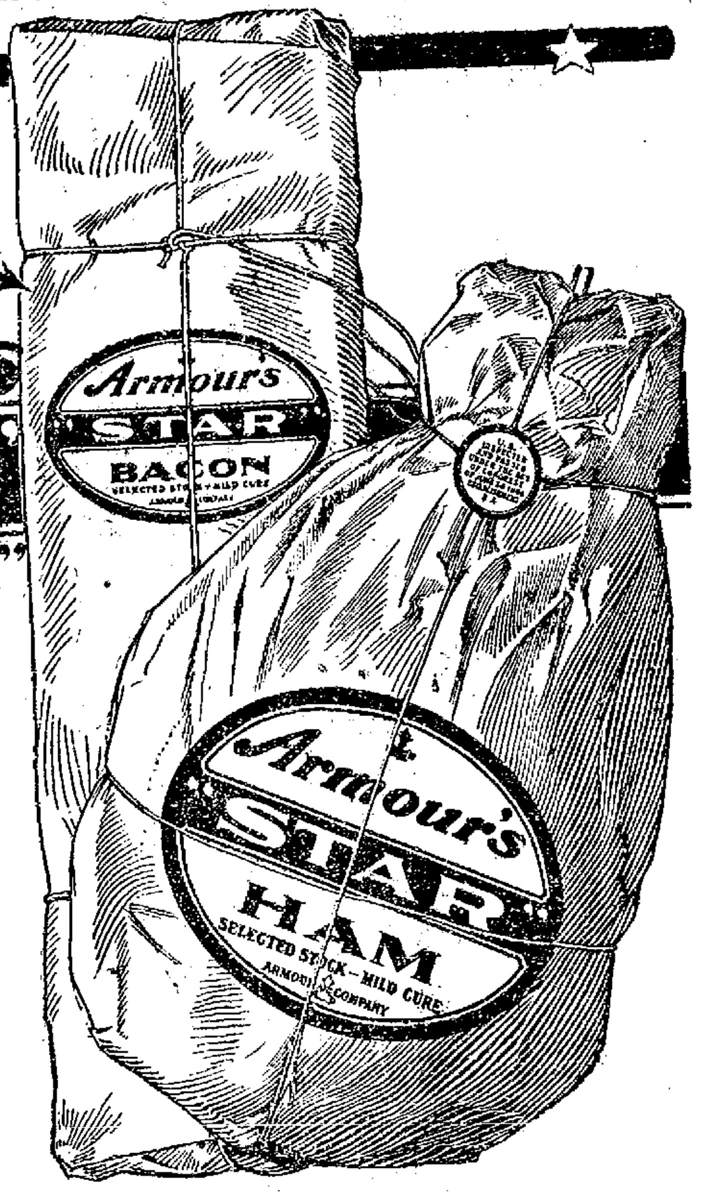

Our first caribou, a magnificent buck, came as a gift from the gods. He was shot less than 200 yards from the doors of our shack. It was really a case of "getting money from home without asking for it," for the poor animal had not one chance in a hundred of escaping. It was in the latter part of September, and the last venison steak had been eaten the day before. An expedition for the purpose of replenishing the meat safe was being contemplated. George had gone outside the shack and, happening to take a glance along the river, saw what appeared to be a tree drifting up-stream on the rising tide. Looking more closely, he noticed that it was turning round and round. Knowing there were no eddies in the current there, the idea that it might be a deer occurred to me, and I hurried into the camp after my glasses. One look confirmed the suspicion, and I sang out to the boys, "Get the dory launched and drive that deer ashore."

UNSIGHTLY HAIR GROWTHS INSTANTLY REMOVED

Women with growths of hair or "fuzz" on lip, chin, cheek, neck or arms often become so used to it that they imagine others are blind to it also. They become so indifferent to these unbeautiful growths that they forget how "grating" the sight is to their friends.
While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time, and in an absolutely safe, simple, and thorough manner. Forever after the hair can be kept from being noticeable. El Rado acts instantly. A few drops, a simple application, and no matter how coarse the hair is, it is dissolved and in a few moments it is gone.
Many physicians use the ingredients in El Rado for hair-removing, which shows how perfectly harmless it is. The skin is left smooth and velvety, even whiter than before. El Rado is becoming as indispensable a toilet article as face cream.
You need have no more hesitation in calling for it than in asking for and using a cold cream. Get a 50c. or $1.00 size bottle today. Test it on your arm. Prove for yourself it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely pleased. If inconvenient to call at your druggist's it will be all right to order direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Co., New York. Valuable information sent on request.

OPERATION NECESSARY.

Only Means for Relieving Illness of King Gustave of Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, April 7.—An operation is the only means for dealing with the internal complaint from which King Gustave of Sweden is suffering, according to the opinion of Professor Wilhelm Filner, the specialist who was called here from Heidelberg, and the other physicians in attendance. His Majesty today expressed the wish that the operation should be performed at the earliest possible moment. The king has been suffering intermittent attacks of his illness since October last.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD NOT CHOSEN.

Wilson Understood to be Selecting Country's Big Men.

Political Considerations Not to Weigh in His Choice.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—By the time final steps toward the organization of the 12 federal reserve banks have been taken, which is expected to be within another month, President Wilson will send to the Senate the names of five men who, with the Secretary of the Treasury and comptroller of the currency will compose the federal reserve board and put into operation the nation's new currency system.

The President, to date, has not determined on a single name. He has made no offers and really has not begun individual consideration to any extent. He has before him data concerning a long list of men who have been recommended to him as worthy of places on the board. Information about their qualifications and personality has been carefully prepared for the President, so that he can begin the sifting process practically without need of further inquiry.

Few people, perhaps less than a half dozen, know just what names are before the President, but it is understood that some of the biggest men in the country are on the list. One of the reasons for extreme secrecy is the uncertainty whether those who eventually will be offered places on the board will accept. Some of the men being considered receive salaries of $25,000 and $30,000 a year in their present positions in the financial and business world, and would have to make sacrifices to take the salary of $12,000 allowed members of the board.

One thing is certain and this is that the men who are on the President's eligible list are not prominent in politics. Mr. Wilson has determined that political considerations shall not weigh in his selections.

Already, it is said, a man of big business and banking experience who would have been fitted for the board has been eliminated from consideration, because of a brief period of active participation in Democratic politics.

FIFTEEN DAYS OF HEARINGS.

Senate Canals Committee Allows Time on the Sims Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Fifteen days of public hearings, beginning April 9, on the Sims bill, to repeal the Panama tolls exemption, were decided upon today by the Senate canals committee.

Administration supporters, pressing for a minimum of delay in getting the Sims bill out of committee, professed to be satisfied with the plan for 15 days of hearings, provided added time was not reserved for consideration of the bill after the hearings are over. The hearings will give opportunity for threshing out various amendments, principal among them one to re-affirm the sovereignty of the United States over the canal zone, and its right under the treaty to grant an exemption to coastwise ships if it desired to do so.

The controversy continued to eclipse interest in all other business in the Senate chamber. Senator Works, Republican, of California, made a lengthy speech analyzing the treaty obligations of the United States. "The granting of this exemption is a purely domestic matter," said he. "There could be no discrimination against Great Britain because no nation can enter into the coastwise trade. Some of our own representatives have out Britished the British in their claims for that nation."

Senator Brandegee, Republican, cast the only vote against the hearings, saying he did so because he believed the committee's action would have no weight. He urged that the repeal bill be returned to the Senate without any report and the fight be transferred to the floor.

The committee adjourned until Thursday with the understanding that the authors of various bills and resolutions on the subject will then be heard pending the arrival of witnesses from New Orleans and the Pacific coast.

By a vote of 35 to 27, the first taken in the Senate on the Panama tolls exemption controversy, Senator Poindexter's resolution asking President Wilson for an explanation of the language of his repeal message was referred to the foreign relations committee.

Urging passage of the Poindexter resolution Senator Lippitt, Republican, of Rhode Island, declared that he was undecided how he would vote on the repeal bill and believed it the duty of the Senate to find out what apprehensions the President has to the country's foreign relations which had prompted the language of his message. "I have not found any man anywhere who understands what in the world that language means," he said.

Then the Senate adopted Senator Brandegee's resolution calling on the State Department for "all information correspondence and records bearing on the negotiations for the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the interpretation of that treaty.

POLITICAL GROUPS ON STRIKE.

Kiyoura Unable to Form a Cabinet to Replace the Old.

TOKIO, April 7.—The Japanese empire has been thrown into a condition of utter political confusion by the inability of Viscount Keigo Kiyoura to form a cabinet to replace that under the premiership of Count Yamamoto. The viscount today informed the emperor that he was compelled to give up the task entrusted to him.

All the political groups, as well as the navy, have virtually gone on strike. The various Progressive factions declare that the constitution is not being properly observed, while the navy demands immediate advances of money for warship construction and the appointment of a sailor as minister of marine. The elder statesmen were again summoned to the imperial palace to confer with the emperor today.

EXCEPTIONS MAY BE MADE.

Daniels Sure Order Barring Liquor from Navy Will be Favored.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Secretary Daniels's order barring alcoholic liquors from American warships and naval stations continued today to be a topic of animated discussion at the Army and Navy Club and wherever navy officers gathered. Mr. Daniels said he had not yet considered in what circumstances he will make exceptions to the rule, but reminded his inquirers that Surgeon General Braisted, who recommended the banishment of alcohol, had suggested that exceptions could be made wherever international courtesy required. The Secretary has not made up his mind what course he will pursue when the international fleet mobilizes at Hampton Roads next year, to go through the Panama Canal at its formal opening.

"I am sure the order will meet with the approval of nearly all officers and I expect full compliance," said Mr. Daniels.

The order created no little interest among army officers, but none of the officials at the War Department would comment for publication. When the subject was mentioned to Secretary Garrison he said: "When I was a young man my father pointed out to me a man who had made a fortune minding his own business."

NEW YORK, April 7, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper 77, Anaconda 35¾, Baltimore & Ohio 99, Central Leather 35½, Chicago & Northwestern 133¾, Erie 29¾, General Electric 146¼, Great Northern Preferred 127¼, Missouri Pacific 25¾, New York Central 89½, Northern Pacific 114¾, Reading 165½, Rock Island Pfd 6¼, Southern Pacific 94¾, Union Pacific 153¾, United States Steel 68½, United States Steel pfd 110½, Wabash pfd 5½, Western Union 62¾.

10:45—Market conditions today paralleled those of yesterday. Stocks at the opening were firmly held, trading was abnormally dull, and fluctuations were so small as to be meaningless. The only exceptions to the rule were the cases of a few specialties. Great Northern Ore's loss of yesterday was extended and General Electric fell nearly a point.

Noon—Trading during the morning was the slowest of any day of the year, and price changes were significant. Only 41,200 shares were dealt in during the forenoon session. Holders of stocks were not affected by the prevailing depression of speculative sentiment, but the uncertainty of the outlook effectually prevented extensive buying. The trading element abandoned efforts to put up prices, owing to revival of liquidation in stock of companies undergoing reorganization or facing other difficulties. Standard shares barely moved, although firmness was shown in the grain carriers, owing to the expectation of an exceptionally strong showing in the government crop report later in the day. Bonds were steady. Money on call, steady, at 1¾ per cent. Mercantile paper, 2½ @ 4. Exchanges, $219,620,765; balances, $17,825,190.

NOT AN ORGANIZATION.

The "I. W. W." a Secret Horde Lurking in Every Industrial Community.

[New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.]

One of the incidents of the late snowstorm in this city has a peculiar significance which ought to serve as a warning to many warm-hearted and soft-hearted people.

The pestilent leaders of that mythical organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World did not miss the opportunity, for which they are always watchfully waiting, to create a tumult of the lawless element which is ever ready to demand a living without earning it. The "I. W. W." is not an organization. It is a kind of secret horde, lurking in every industrial community, which may be called into activity spasmodically or sporadically when excitement is caused by a labor strike or by any occasion of distress and a leader can be found to raise a mob. Then crowds which are not of its real material may be drawn into the current of agitation and used as a means of intimidation or of violence in the name of labor and the relief of the oppressed. The material that may be rallied together and made inflammable for this purpose has been accumulating in various centres of industries, to be set on fire on such occasions as the strikes at Lawrence and Passaic and in the copper mines of Michigan and coal mines of Colorado. All that has become organized in this "I. W. W." is its leadership, which assumes the command of the lawless wherever the opportunity arises.

It is this that appeared on the scene when the healthy unemployed in this city were summoned to the well-paid work of clearing the streets of snow. It stirred up the spirit of discontent and the demand for food and shelter whether it was earned or not, and for those who refused to earn it when they had a chance. Its purpose was not to help but to hinder the effort to distinguish between those who could and would work and those who did not and did not need and deserve charitable relief. Caring for the homeless and the hungry, who are in distress, with no means of immediate relief, and who are proper objects of charity, is a different matter from finding employment for those who are seeking it, but this was lost sight of when mobs invaded churches and demanded as their right to be sheltered and fed there, and threatened, if refused, to go about helping themselves from what belonged to others. The mobs which indulged in that exhibition were not made up of the industrious who could not get work or of the "deserving poor" who needed relief, but mainly of the lawless and worthless and those who are taught by the "I. W. W." spirit that society owes them a living which they are entitled to take whether they earn it or not.

There has been too much pandering to this spirit, not by direct concession like promiscuous sheltering and feeding in churches or public buildings in an emergency, but by spreading the doctrine that the community as an organized body is bound to provide for its members according to their needs or their wants. It springs from the assumption that the great mass of workers are the creators of all wealth and are entitled to divide the fruits of labor; that capitalists and employers are unnecessary to production and distribution and either do not contribute to its increase or get from it far more than their share, to the deprivation of those who do the work. This springs from the theory propounded and disseminated by Socialism, which rests upon fallacies that reason and experience continually deny. Much of the teaching of those who are earnestly working for the uplifting of humanity has given countenance to the restless spirit that leads to lawlessness and violence. The churches have not been altogether free from this incubation of mischief and some of the brood is instinctively coming home to roost.

SUFFRAGE MISTAKES.

Proposed Amendment May Never be Incorporated in the Constitution.

[North American Review.]

There are conclusive reasons for saying that no suffrage amendment of any kind will ever again be incorporated in the constitution of the United States. Never in the history of politics has there been a more vivid example of misdirected energy or greater unfamiliarity with the structure and history of the American government than in the efforts of the suffragists for a woman-suffrage amendment to the constitution. It requires only a rudimentary knowledge of the government and political history of the United States to see the practical impossibility of three-fourths of the states adopting a suffrage amendment.

The right of a state to create and control its own electorate is the cornerstone of its autonomy, and where there is a race problem involved it is the rock upon which its civilization rests. The proposition made by the suffragists is, that the states shall voluntarily give up to the federal government this great fundamental right of creating and controlling their own electorates, a right upon which their [illegible] are based, and this for the sake of woman suffrage, which any state may acquire at any time without giving up any right of any sort.

Another embarrassment provided for the federal government by the proposed suffrage amendment is that the federal government would be obliged to define all the qualifications of all women voters in all the states, and these qualifications would, of course, have to be identical. This would inevitably produce conflicts with state laws, as the qualifications of voters are by no means the same in all the states. It would also lead to conflicts between the states concerning the fourth article, second section of the constitution, prohibiting a state from granting to the citizens of one state privileges not common to the citizens of the several states. It would [illegible] be necessary for every [illegible] which adopted the amendment [illegible] of the states adopt it to [illegible] constitution.

MEMORIAL TO DUTCH SETTLERS PLANNED.

A bronze memorial of heroic size to the Dutch settlers of New York is being planned for Riverside Drive by the Daughters of Holland Dames, the Daughters of the Ancient and Honorable Families of New York, an organization of 45 women. The memorial was first discussed a year ago. A design has been prepared by Miss [illegible] S. Church, who is at work on a memorial to Mayor Gaynor. The design includes four figures, one a woman representing the "Spirit of the Dutch."

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ALASKA.

parties. He may agree to terms on his own initiative, but no lease shall be for more than 20 years. All private railroads that may be confiscated will be paid for at the physical valuation only. Whenever, if ever, any government railroad or telegraph or telephone line should be leased to private parties it will at once be under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

To authorize such an ambitious proposition as the Alaska government railways without providing a means to release the immense coal deposits the lines will tap would be the height of folly. Consequently, there is every likelihood of the early passage of an Alaskan coal land leasing law in some form. That introduced by Representative Ferris provides, in effect, for the leasing of the coal lands of the territory to individuals or corporations in areas not to exceed 2,560 acres in each case, and payment to the government of two cents for every ton of coal mined by them. Coal companies claim that 2,560 acres is too small an area upon which to operate a coal mine with profit in the United States proper. This is because they must dig down several hundred feet to find a small strata of coal, but in Alaska the deposits are compact almost to the surface of the land. Under such circumstances 2,560 acres in Alaska are equivalent to 10,000 acres in the coal fields of Illinois, Indiana or Kentucky, it is believed.

Alaska was bought from Russia for $7,200,000, in 1867. To date, nearly $400,000,000 has been taken out of it. Fully one third has not even been explored, and barly the surface of the rest has been touched. The gold returns run from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 per annum. The fisheries come next with an average of $10,000,000. There are over 12,000 square miles of coal lands, and no human being can estimate the billions of tons that lie buried there. The need of tapping these great deposits at once is great, for the citizens of the territory now pay out nearly $500,000 annually for coal shipped up from the United States or Canada. Professor Alfred H. Brooks, a geologist who knows more about Alaskan coal than any living man, is reported to have estimated that the government loses an equal amount every year by not being able to have a naval coal base on Resurrection bay and then use Alaskan coal.

In area Alask possesses 590,884 square miles, which is 12,000 square miles greater than Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland combined. Norway, Sweden and Finland, with an area of 441,567 square miles, support a population of 10,584,835 on agriculture and fisheries alone, for they have no coal, copper or gold. The population of Alaska is 36,000, about one half being natives. A wonderful and long-neglected empire lies before us.

Naval Survey Men Fortunate in Finding an Abundance of Game.

It was during the latter part of June, 1911, when, deeply laden with provisions and coal—an 18 months' supply-lumber and furnishings for a winter camp, and all the paraphernalia that goes to make up a naval survey outfit, our little schooner left the hills of Halifax behind, and commenced the long voyage to the Northland. Up past the rugged barren Labrador cliffs we sailed, butted at, struggled our way through the ice barriers of the Hudson straits, and penetrated the floes and fields of the great northern bay. After a month of strenuous and exciting navigation we dropped anchor off the mouth of the Nelson river. Two days were spent in preliminary examination; then, under the pilotage of a native Cree, with a three-knot tide behind her, the schooner crossed the bar, nosed her way up the narrow, tortuous channel, and finally came to rest in the sheltered waters of the river—the first vessel to enter Port Nelson.

It was early in August when we moved ashore and pitched our tents on the bank of the Nelson, that mighty stream that flows through the breadth of Keewatin, draining the finest game country in Canada, before emptying its mud-laden waters into Hudson bay. The ducks, black and mallard, saw bills, and the numerous other varieties that haunt our northern lakes, were already lighting on the marshes, or on the placid waters of the tidal creeks, their temporary resting places on the long journey south. Accompanying them were the gray geese and their pretty cousins, the white swans, the former daily passing by in wedges, awakening the stillness with their "Honk, honk," over the gravel beaches and the shining mud-flats skipped plover and yellow-legged snipe.

These were but the forerunners, the heralds of the game tribe, that throughout the long weary winter months passed before our door. Caribou and moose, polar bear, white whale and seal, Arctic and colored fox, marten, mink, beaver and ermine, rabbit, gray goose and white swan, black and mallard duck, spruce partridge, ptarmigan, plover and snipe, silvery-scaled white fish and rainbow trout—all these we shot, trapped, snared and netted in variable numbers, and all within a one-mile radius of our camp. Truly we had dropped into a sportsman's paradise.

Our first caribou, a magnificent buck, came as a gift from the gods. He was shot less than 200 yards from the doors of our shack. It was really a case of "getting money from home without asking for it," for the poor animal had not one chance in a hundred of escaping. It was in the latter part of September, and the last venison steak had been eaten the day before. An expedition for the purpose of replenishing the meat safe was being contemplated. George had gone outside the shack and, happening to take a glance along the river, saw what appeared to be a tree drifting up-stream on the rising tide. Looking more closely, he noticed that it was turning round and round. Knowing there were no eddies in the current there, the idea that it might be a deer occurred to me, and I hurried into the camp after my glasses. One look confirmed the suspicion, and I sang out to the boys. "Get the dory launched and drive that deer ashore."

UNSIGHTLY HAIR GROWTHS INSTANTLY REMOVED

Women with growths of hair or "fuzz" on lip, chin, cheek, neck or arms often become so used to it that they imagine others are blind to it also. They become so indifferent to these unbeautiful growths that they forget how "grating" the sight is to their friends.

While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time; and is an absolutely safe, simple, and thorough remover. Forever after the hair can be kept from being noticeable. El Rado acts instantly. A few drops, a simple application, and no matter how coarse the hair is, it is dissolved and in a few moments is gone.

Many physicians use the ingredients in El Rado for hair-removing, which shows how perfectly harmless it is. The skin is left smooth and velvety, even whiter than before. El Rado is becoming as indispensable a toilet article as face cream.

You need have no more hesitation in calling for it than in asking for and using a cold cream. Get a 50c. or $1.00 size bottle today. Test it on your arm. Prove for yourself it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely pleased. If inconvenient to call at your druggist's it will be all right to order direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Co., New York. Valuable information sent on request.

In this city El Rado is sold and recommended by: Downing Brothers; The Frank L. Powell Pharmacy; Wm. Leys Dry Goods Co.; The Bee Hive (Hess & Co.), The King McLeod Co.

"Acid-Mouth" Always Results in Tooth Decay

There's no mystery about the cause of decayed teeth—it's "acid-mouth." As to whether you have "acid-mouth" ! Well, authorities believe that 95 out of every 100 have this result of modern, civilized diet.

Pebeco Tooth Paste

is made to give you more than the ordinary "toilet article" dentifrice. It cleans, polishes and whitens. And then—gets at "acid-mouth" and overcomes this "well-nigh-universal" cause of decay.

That's why Pebeco is the dentifrice plus. The one preparation we know of that scientifically beautifies the teeth and saves them.

OPERATION NECESSARY.

Only Means for Relieving Illness of King Gustave of Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, April 7.—An operation is the only means for dealing with the internal complaint from which King Gustave of Sweden is suffering, according to the opinion of Professor Wilhelm Ebner, the specialist who was called here from Heidelberg, and the other physicians in attendance. His Majesty today expressed the wish that the operation should be performed at the earliest possible moment. The king has been suffering intermittent attacks of his illness since October last.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD NOT CHOSEN.

Wilson Understood to be Selecting Country's Big Men.

Political Considerations Not to Weigh in His Choice.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—By the time final steps toward the organization of the 12 federal reserve banks have been taken, which is expected to be within another month, President Wilson will send to the Senate the names of five men who, with the Secretary of the Treasury and comptroller of the currency will compose the federal reserve board and put into operation the nation's new currency system.

The President, to date, has not determined on a single name. He has made no offers and really has not begun individual consideration to any extent. He has before him data concerning a long list of men who have been recommended to him as worthy of places on the board. Information about their qualifications and personality has been carefully prepared for the President, so that he can begin the sifting process practically without need of further inquiry.

Few people, perhaps less than a half dozen, know just what names are before the President, but it is understood that some of the biggest men in the country are on the list. One of the reasons for extreme secrecy is the uncertainty whether those who eventually will be offered places on the board will accept. Some of the men being considered receive salaries of $25,000 and $30,000 a year in their present positions in the financial and business world, and would have to make sacrifices to take the salary of $12,000 allowed members of the board.

One thing is certain and this is that the men who are on the President's eligible list are not prominent in politics. Mr. Wilson has determined that political considerations shall not weigh in his selections.

Already, it is said, a man of big business and banking experience who would have been fitted for the board has been eliminated from consideration, because of a brief period of active participation in Democratic politics.

FIFTEEN DAYS OF HEARINGS.

Senate Canals Committee Allows Time on the Sims Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Fifteen days of public hearings, beginning April 9, on the Sims bill, to repeal the Panama tolls exemption, were decided upon today by the Senate canals committee.

Administration supporters, pressing for a minimum of delay in getting the Sims bill out of committee, professed to be satisfied with the plan for 15 days of hearings, provided added time was not reserved for consideration of the bill after the hearings are over. The hearings will give opportunity for threshing out various amendments, principal among them one to re-affirm the sovereignty of the United States over the canal zone, and its right under the treaty to grant an exemption to coastwise ships if it desired to do so.

The controversy continued to eclipse interest in all other business in the Senate chamber. Senator Works, Republican, of California, made a lengthy speech analyzing the treaty obligations of the United States "The granting of this exemption is a purely domestic matter," said he. "There could be no discrimination against Great Britain because no nation can enter into the coastwise trade. Some of our own representatives have cut Britished the British in their claims for that nation."

Senator Brandegee, Republican, cast the only vote against the hearings, saying he did so because he believed the committee's action would have no weight. He urged that the repeal bill be returned to the Senate without any report and the fight be transferred to the floor.

The committee adjourned until Thursday with the understanding that the authors of various bills and resolutions on the subject will then be heard pending the arrival of witnesses from New Orleans and the Pacific coast.

By a vote of 35 to 27, the first taken in the Senate on the Panama tolls exemption controversy, Senator Poindexter's resolution asking President Wilson for an explanation of the language of his repeal message was referred to the foreign relations committee.

Urging passage of the Poindexter resolution Senator Lippitt, Republican, of Rhode Island, declared that he was undecided how he would vote on the repeal bill and believed it the duty of the Senate to find out what apprehensions the President has to the country's foreign relations which had prompted the language of his message. "I have not found any man anywhere who understands what in the world that language means," he said.

Then the Senate adopted Senator Brandegee's resolution calling on the State Department for "all information correspondence and records bearing on the negotiations for the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the interpretation of that treaty.

POLITICAL GROUPS ON STRIKE.

Kiyoura Unable to Form a Cabinet to Replace the Old.

TOKIO, April 7.—The Japanese empire has been thrown into a condition of utter political confusion by the inability of Viscount Keigo Kiyoura to form a cabinet to replace that under the premiership of Count Yamamoto. The viscount today informed the emperor that he was compelled to give up the task entrusted to him.

All the political groups, as well as the navy, have virtually gone on strike. The various Progressive factions declare that the constitution is not being properly observed, while the navy demands immediate advances of money for warship construction and the appointment of a sailor as minister of marine. The older statesmen were again summoned to the imperial palace to confer with the emperor today.

EXCEPTIONS MAY BE MADE.

Daniels Sure Order Barring Liquor from Navy Will be Favored.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Secretary Daniels's order barring alcoholic liquors from American warships and naval stations continued today to be a topic of animated discussion at the Army and Navy Club and wherever navy officers gathered. Mr. Daniels said he had not yet considered in what circumstances he will make exceptions to the rule, but reminded his inquirers that Surgeon General Braisted, who recommended the banishment of alcohol, had suggested that exceptions could be made wherever international courtesy required. The Secretary has not made up his mind what course he will pursue when the international fleet mobilizes at Hampton Roads next year, to go through the Panama Canal at its formal opening.

"I am sure the order will meet with the approval of nearly all officers and I expect full compliance," said Mr. Daniels.

The order created no little interest among army officers, but none of the officials at the War Department would comment for publication. When the subject was mentioned to Secretary Garrison he said: When I was a young man my father pointed out to me a man who had made a fortune minding his own business."

NEW YORK, April 7, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper 77, Anaconda 35¾, Baltimore & Ohio 90, Central Leather 55½, Chicago & Northwestern 123½, Erie 29¾, General Electric 146½, Great Northern Preferred 127½, Missouri Pacific 25¾, New York Central 89½, Northern Pacific 114¾, Reading 165½, Rock Island Pfd 6¼, Southern Pacific 94¾, Union Pacific 159¾, United States Steel 68½, United States Steel pfd 116½, Wabash pfd 5½, Western Union 62¾.

10:45—Market conditions today paralleled those of yesterday. Stocks at the opening were firmly held, trading was abnormally dull, and fluctuations were so small as to be meaningless. The only exceptions to the rule were the cases of a few specialties. Great Northern Ore's loss of yesterday was extended and General Electric fell nearly a point.

Noon—Trading during the morning was the slowest of any day of the year, and price changes were significant. Only 41,000 shares were dealt in during the forenoon session. Holders of stocks were not affected by the prevailing depression of speculative sentiment, but the uncertainty of the outlook effectually prevented extensive buying. The trading element abandoned efforts to put up prices, owing to revival of liquidation in stock of companies undergoing reorganization or facing other difficulties. Standard shares barely moved, although firmness was shown in the grain carriers, owing to the expectation of an exceptionally strong showing in the government crop report later in the day. Bonds were steady. Money on call, steady, at 1¾ per cent. Mercantile paper, 3½ to 4. Exchanges, $319,620,362; balances, $17,855,190.

Base Ball Plans—Program for the Coming Circus Arranged.

The second last meeting of the Discussion Club at the Young Men's Christian Association was held Monday evening when "The Three Fields of Service" was the topic for consideration. These as interpreted were the church, the home and the school. Physical Director Slocum had charge of the Seniors, Mr. J. W. Blaine took the high school boys, while Boys' Work Secretary Stokes had charge of the employed boys. The topic for the final meeting, next week, will be "Am I My Brother's Keeper."

Secretary Stokes has an encouraging account of the membership in the boys' department during the past six months. In that time 71 new boys have joined the Association.

Plans are already being formed for base ball teams. The high school boys, the employed boys and the grammar school boys will form nines to compete with junior teams about the city. As yet nothing has been done regarding the forming of a nine among the Seniors, although the material and opportunities are plentiful.

Boys' Work Secretary Lester Clee of Providence arrived in Newport Monday with 15 Providence boys, who were on an educational tour. They stopped at the Young Men's Christian Association for a shower bath and swim, and were later taken by Secretary Sutherland of the Army and Navy Association for an educational trip to the Naval Training Station, where the items of interest were shown and the different branches of the service explained. Secretary Clee is considering an offer from Secretary Stokes to bring 100 Providence boys here for a walk around the Ocean Drive. If the boys decide to come they will be guests of the Newport Association.

Already the program for the coming circus, which is to be held the last of this month, has been arranged, and Physical Director Slocum has assigned various boys to the different drills. "The Knights of the Flaming Brands" are practicing regularly and promise to be one of the features of the exhibition.

The draft was ordered by radio and was ready for shipment when the Celtic arrived.

GREAT YEAR FOR MUSSELS.

Ferryboat Bristol Coated With Ribbons of Shellfish.

Captain Crandall of ferryboat Bristol says he has never seen such a year for the growth of mussels as the one just past. The Bristol, when coming down the bay to haul out, last week, had a very slow trip. When she was taken out on the ways the cause was apparent, for her bottom was heavily coated with these shellfish along each streak. They were like ribbons, and one piece was taken off intact, nine feet long, eight inches wide and five inches thick. These ribbons when in place extended the entire length of the hull. The bar is said to be alive with mussels except in the leased oyster beds, where constant dredging keeps them down.

THE AYLWIN DISABLED.

Boiler Explosion on Destroyer Kills One and Injures Two Seamen.

Everett Harmon, fireman, received injuries from which he died, and Bartholomew Glynn, water tender, and James H. Eaton, fireman, were severely scalded, by a blow-out in the forward fireroom of destroyer Aylwin off the Diamond Shoals lightship, on the Virginia coast, Monday. The men were taken to the naval hospital at Norfolk on board destroyer Benham and the Aylwin was towed into port by the Parker.

The Navy Department received the following report of the explosion: "Aylwin disabled by boiler explosion in forward fireroom; Parker towing Aylwin; Cassin and Cummings convoying Benham, proceeding to Norfolk with the following injured men: B. Glynn, water tender; Harmon and Eaton, firemen, first class. Aylwin reports no further assistance required. Have no other details."

KEEPER'S COTTAGE, AQUIDNECK PARK.

The former gardener's cottage on the King homestead land now affords a good residence for the custodian of the grounds. The building has been brought into greater prominence by the removal of the fence, but the massive gate posts have been allowed to remain and it can be seen that they add to the appearance of the corner.

SUMMER LICENSES APPROVED.

Representative Council Reduces the Number from Eight to Four.

Proposition to Change the Plan for Improvement of Third Street Laid on the Table.

The Representative Council met, transacted all the business which came before it, and adjourned, Monday evening, within an hour and a half. Yet at no time did it appear to be in a hurry.

The Council voted to approve the plan for additional summer licenses, though the number was reduced to four. It voted to let the Third Street improvement project stand where it stood, though Mr. Wood again spoke well for the boulevard, had a map with him and smaller diagrams in the chairs of the members. It was evident that many were with him in the desire for the boulevard, but not at this time. The Council voted the money for the repair of Briggs wharf, but not for the sewer at the Van Zandt Avenue bridge. It also voted $100 for the committee on streets, though the committee had not asked for it. It did not vote for Mr. Dyer's Bellevue Avenue widening and Mr. Dyer shut off the proposition to add $1,000 to the Third Street sewering project. The new firemen were elected and the Council finally passed the resolution to allow the aldermen to elect these firemen.

When the roll was called 117 responded and enough others came in later to make the total attendance 150. It was a harmonious and pleasant meeting and all felt well on leaving.

After the roll-call came the reading of the records, to which no one seemed to pay any attention. This took 10 minutes and then the Council was ready for business.

Chairman Harvey read the call for the meeting, signed by more than 25 members, the reason being the summer license proposition, which had been laid on the table at the previous meeting. He then asked if the Council would take that project from the table. J. J. Peckham moved to lay it on the table, and the chairman said it was already on the table. Mr. Murphy voted to take it from the table. There was a question on the vote, and a standing vote showed that 127 favored considering the matter and 35 did not.

The matter was then taken up and the recommendation of the License Commission for eight additional summer licenses, to be granted only to what are known as hotels and to run from June 1 to December 1, was read. It was an amendment to section 2 of chapter 123, and in line with the law passed for Narragansett Pier.

F. W. Lawton moved its passage. Mr. Levy moved to amend by changing the total number of such licenses from 8 to 4. Mr. Doyle thought they should be for a year and not six months, but he was not in order. Mr. Levy's motion was adopted.

Dr. Brackett moved to amend by making this a temporary law for this year only, by striking out the word "annually" and having the law terminate the first of next January. His proposition received applause from the gallery. Dr. Brackett said it was evident that some of the places deemed most desirable to have licenses had not received them, and the city is in a dilemma on that account. To relieve the trouble he was in favor of having a law passed only for this season, so that the hotels, which to many seem the most desirable places to have licenses, might have them. He did not understand how the license commissioners had overlooked these places. It might have been oversight; it might have been by intent. He would like to hear from the commissioners as to how they brought the city into the condition it is in on account of the granting of licenses to other than the summer hotels. The law allows one license to each 500 inhabitants. Taking out the women and children and the men who do not drink at all or who do not drink in barrooms would make the rate about one licensed place to each 100 who drink in barrooms, which seems to be an ample sufficiency. The doctor's remarks were received with applause.

In answer to his inquiry if any member of the License Commission was present Mr. Tobin appeared. He said he expected the chairman, John Mahan, to be present, but he was not. He would not say anything for the resolution, but explained that having some licenses reserved for summer places made things very unpleasant for the License Commission, for there was a steady demand to have these granted to all-the-year places and threats of vengeance if they were not. It would be better to have some licenses set apart for summer places, to be used only for them, even if the number of other licenses were reduced. Then it seemed desirable to have all take them out for the same time and not have them taken for different periods and all the places doing summer business should be compelled to take out licenses. Three had licenses last year, one using the license only 26 days. There are others who should have licenses. This year the Aquidneck will ask for one and Mr. Coles should have one as well as the others. He thought six summer licenses called for.

Dr. Brackett said he had not explained how the board put the city into the present predicament, and he did not. In reply to a question, Mr. Tobin said he could not tell whether the summer places have bars or simply serve at meals.

Mr. Peckham asked why the licenses were not held for the summer places as in former years. Chairman Mahan was not present to answer this and Mr. Tobin di not try to answer it.

Mr. Frame said it did not appear to be the fault of the License Commission that the summer places have no licenses; it was the fault of the owners of those places for not applying.

There was a question on Dr. Brackett's amendment, and a standing vote showed that it was lost, 69 ayes to 72 nays.

The resolution was now up for direct vote and Ernst Veigt spoke briefly in favor of taking action which would give the New Cliffs, Guenther, and Berger licenses. It would be different if it was a proposition to increase the number of regular licenses, but these places are necessary in the summer and should have the right to supply their guests with what they desire without being in fear that some one might make a complaint against them and the police would shut them up.

Mr. Levy took the same ground. He spoke of the tennis tournament and the efforts made to take it away, and suggested that if people attending could not secure drinks that would be an additional reason for taking it from Newport. Then there are the Horse Show, and the season as a whole. These places are frequented by people who are in the habit of having something to drink with their meals, and Newport should do what it can to help them do this. He had suggested reducing the number, to make it easier of passage in the Assembly. To him it was a matter of importance to the welfare of the city as a summer resort to have the summer places licensed so that they can cater to their trade and make Newport a place to visit. Of course no one could tell what the legislature would do, but it seemed to him that the Council should show by its vote that it appreciates the need of having these summer hotels licensed.

The motion on the resolution favoring the passage of the proposed law was then put and carried, about four voices being heard in the negative.

A petition was received from Dr. H. R. Storer and others, asking the Council not to permit the expenditure of the people's money for any extensive improvement of Third street, or for any work upon or sewer under lands of the United States naval hospital; but instead to direct the expenditure of the proposed $30,000 or more, first for the re-opening and extension of Dyre street from Third street to the bay, the construction to be similar to that of Cypress street second, for the continuation of a sewer in said Dyre street from Third street to the bay; third, for the expense of building a section of the long proposed boulevard, said section to extend along the shore from the westerly end of said prolongation of Dyre street to Training Station road.

Then came the resolution to divert the appropriation for the widening of Third street to the boulevard, as follows:

Resolved, That so much of the ordinance appropriating the revenue of the city as appropriates $30,000 for condemnation of land widening, curbing, grading and macadamizing Third street, from Cypress street to Training Station road, be amended to read

Widening, curbing, grading and macadamizing Third street from Cypress street to a point 60 feet north of the north boundary of the United States naval hospital land; acquire land for a new road extending 40 feet in width from said point westerly, parallel with the said north line of said hospital land to the shore of the bay; and for acquiring land for a section of the "Washington Street Boulevard," so called; extending from the north boundary of the said hospital land northerly along the shore to or beyond the Training Station road; to be 50 feet in width; and for curbing, grading, macadamizing said new road and boulevard from Third street to Training Station road and for an 8-foot granolithic sidewalk on one side from Cypress street to the Training Station Road, $30,000

And be it further Resolved, That the Board of Aldermen be authorized and directed to change the reading of the $30,000 bonds heretofore authorized sold for the improvement of Third street so that the proceeds may be used to defray the expense of all improvements mentioned in the foregoing resolution, and that the city solicitor be directed to take proper steps to procure the authority of the General Assembly for such bonds.

W. Williams moved to refer this to the committee of ten on streets and their improvement. T. J. Williams said he had no objection, provided it is understood that this action will in no way affect the carrying out of the approved plan for widening Third street. The arrangement to make the Third Street improvements as agreed upon by the Council, has come back from Washington and Admiral Knight has sent it to the Board of Aldermen, as the members could see in reading the newspapers. This should be carried out. The agreement is made and it has required considerable work to secure it and nothing should be done to stop it. The sewer proposition goes with the other plan and the government undoubtedly will not give the land at the hospital if there is no

CHAMPIONSHIP AT STAKE.

Fast Basket Ball Expected From Naval Reserves and High School Team.

What is expected to be one of the fastest and probably the last basket ball game of the season will be played in the armory Wednesday evening, when the Naval Reserves, champions of the city, will be called upon to defend their title for the first time by the members of the Rogers High School team, which got up a brilliant record this season. The game is to be a benefit for the Naval Reserves players, and considering the ability of the two teams and the championship at stake one of the largest crowds is expected to turn out.

The relative merits of these teams have caused considerable discussion since the Naval Reserves won the championship from the Father Mathews. The Rogers quintet is one of the fastest the school as ever had, and has won more honors than any other Newport amateur five. The Reserves are composed of clever players who demonstrated their ability in the series against the Tabs, and considering the fact that they are playing on their own surface their chances of victory appear good.

The Rogers boys will be weakened by the absence of their captain and star centre Marshall, who is still confined to bed with blood poisoning. The team which will start will be the same which defeated Hollister and Stuyvesant High, with Arnold and Cottrell as forwards, Connolly at centre, and Lee and Diggles in the back field. This quintet should cause considerable trouble for the Reserves, who will line up with Carr and Williams as forwards, Kirby at centre, and Dawley and Murphy as guards.

That the Rogers boys can play good ball on a large playing surface was proved when Rogers won the New England championship from Wellesley at the Boston Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium, which is much larger than the armory. Both teams have started practise for the contest.

GOOD OPERA HOUSE BILL.

Electrical Venus, Pianologue Sketch and a Clever Talking Act.

The bill at the Opera House for the first half of the week is a good one. The top-liner in the vaudeville is the Electrical Venus, an act sure to create interest, especially among those acquainted with electricity. The woman takes a powerful current through her body and her attendant is able to light a gas jet from the current as it comes from the tips of her fingers, the sole of her foot, the tip of her tongue and other parts of the body. The gas jet is also lighted through a piece of ice, a lemon and a banana held by the woman. Her last feat is lighting a powerful arc electric lamp under water, one pole of the current passing through her body being held in her mouth, while the other, insulated, is held in her hand. The comedy element introduced with the committee on the stage is good.

Marion and Moore have a pianologue sketch with music and comedy. Mr. Marion, the pianist is an expert at that instrument and Miss Moore sings and dances well. Miss Jean Baldwin has a good dancing turn, with comedy and singing, and her dresses are quite the style. Hartley and Regan had a clever talking act which was well done, and their dancing made a decided hit.

The feature picture is a four-part film, "Life's Temptations," in 150 scenes, which tell an interesting story. There are other good shorter films which complete a bill nearly three hours in length.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Athletic Badge Test Drills Started—A Tennis Team Proposed.

Physical Director Chase held the first of the athletic badge test drills in the Rogers High School gymnasium Monday afternoon, when candidates were allowed to qualify in the pull-ups. A large number of youngsters, especially from the Junior class, were on hand for the try-outs. Later the high jump and running tests will take place. The badge test is the standard used in all the gymnasiums and schools in the country, but the badges which are to be awarded have a special Rogers design.

A large number of base ball candidates reported to Manager Lawton Monday afternoon for the regular practice, and although the wind was blowing at a lively clip two teams were picked and a short game played. As neither of the regular twirlers essayed to pitch, Alfred Clark, a candidate for catcher, went into the box for the first team, with Denniston catching, while O'Sullivan and Maitland were the battery for the second nine. Study qualifications are expected to make more or less inroads on the large number of candidates.

Mr. Frank M. Greenlaw, head of the science department at Rogers, had various members of his classes looking at the sun spots through a telescope Monday.

The last game in the Rogers class basket ball league, between the Junior Middles and the Seniors, may be held Wednesday afternoon. In the event that the Junior Middles do not have enough men eligible, as in the Senior Middle contest, the game will be awarded by forfeit to the Seniors, thereby giving the fourth-year team second place in the final standing.

The subject of a tennis team may come before the next meeting of the Athletic Association and a manager for this branch of athletics may be selected. The tournament which decides who shall represent Rogers with the racquet will be held this year as usual.

Since basket ball is over at the high school, the members of the Rogers first team will play against the Naval Reserves under the name of the Newport Five, for the city championship, Wednesday evening at the armory. The Rogers boys who will participate are Arnold, Cottrell, Connolly, Lee and Diggles.
